Tornadoes Dip Into 3 States, Man Is Killed

By United Press International

Tornadoes dipping out of a squall line through Kansas, Missouri and Iowa hit at least four places in the three states Saturday, causing one death and widespread damage.

One Iowa tornado spun through a highway truck stop near Washburn in the northeastern part of the state, killing a man in a car which was crushed by a semi-trailer truck blown over by the winds.

Near Traer, about 32 miles southwest of Washburn, a tornado, possibly the same one, hurled 41 cars of a Chicago and North Western freight train from the tracks. Officials said the tornado plucked the cars "right out of the middle" of a 76-car train.

SIGHTED

Four tornadoes were sighted in the northwest coroner of Missouri. The only one known to have struck ground leveled buildings, destroyed telephone service and knocked out electricity in the Gentry, Mo., area.

No injuries were reported in the Gentry twister, but the small town of Lone Star, Mo., immediately in the path of the tornado, had not been heard from and authorities feared it might have been struck.

Another twister ripped through El Dorado, Kan., where 15 persons were killed in 1958 when a

White Youth Hits Negro Amid Tension

Fire Hoses Used In Savannah, Ga., Racial Discord

By United Press International

A white youth punched a Negro sitdown demonstrator and authorities hooked up fire hoses in Savannah, Ga., Saturday when racial tension flared anew among crowds of downtown shoppers.

Lunch counter demonstrators took seats at all-white counters at a downtown dime store, S. H. Kress and Co., and a white man angrily struck one of the Negro youths. The white man was arrested and the Negro suffered a fractured jaw.

Savannah is in the grip of a Negro "no buying" boycott and many merchants reported their business volume was off as much as 75 per cent. Large crowds, both white and Negro, were on the streets in Savannah's shopping districts but few Negroes appeared to be buying.

DEMONSTRATION

With the sitdown demonstration at the Kress lunch counter and the brief altercation, police and fire department units mobilized for possible further trouble. Two fire department pumpers were hooked to hydrants and firemen had hoses ready.

Fire hoses were used several weeks ago to break up racial trouble arising from anti-segregation protests in Chattanooga, Tenn., and Orangeburg, S.C.

Negro student leaders from all over the South met in Raleigh, N.C., for discussions on the future course of protest demonstrations—what one spokesman called "the price tag on freedom." They discussed forming "volunteer units" of sitdown demonstrators who

Lake Charles Teacher Wins Contest Here

Award Made At Banquet; Shelby Jackson Speaks

Miss Barbara Ann Schexnayder, 26, a petite first-grade teacher from Lake Charles, last night was named Louisiana's "Outstanding Young Teacher".

The announcement was made at a banquet in the Frances hotel, attended by contestants, their families and local and state Junior Chamber of Commerce members who sponsored the contest.

Seven other teachers, voted "outstanding" in their communities, were on hand for the event. The announcement was made at 9:30 p.m., when Miss Schexnayder was presented with a diamond wristwatch, $50 check, plaque and a plaque for her school.

COMPLETE DAY

Shelby M. Jackson, state Superintendent of Education, was featured speaker at the banquet, which completed a day of activity for the contestants.

Jackson said, in reference to the state's need for teachers, "We have had more than 267,000 additional children to enter our schools in the past few years. Next year there will be another 20,000 new students entering and we can expect from 24,000 to 33,000 more to be entering the schools in each of the next few years.

"To meet the needs of these new students we are going to need from 1,100 to 1,400 new teachers.

"We in Louisiana have made great progress in education in the past few years. We have the best organizational structure of any state in the nation, meeting all the requirements that have ever been set up by the national commission on school organization.

"Yet we still have far to go in building for even better school

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI) — The Air Force Saturday failed to recover a 300-pound space capsule from the Discoverer XI satellite because it stayed in orbit, the Air Force announced.

An Air Force announcement said the bell-shaped capsule apparently was ejected from the 17-foot long satellite at about the right time and place--over the North Pole on its 17th pass around the world.

But the capsule did not fall back into the atmosphere and plunge to earth in the Pacific as was planned, the military said. Officers didn't say, but it might have been a failure of the small rockets on the capsule that are supposed to slow it down enough to force it out of its path around the earth.

FAILURE

Despite the failure of the specially trained recovery teams to get a chance to snatch the parachuting capsule high in the sky, the Air Force termed Discoverer XI "the most successful Discoverer to date."

A two-stage rocket boosted the satellite into orbit over the poles of the earth Friday from this seaside base. The second stage--an Agena--made up the satellite.

On Discoverer V, the capsule also was ejected and stayed in orbit, several weeks after its launch, to become a mystery satellite. Scientists finally generally agreed that the mystery satellite--when later located in space--was the capsule of Discoverer V still circling the earth.

Nine net-trailing C-119 Flying Boxcars waiting in the 150-by-50 mile recovery area southwest of Hawaii picked up radio signals from the capsule after it was

All Seamen Saved From Leaky Ship

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI) — The Coast Guard picked up safely Saturday all 23 seamen from a Lebanese tramp steamer more than 13 hours after it flashed a distress call that it was sinking in the Atlantic and the crew would abandon ship.

It was a dramatic race against time in a search that began moments after the post-midnight SOS until a search plane sighted the survivors on a life raft bobbing in the ocean at mid-afternoon. A cutter raced to pick them up.

The search plane circling the raft had radioed that it counted "about 20" men on the raft and that some appeared injured. The Coast Guard reported later, however, that the men were unhurt. Those rescued included the owner-captain of the vessel which sprang a leak, foundered and sank in the darkness almost within sight of the Eastern Shore of Virginia. But because of an apparent mistake in the radioed position, it took a massive effort to find the tiny raft.

MESSAGE

A radio message received by the Norfolk Coast Guard at 1:12 a.m. EST, 14 minutes after the first SOS, said crewmen aboard the 329-foot vessel were abandoning ship.

Only two messages were received, the distress call and the one saying the crew was leaving the ship which was loaded with more than 8 million pounds of scrap iron.

The radio messages located the ship's position 43 miles northnortheast of the Virginia capes and 19 miles out from a point on the Eastern Shore peninsula which juts down from Maryland and Delaware.

A Coast Guard plane was circling the area, dropping brilliant flares, within an hour from the first SOS.

Maj. Gen. Ord Taken By Death

WASHINGTON (AP)—Maj. Gen. James Garesche Ord, 73, member of a family that has provided regular Army officers since the war of 1812, died Friday of a heart attack.

He will be buried with military honors in the Ord family plot here at Arlington National Cemetery on Tuesday.

Ord, who was retired, was a direct descendant of James Ord, high born Englishman who came to Maryland early in the 19th century. On his mother's side, Ord ascended from Colonial Gov. John Wintarop of Massachusetts.

Ft. Ord, Calif. is named after his grandfather, Gen. E.O.C. Ord, of Civil War fame.

Ord served in France during World War I and in World War II was briefly assistant commander of the 1st Division. Later he commanded the 28th Division in the United States.

For the last three years of the war Ord was chairman of the joint Brazil-United States Defense Commission and was a member of the Inter-American Defense Board.

AN EASTER PRAYER
(Enola Chamberlain)

Help me, Dear Lord, to raise my eyes
Above all petty care.
And find upon the arching skies
Truths you have written there.

Help me to do the simple things
That make this world a place
Where every voice with gladness rings.
And smiles light up each face.

Help me to hide each bitter loss
So none but you will see
The weight and torture of the cross
I bear up Calvary.

Help me to meet each hour, each day,
Courageous, faithful, true.
Help me to know and keep the way
That leads, my Lord, to You.

Solon Tells His Views On Rights

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) said Saturday that if he were president he would try "to give encouragement and leadership to the people" in the field of civil rights.

He said the Eisenhower administration has talked a great deal about enforcement but he contended that protection of civil rights is not merely enforcement.

"I think we ought to encourage observance," said Humphrey, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination and a leading congressional advocate of civil rights measures.

PRESTIGE

"If the President would put his prestige and his office on the line, so to speak, to help communities, to help individual leaders, civil leaders, to make forward progress in the field of civil rights, I really believe we'd be doing the right thing," he said.

Humphrey, interviewed by Sen. George A. Smathers (D-Fla) on a radio and TV program taped for Florida stations, said the right to vote must be protected above all.

"This is the most important of all our constitutional and civil rights and if we protect that right, I think we'll be making progress," he said.

A civil rights bill passed by the House and Senate, but still awaiting House action on Senate amendments, is keyed to enforcement of voting rights.

Sens. Jacob K. Javits, (R-NY) and Philip A. Hart (D-Mich) said they and other advocates of civil rights legislation took a whipping in the eight-week Senate battle over the issue.

Javits reiterated his view that the outcome was "a victory for the Old South." However, he said "I don't think it's going to be a very permanent victory."

GENERAL ELECTION

Voters To Name Choices Tuesday

Ouachita Parish voters will go to the polls Tuesday to select a full slate of state officers as well as to confirm local nominations for police jury seats, or possibly to reject two.

Two jurors nominated in the Democratic primaries are opposed by independent candidates in the general election.

In ward one, F. G. (Red) Studdard is opposed by Guy D. Nolan, running as an independent, and in ward seven, W. O. Roberts, the Democratic choice for the jury slot, is opposed by Jack Battaglia Jr., an independent.

The Democratic nominee for governor, Jimmie H. Davis, is opposed in the general election by two other party nominees and one write - in candidate.

THE OPPONENTS

Francis Grevemberg, former superintendent of state police, is running on the Republican ticket, and Kent H. Courtney of New Orleans, a newspaper publisher, is seeking the statehouse job on the States' Rights ticket. Morris W. M. E. Clark is the write in.

C. C. (Taddy) Aycock, Davis' Democratic running mate, is opposed in the general election for lieutenant governor by two Monroe men, Clark C. Boardman on the GOP slate, and Vaughan Phelps on the States' Rights ticket.

In other state races, Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr. is opposed by Republican William C. Porter. Attorney General Jack P. F. Gremillion is facing Nealon Stracener, Republican.

A. P. Tugwell, Democratic treasurer, is opposed by Hugues J. DeLa Vergne II, Republican. The Democratic nominee for comptroller, Roy R. Theriot, is opposed by Robert Lee Clark Jr. of the GOP.

Shelby Jackson, superintendent of education and the Democratic nominee for the office, is opposed

Cancer Crusade House Drive Slated Monday

The Ouachita parish Cancer Crusade's house - to - house drive will be held Monday between 5 and 8 p.m., according to Bert Hatten, chairman of the 1960 Crusade. Mrs. Fred Beckett will be chairman of the Monroe residential canvas and Gene Goad will spearhead the West Monroe drive.

Hatten said that every family in the community will be given "life-saving facts about cancer." Volunteers will distribute the literature when they knock on the door and "we hope they will take away with them a generous contribution to support the Society's programs of research, service and education," the crusade chairman said. A goal of $10,000 has been set for Ouachita parish.

C-DAY

"The house-to-house operation is called C-Day because the 'C' stands for cancer and control. It also stands for ultimate conquest," Hatten said.

"We know we can increase the control of the disease right now, because we aren't getting the maximum number of cures possible. We should be saving one of every two cancer patients; we are actually saving only one in three. Some 35,000 Americans died of cancer last year — it is our immediate goal to save these people by teaching them the facts of cancer," reported Hatten.

Hatten urged every citizen to

Fingerprints Discovered In Kidnap Case

PARIS (AP)—Police seeking the kidnapers of 4-year-old Eric Peugeot have discovered a clear set of fingerprints on one of the ransom notes written to the boy's father, wealthy automaker Roland Peugeot.

Discovery of the prints was the first break in the case for police, who until now have had to work with little concrete evidence.

Police pressed a huge manhunt for the kidnapers, who released the boy unharmed early Friday on payment of ransom, total amount unreported. But police have kept officially silent about their investigation.

LETTER

It was reported, however, they found the prints on a letter written Peugeot Thursday afternoon telling him his son was all right and that he would be contacted later to arrange payment of ransom.

In other developments police inspectors questioned the night manager of a filling station near the spot where Eric was released. He reported seeing a woman deposit a boy on the sidewalk at about the time Eric was set free.

His information, which coincided with many of the known facts of Eric's release reinforced a police theory that two men already known to be involved in the kidnapping had a woman accomplice.

Police had worked on the idea that a woman was involved after laboratory analysis revealed a red smudge on the envelope in which the original ransom note was contained was lipstick.

The first note, left behind by a darkhaired man who snatched Eric Tuesday from the playground of a swank country club, reportedly demanded $100,000 ransom. Peugeot has never revealed how much ransom he eventually paid

Child, 4, Dies When Struck By Auto At Dodson

DODSON (Special) — A four-year-old Dodson girl was struck and killed by a car yesterday morning when she and an older sister attempted to cross U. S. Highway 167.

INVESTIGATION

Officers said no charges have been filed. Investigation was incomplete last night.

Troopers said the girl and a six - year - old sister were attempting to cross the highway from east to west just after leaving the Dodson Post Office. The older girl ran back to safety, troopers said.

The car was traveling south. Besides the parents, survivers

Clues Reported In Triple Slaying

OTTAWA, Ill. (AP)—Crime laboratory expert examined bloody fingerprints and state police looked for two hitchhikers Saturday as investigators of the Starved Rock State Park triple murder case followed their latest clues.

The fingerprints were found on clothing worn by two of the three slain Riverside, Ill., women, all wives of business executives. Authorities believe they were left by the killer.

Two hitchhikers being sought were reported seen at 4 p. m. March 14 by a Utica area farmer, less than one-half mile from the murder site.

The bodies of Frances Murphy, 47, Lillian Oetting, 50, and Mildred Lindquist, 50, were found in a cave in Starved Rock State Park March 16. The women are believed to have been killed early in the afternoon of March 14.

FUTURISTIC SPACE ENGINE

Project Put Put Details Outlined

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Defense Department brass have told Congress about a project that could literally toss the Pentagon out of this world.

Going under the psudonym of "Project Put Put," the plan entails exploding a series of controlled nuclear bombs under a space vehicle and bumping it into the outer reaches of space.

The Advanced Research Projects Agency (ARPA) has already put down $2,440,000 for Project Put Put. However, if a nuclear test ban were signed, presumably the project would come to a halt.

Information about the futuristic space engine came to light Saturday as the House Space Committee published some highly censored testimony from a closed door hearing last February.

The officer in charge of Put Put, Navy Commander Robert Luker, told the committee there was "no conceivable upper limit" on the weight such a system could place in space.

"That is," he said, "the upper limit gets to be such that you are talking about something the size of the Pentagon."

Ellen Bryan Moore, former state lands register and the Democratic nominee for the office, is opposed by Anna Slagle. Rimus D. Hayes, the Democratic general election against Harold Whiteside, the GOP's choice.

The States' Rights party, making its initial bid for state offices, has not offered candidates for offices other than the governor and lieutenant governor spots.

Also appearing on Tuesday's ballot will be a proposed constitutional amendment to establish nominee for insurance commissioner, will face Albert L. If approved the amendment would provide one judge to be elected from each of the parishes involved. One judge would preside over the Bossier division of the district and the other would preside in Webster. Each would be elected from his home parish and preside in that parish.

The new judge would be elected in the November general election.

Polling places in Ouachita Parish will be the same as in the Democratic primaries in December and January.

The polls will open at 6 a.m. Tuesday and will close at 3 p.m.

Tornadoes Hit Three States

twister pounced on the town. No injuries were reported Saturday, but several roofs were damaged and shingles ripped off.

The fourth twister Saturday tore the roof off a farm house southeast of Wichita, Kan. There were no injuries reported.

The killer tornado at Washburn sliced the roof off a truck port building, injuring Don Maltas, owner of the port, who was cut by flying glass.

Carl J. Mannel, 41, Waterloo, Iowa, was killed when a semi-trailer truck tipped over on a car at the truck stop. Two other occupants of the car apparently escaped without serious injury.

Albert Bonesteel, an employe at the truck stop, said he saw the funnel cloud approaching and was just remarking that it might hit the area when the roof flew from the building. Authorities said 10 or 15 cars were blown off highways in the Washburn area.

The freight train was derailed about nine miles northeast of Traer. Railroad officials said the last car of the train had just cleared a highway crossing on U.S. 63 when the derailment occurred.

The train wreckage blocked tracks of the main line of the Chicago and North Western route, and officials said it would be "sometime Sunday" before the wreckage could be cleared away.

At Reinbeck, 15 miles southwest of Waterloo, two buildings were reported knocked down by tornadic winds. A plane was reported blown through a hangar wall at an airport near Washburn.

The tornadoes were spawned by a cold front moving through the midwest. Tornado warnings also were out for parts of Illinois, Wisconsin and Indiana and severe thunderstorms were to strike the entire area.

would be willing to go to jail rather than pay fines if arrested and convicted.

At Nashville, Tenn., Negro protest leaders made plans for the arrival of a motorcade of University of Minnesota white students en route to the South to fan support for anti-segregation demonstrators.

Nashville police said special precautions would be taken to insure that no trouble is touched off by the students who reportedly were planning special demonstrations.

Another topic at the Raleigh meeting was a boycott-like movement of "selective buying" which Negro leader Martin Luther King Jr. called a "moral necessity." He said Negroes should "buy from those agencies, those stores and those businesses where one can buy with dignity and self-respect."

King, who spearheaded a boycott that ended in integration of Montgomery, Ala., buses, was to address the more than 250 students and adult leaders attending the three-day conference on non-violent protests.

James R. Robinson, executive secretary of the Congress on Racial Equality (CORE), reported that the students he had talked to during the conference indicate a growing depth of the understanding of non-violence. The amount of self-suffering they will accept appears much stronger than it was two weeks after the sitdown demonstrations began, he said.

CORE and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which King heads sponsored the Raleigh meeting in an effort to bring together leaders from the communities where sitdown protests against segregated lunch counters have been staged. They gathered in a city which has been marked by repeated demonstrations and almost daily picketing since the movement began Feb. 2 in Greensboro, N.C.

Snatch Try On Capsule Goes Amiss

ejected and began whirling in space.

The planes and two Navy ships were ordered to return to base shortly after.

The Air Force said it was positive there was no chance to coax the instrument package out of orbit now.

"Discoverer XI was exceptional in its performance," the Air Force said. "From launch through the time of jection, the instrumented second stage performed all of its functions on command, reporting its activities back to Air Force tracking stations in Hawaii and Alaska."

The official announcement said the capsule stayed in orbit because "some unknown malfunction occurred at a critical point just after seperation..."

The 27-by-33 inch capsule was to have arched back toward earth and at 40,000 feet automatically be lowered by a parachute. To help the special recovery teams, it carried a radio transmitter and flashing lights.

This was the seventh Discoverer rocket placed in orbit over the poles of the earth: the sixth recovery try; and the 18th U. S. earth satellite hurled into a path around the world.

A successful recovery, Air Force scientists said, would have been a key to placing a man in space because it would show how to get him safely down.

The Discoverer capsules are designed to eventually carry biomedical specimens -- four mice perished in one of the early launches. But the discoverer XI capsule carried only instruments.

Nine C119 Flying Boxcars had gone to the recovery area--accompanied by four radar aircraft--to try and snag the capsule as it parachuted down. They trailed large booms behind and below them which carried trapeze-like snares to hook the parachute.

Officers had pointed out that hitting the recovery area from 200 miles up and almost a quarter of the way around the world with the satellite traveling at tremendous speeds would be a difficult task.

Some of them likened it to hitting a running jackrabbit from a moving car with a high-powered rifle--without a marksman holding the gun.

In addition to the capsule, the satellite carried equipment to test the accuracy of gear scheduled for the Navy's transit navigational satellite system.

deed" but added that a "battleship - type size" space vehicle "may very well be of interest to the Defense Department in the far distant future."

The committee was shown films of a model vehicle being propelled with small explosions of TNT. Luker said ARPA had never used a small atomic explosion in its tests.

About future development, he said that working on the "prospects of a moratorium which does not differentiate between such kinds of devices and a bomb, this could never be tested or flown."

Despite the international problems relating to future development of Put Put, Luker said the Defense Department presently has an engineering design feasibility study aimed at coming up with a vehicle capable of placing 200 tons into space.

He indicated that "several hundred" separate nuclear explosions would be required to put a manned expedition on the Moon.

systems. We still rank 35th among all the states in contributing money for the schools."

Pretty Miss Schexnayder has taught at Hamilton Elementary school for five years. She is a graduate of Louisiana State University.

"In observing her work," comments W. W. Shirley, Hamilton principal, I have found that Miss Schexnayder exemplifies all the fine qualities which we attribute to a master teacher."

William M. Smith, supervisor of instruction for Lake Charles city schools and former dean at Northeast College, says that the outstanding teacher is, "Loved by her pupils and respected by coworkers, her principal, parents and the school administrative staff."

"Her students' parents have unanimously agreed that she is very helpful to them," he added.

Miss Schexnayder has been invited by the Comparative Education Society to participate in a "teachers exchange" program, to tour the U.S.S.R. and view Russian methods of education this summer, according to Buster Crowley, local Jaycee in charge of the teacher contest.

In 1958, she observed instruction in several schools throughout Europe.

President of the Lake Charles City Teachers Association, Miss Schexnayder also is a member of the National Education Association, Louisiana Teachers Association, Classroom Teachers Association, Parents - Teachers Association, Little Theater and Art Associates. She attends the Catholic church.

"In stimulating creative thinking and an interest in learning, Miss Schexnayder utilizes visual aids appropriate to first graders," officials say, and add, "Her students are proud of being in her class."

"Her skill in instruction is excellent, and her work as an intergral part of the faculty has been exceptional," the principal adds.

"She not only has a superior knowledge of the wide variety of subject material expected of a primary teacher, but is constantly striving to improve that knowlege," school officials state.

They noted "large amount of individual attention, so necessary to first graders," which she gives her students.

Three high state educators served as judges for the contest. Each teacher named outstanding by his community was judged on five points:

1. Maintaining a wholesome, happy classroom atmosphere conducive to learning. 2. Stimulating creative thinking and an interest in learning. 3. Having a superior knowledge of subject field. 4. Maintaining the respect of colleagues, community and pupils. 5. Maintaining high standards of learning by expecting and helping each child achieve according to his abilities.

Contestants were between 21 and 35, and had at least five years teaching experience.

Other outstanding teachers who competed in the contest were: Mrs. Irma George, Monroe, Mrs. Gloria S. Camp, West Monroe, Mrs. Ann McKee Boyd, Ruston, Lemon Edward Griggith, Jackson parish (Quitman), James Edward Willey, Shreveport, Don Ray Beard, Baton Rouge and Wylie M. Starks Jr., Natchitoches.

Fingerprints Discovered In Kidnap Case

or in what manner it was delivered.

Police inspectors have several times questioned Eric, his father and Roland Peugeot's brother, Alain. They did not disclose what, if anything, the family was able to add.

So far police sources have revealed these known facts about the kidnapers.

The gang consists of two men and possibly a woman. The men are both darkhaired and slender but one is considerably taller than the other.

Instructions On Military Dining Told

WASHINGTON (AP)—How long should the military "dining-in" cocktail hour last?

When and how should toasts be proposed and answered?

At what point in the meal is smoking permitted?

Maj. Gen. Chester E. McCarty has the answers and has listed regulations to be followed at formal dinners in the officers' messes of his command—the 14th Air Force with headquarters at Warner-Robbins Air Force Base, Marietta, Ga.

Seeking to revive some dying military customs, McCarty has told his subordinates to dine together periodically. He has instructed them how to go about it, with minute regard for traditional proprieties.

Officers of the 14th Air Force must attend their periodic evening functions in formal dress.

Under the McCarty rules, the cocktail bar opens at 1830 — or 6:30 p.m. civilian time—and closes 45 minutes later.

"On the sounding of the chimes, members of the mess will proceed immediately to the dining room, take positions behind their respective chairs and remain standing while the president—or senior officer of the mess—calls the mess to order," McCarty wrote.

The "president" is the first seated and the first to rise after the meal.

McCarty departed somewhat from traditional European military proprieties in the timing of formal toasts. Under his rule, toasts to the president of the United States and the Air Force chief of staff are proposed at the beginning of the meal. The older traditions call for the toast at the end of the session.

Perhaps the former Portland, Ore., attorney had in mind that under anybody's rules, nobody is allowed to smoke until after the toats.

There should be a 20-minute "rest period" between the main course and dessert, he said.

The "dining-in" tradition gradually has died out in the U.S. military services as military life, once confined largely to isolated garrisons, has become more a part of a community. Wives and dependents now take a prominent part in festivities at officers clubs.

McCarty's "dining-in" instructions have no connection with an earlier-publicized Air Force pamphlet covering such things as the mixing of martinis.

Nixon Farm Plan Still Under Wraps

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon apparently is going to keep his new farm program under wraps until the Republican National Convention platform committee meets in July.

Nixon is reported to have told interested Republicans he feels bound to support the Eisenhower administration program in this session of Congress.

He is said to have added that he has no intention of permitting Democrats to start shooting at any policy differences he may have with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson until he comes within hailing distance of the presidential nomination he expects to get at the convention.

One of the obvious reasons why Nixon is reluctant to go into North Dakota to campaign for GOP Gov. John E. Davis in a special June 28 senatorial election is that he would be certain to face questions there on whether he backs Benson's lower price support ideas.

Nixon's Republican friends are convinced the vice president is veering away from the Benson formula. But they don't know much about what he may come up with. Publicly, he has said only that he is aiming at a program which would give farmers their full share of prosperity without sacrificing their independence to the government.

Nixon was said to have been disappointed recently when former Rep. Clifford R. Hope of Kansas turned down an invitation to head a committee to draft definite proposals. Hope, a former chairman of the House Agriculture Committee who disagrees with Benson's policies, was said to have agreed to act only as a part time adviser.

OPPOSITION RISING

Castro Suffers Grave Headache

HAVANA (AP) — Opposition from inside and outside Cuba appeared Saturday to be giving Prime Minister Fidel Castro his gravest political headache since he came to power in January of 1959.

While most Cubans enjoyed a three-day Easter holiday at beaches or at home, advices from eastern Cuba said Castro is trudging muddy Oriente Province in pursuit of a guerrilla band.

The band of about 50 men is led by Manuel Beaton, a former captain in Castro's revolutionary army. He escaped from Havana military prison and took to the mountains of eastern Cuba where Castro launched his own rebellion.

The pro-Castro newspaper La Calle said a band of youths who hoped to join Beaton tried to raid a police post in Havana's suburbs to obtain arms but were beaten off. Four youths were reported arrested.

Castro's military agents were reported pressing a sweeping roundup of persons suspected of cooperating with the anti-Castro movements. Military intelligence says these movements are being directed from abroad.

The implication is that the anti-Castro forces are getting help from such areas as Florida, where there are many Cuban exiles.

Cuban officials declined to comment either on the progress of the roundup or the pursuit of Beaton. There was no indication of the number under arrest.

The normal practice is for agents to seize a great number of persons, then release those to whom they are unable to trace any anti-Castro activity.

Regular troops are chasing Beaton, who was born in the eastern mountains and knows the country well. He once served as Castro's guide. Rains in the mountains made the going slow.

Revolucion, newspaper of Castro's revolutionary movement, scoffed at the idea Beaton and his band formed political opposition to Castro. It dismissed Beaton as a mere fugitive from military justice. Beaton is wanted for the killing of Maj. Christino Noranjo last fall. Beaton insisted he was framed.

While there is a news blackout on the operations against Beaton, the average Cuban in Havana semeed to be well informed on the situation. Pro Castro Cubans were taking a grave view of events in Oriente Province.

Revolucion dropped Castro's name from the list of those scheduled to speak at Monday's inaugural session of the Confederation of Tourist Organizations of Latin America.

A convention headquarters spokesman said he still expected Castro to speak. But it appeared likely Monday will find Castro still in Oriente Province.

About 600 travel agents are registered for the convention. The spokesman said there will be about 1,000 on hand from 18 Latin American countries, plus observers from the United States, Portugal, Spain, Italy, Germany, Canada and Israel.

Independent newspapers published a Washington dispatch quoting French diplomatic sources as saying Cuba will buy an unannounced number of Soviet built MIG jet fighters from Czechoslovakia. One Cuban unofficial source said the deal was part barter of sugar and part cash.

This story has been kicking around Havana many weeks, but no responsible source will confirm it. There are reports that MIGs already have arrived and are assembled at a secret base in central Cuba for a spectacular showing in Cuba's May Day celebration.

IN MIAMI

Deaf Youth Denies Killing Hotel Maid

MIAMI (UPI)—Lip reading his interrogators and replying with words he cannot hear himself, a 16-year-old deaf honor student Saturday repeated denials that he killed a Miami hotel maid.

Police submitted Harry Lee Mundy III, runaway member of a prominent Florida family, to a lie detector test to repeat his story of how he found hotel maid Martha Nagy, 45, dying in his hotel room Friday.

She had been stabbed more than 20 times and accused Mundy as her assailant before she died.

Mundy, arrested in Fort Lauderdale, Fla., several hours after the maid's body was found, first told his story to Miami police Friday night. Detectives would disclose only the bare outline of his story. Then he denied the killing.

But Mundy's sister Sandra, 21, who says she understands his halting speech better than anyone, said he told her this story

"I dropped a glass in the bathroom and it broke on the floor. After I broke the glass, I went out into the corridor, attracted the maid's attention and, with gestures, showed her what happened.

"She went into the bathroom to pick up the glass, and I went down to the lobby. In about a half hour I went back to my room. The maid was lying on the floor all bloody. I turned her over and saw she was alive. She opened her eyes and stared at me.

"I was frightened. I had blood on my hands and clothes, and I knew no one would understand if I told what had happened.

"I went back to the lobby and tried to tell a porter there was trouble in my room. But he didn't understand me. I went out of the hotel and got into a taxi and just rode around.

"We passed the hotel after about a half hour and there were a lot of police cars there. I left the taxi, got a car and headed south. Then I turned around and went back to Fort Lauderdale."

The manager of a Fort Lauderdale apartment recognized Mundy when the youth rented an apartment, and called police.

His mother, Mrs. John McGrath, lives in Fort Lauderdale. His father, H. L. Mundy Jr., lives in St. Petersburg.

The boy was an honor roll student at Kentucky Military Institute, which has winter quarters in Venice. He was reported missing last month when cadets boarded airplanes to fly to the school's Kentucky grounds.

Martha Raye Out Of Touch With H'Wood

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Martha Raye, for years one of Hollywood's top comediennes, says she's lost touch with Filmland since moving to Miami Beach and becoming a nightclub owner.

"I don't know anything about Hollywood anymore," she said. "It's all new to me.

"These days, I only come out here to do a TV show once in awhile," she explained. "And, then I rehearse, do the program, and head back to Florida the next day. My daughter and business are there so I don't have any reason to stay in Hollywood.

"The only time I get together with my old movie friends is when they go to Florida on fishing trips or vacations."

Martha, who hasn't made a movie in more than 10 years, sat with her poddle dog between rehearsals of an appearance on Steve Allen's TV show Monday night.

The popular laughgetter was her old self, exchanging quips with Steve's gang and guest star Charles Laughton. And, the famous Raye holler was in good form.

Talking about lack of comediennes around show business these days, Martha said, "They've always been scarce.

"Girls don't lean to comedy like men do," she claimed. "They never did."

"I don't go on the road anymore," she said, curling her upper lip in the famous Raye expression of digust. "I've had enough of that.

"With the operation I have now down in Florida, I can spend more time with my 16-year-old daughter."

Rock, Roll Fading Fast

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Like a limp horse, rock and roll seems to be fading fast in the stretch and bandleader Les Brown sees a return of big dance orchestras to the nation's airwaves and ballrooms.

"Radio stations are starting to play tunes recorded by big bands again," said Les, sneaking a glance at his watch as the hour to tee off on a golf date approached.

"Disc jockeys seem to have gotten away from rock and roll, rhythm and blues and just plain lousy singers," he opined. "I think it's because a lot of that stuff was connected with the recent payola scandals.

"Some listeners might think deejays are getting paid to play it," he said.

Brown's orchestra provides music for Steve Allen's TV show, also traveling around the nation filling dance dates.

"I think there's more interest in dance bands now than there was in 1947-48," he opined.

Going back to the late 1930s when swing was at its peak, Les reminisced about such bands as Benny Goodman, the Dorsey Brothers and others. He even sees a big band resurgence that'll match those years.

"There are new bands coming out now," he said, "like Gerry Mulligan, Sy Zentner, Urbie Green and Terry Gibbs.

"As soon as one of them hits big, it'll start a whole new cycle again just like Benny Goodman did in the 30s. When one band hits, it brings the others along with it."

Les pointed out that big bands like his are still benefiting from the rage for swing that filled the nation's ballrooms not too many years ago.

"We play country clubs a lot now," he said. "Many of the guys running those places were going to school in the 30s and 40s and they want a swing band."

Navy On Patrol Despite Threats By Red China

(EDITOR'S NOTE: In the past 18 months, Communist China has issued nearly 100 "serious warnings" against U.S. naval and air operations in the Formosa area. What does it mean? Is space threatened? What do American military commanders say? The following dispatch describes an almost forgotten cold war skirmish.)

By ALBERT E. KAFF

TAIPEI, Formosa (UPI) —The U.S. Navy remains on normal patrol in the western Pacific despite nearly 100 warnings from Communist China to stay out of Red-claimed waters.

The U.S. Seventh Fleet has ordered no changes in patrol routes as a result of almost 100 Peiping warnings which date back to late 1958, Vice Admiral Roland N. Smoot told United Press International.

Smoot, commander of the U.S. Taiwan Defense Command and senior American military officer in Nationalist China, said American warships have been sailing the same basic patrol routes in the western Pacific since 1952, six years before the Communist warnings started.

"We operate in international waters," Smoot said.

During the 1958 Quemoy artillery duel, the Red Chinese foreign ministry issued what it called its first "serious warning" against U.S. intrusion into Communist territorial waters.

The warnings are so routine they are rarely mentioned now in Formosa's newspapers.

Peiping's warnings, issued against both American planes and ships, are based on the claim by the Communist bloc of nations that territorial waters extend 12 miles from shore.

The United States recognized only three miles of territorial waters but proposed six miles as a compromise in international negotiations now underway in Geneva.

Peiping warnings do not pinpoint the location of an American ship or plane at the time of the charged violation. But the general locations broadcast by Red China indicate generally correct observations of U.S. naval movements.

U.S. military officials say the Communists have never fired a shot against American vessels to back up their warnings.

Some officials believe that Peiping's warnings may be nothing more than propaganda.

Pheasants

LONDON (AP) — A couple of pheasants joined the Partridge family here recently at a price of $24,000. S. E. Partridge bought a pair of rose colored, Chinese porcelain pheasants at Sotheby's, the London art dealers. The price is believed to be a record for such a sale.

FOR CHILDREN'S CODE GROUP

Mississippi Senate Balks Over Money

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The Mississippi Senate balked Friday at appropriating money for the children's code commission after some lawmakers noted funds helped finance state representation at the White House Conference on Youth and Children.

The $50,000 measure was the only one turned down by the Senate as lawmakers approved almost 67 million dollars in appropriations to operate state agencies for the biennium beginning July 1.

The children's code commission works with youth courts and the welfare department of the state to protest the interests of children.

The vote was 13-12 against the measure, which would have needed 25 votes — two-thirds of the total membership — to pass. The measure failed after senators questioned Sen. Earl Evans, chairman of the finance committee, about what the commission did.

Evans said, "I know what you want to know. Yes, it helped send delegates to the White House conference and they heard a lot of socialistic talk."

The measure was kept alive on a motion to reconsider the vote.

The small vote came as many lawmakers missed the rare Friday session designed to clear up the logjam of bills awaiting action. The 3 finance measures passed before senators quit until 2 p.m. Monday brought to almost 70 million the amount of money appropriated.

The state budget for the next two years is 269 million. About 130 million in bills has passed the House, which did not meet Friday.

Largest of the money bills passed Friday gave $23,250,000 for homestead exemptions. The state mental hospital at Whitfield got $7,584,972, while the junior colleges will share $4,294,112 and $4,128,232 was earmarked for payments on the state's bonded indebtedness.

Other appropriations included $3,800,000 for the board of health, $3,500,000 for the state textbook board and $3,000,000 for the University of Mississippi teaching hospital.

The state penitentiary got $2,469,000, University Medical School $2,550,000, the State Tax Commission $2,913,000, East Mississippi hospital $1,850,000 and Ellisville state school $1,450,000.

Other measures passed would:

Permit political subdivisions to lease or sell community hospitals.

Place a fine of $500 on conviction for refusing to yield a party line.

Place caterers in cities of over 20,000 population subject to privilege taxes.

Reduce the amusement tax on aquarium admissions from 10 to 3 per cent.

Make it possible for Biloxi and Harrison County to develop Deer Island as an offshore playground. The Deer Island bill authorized Biloxi and the county to set up a commission to supervise development and construct streets, a bridge and harbor facilities. A four-mill tax was authorized to finance the work.

Adenauer Said To Have Given Israel Pledge

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP) — Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is reported to have given Israel a secret pledge of a long-term, 500-million-dollar loan after West Germany's reparations program ends in 1964.

This dramatic postscript to the Nazi persecution of the Jews was reported Saturday by an authoritative Israeli informant in London.

The West German Foreign Ministry said last month the subject had not been discussed. But a spokesman said he could not tell if it had been raised when Adenauer met Israeli Premier David Ben-Gurion in New York last month.

Western diplomats have been startled by the boldness of Adenauer's reported undertaking.

If it is approved by the West German government, the diplomats considered it would certainly cause considerable difficulties in Bonn's relations with the Arab nations. The Arab countries still are technically at war with Israel. The Cairo press already has criticized Adenauer for meeting with Ben Gurion.

The big loan would help the Jewish state cushion its economy after 1964, when the 12-year program of West German reparations totaling 780 million dollars—ends.

These reparations were given in an attempt to compensate the Jewish people for their losses and suffering at the hands of the Nazis.

Ben-Gurion was said to have argued Israel needs new economic aid because it is surrounded by a hostile Arab world that has been getting Soviet help.

The informant said the Chancellor showed an awareness of his nation's obligation to help the Jewish state, especially because of its stand against Soviet pressure.

Festival

CANNES, France (AP) — The Cannes International Film Festival is installing a six-language simultaneous translation system to give audiences a linguistic choice of movie dialogue through tiny transistor radios equipped with headsets. In the past audiences could hear only original sound tracks in the language of each producing country.

Merchants

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — Thousands of Chinese merchants have signed up to leave Indonesia for Red China because of the government's ban on foreign merchants in small towns. The Pia News Agency said 30,000 want to leave North Sumatra. The Antara Agency reported 10,200 want to leave Indonesian Borneo.

LEGISLATORS

Race With Time Hits Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The race against time is on as state legislators tackle major issues before the final gavel sounds.

The final date has not been set. Gov. Ross Barnett has predicted April 28 and several lawmakers think it will be in the first week of May.

Before the senators and representatives go home, they have a mass of important legislation to clear up.

State appropriations will have top priority with a budget set for 267 million. The House is about half way to this mark while the Senate has considered one-fourth.

Teacher pay raises, a delicate and pressurized issue, will go to a joint House-Senate conference.

Barnett is backing a $300 raise as passed by the Senate and the Mississippi Education Assn. is behind a $600 raise passed by the House.

Hundreds of school teachers in the state are waiting the outcome of the bill before signing contracts for another year. The eventual bill could have considered effect on whether some teachers stay in Mississippi.

On the other hand, Barnett has threatened to veto any measure which provides raises over the $300 raise he is supporting.

The local option liquor bill is still hot, but will be cooled off in a joint conference next week. Conferees normally meet in secret, so the public won't be reading much about proceedings until the committee makes its report.

The House has called for a local option election to let the people decide whether they want package store sales. The Senate passed a bill to allow sale by the drink. The outcome will likely be a compromise that has a chance in both houses.

A bitter fight looms in the Senate on four workmen's compensation law bills.

The measures face rough sledding as the Judiciary Committee has turned them down. Proponents claim they have enough power to override the attempt.

Reorganiation of the Game and Fish Commission faces Senate action, and administraton forces say the bill will pass.

However, commission director Rex McRaney has resigned in an attempt to save the present structure of the group and to save the jobs of personnel working for the commission.

The four additional appointments provided by the bill and two upcoming expirations would give Barnett control of the commission.

Old Cup

Love Trouble

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Virginia Cerejo complained to her brother Maximino that Jose Ferreira was pestering her. Maximino had Virginia make a date with Jose, but the brother dressed up in Virginia's clothes and kept the rendezvous himself. When Jose leaned over to steal a kiss, police reported Maximino whipped out a knife and lopped off the ardent suitor's ear. Maximino's friends jumped out of the bushes and beat up Jose, who now is recovering in the hospital.

ONCE NEARLY HUSHED

Rockefeller Talk Growing Louder During Week

WASHINGTON (AP) — Talk of Rockefeller for president, once hushed almost to a whisper, grew a little louder this week.

It still wasn't loud enough to shake the general opinion that Vice President Richard M. Nixon has effectively sewed up the Republican nomination.

Nor was the noise made by supporters of New York's Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller anything like as loud as the sometimes exuberant, sometimes angry cries of Democratic hopefuls campaigning in West Virginia.

But politicians found the GOP situation more interesting than it has been. For example:

Sen. Henry Dworshak R-Idaho predicted: "There'll be some excitement at the convention, you wait and see. Not from Rockefeller himself, but from Rockefeller supporters."

Returns from the Illinois primary this week, in which Nixon was unopposed in presidential preference voting, gave him a much smaller total than was won the same day by Sen. Paul H. Douglas, Democrat running unopposed for renomination.

Nixon didn't campaign in Illinois. Douglas did.

Sen. Barry Goldwater R-Ariz. said the outcome in Illinois suggests that maybe Nixon had better buckle down and come out fighting.

On the other hand, Sen. Everett M. Dirksen R-Ill. said: "I think his present technique is pretty good. He's getting around but not slugging too much."

The Denver Post, which supported Eisenhower in 1952 and 1956, editorialized that Rockefeller might not win, but he'd be a stronger candidate than Nixon.

A Rockefeller backer in New York headed a group which sent out some letters to big shot Republicans saying too many Americans consider Nixon synthetic, opportunistic and a politician rather than statesman. Dump Nixon, was the idea.

Rockefeller quickly deplored "this personal attack upon the vice president." A few days later, when asked whether he had any doubt that the Republicans would nominate Nixon, Rockefeller replied: "I don't want to discuss it." He still hasn't endorsed Nixon.

For the Democrats, West Virginia provided a new battleground and also much speculation on the religious issue.

The Democratic primary there won't be held until May 10. Its outcome won't have any binding effect on how the state's 25 convention votes are cast. Yet the fight was on, hot and heavy.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, bouncing back from the defeat he took in Wisconsin, toured the mountain hollows and coal mines with great gusto, pinning campaign buttons on coat lapels and overall bibs. Once he even said "I felt like Caesar—one long triumphant procession."

Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts, laboring under the fact that he is a Roman Catholic asking for votes in a state that is 95 per cent Protestant, hit the bigger cities.

Kennedy complained that he wasn't bucking Humphrey alone —that backers of other presidential hopefuls were ganging up behind Humphrey to stop Kennedy.

A frontrunner, such as Kennedy is, has to expect such united opposition. He doesn't have to like it, though.

One of the candidates with known West Virginia strength, although he didn't enter the primary, is Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas.

Sen. Robert C. Byrd (D-WVa) said he was interested in Johnson's chances but "I imagine that if Kennedy were to win West Virginia, he would be very likely to get the nomination."

Johnson picked up 33 convention votes from Tennessee this week, courtesy of his old friend at Nashville, Gov. Buford Ellington. Johnson also got a good word from Sen. Spessard Holland (D-Fla) and a hint that Holland will be plugging for him as a second round choice behind Florida's favorite son, Sen. George A. Smathers.

These were possible indications that Johnson didn't drive away his badly needed Southern support by pushing the civil rights bill through the Senate.

Another Democratic candidate, Sen. Stuart Symington of Missouri, announced he'll campaign in Michigan late this month. That's a state that neither Kennedy nor Humphrey has visited yet.

Adlai Stevenson came back from a South American tour, still declaring he's not a candidate. But a lot of people remained convinced that he'd like a third crack at the presidency, since he wouldn't have to run against Eisenhower.

In a speech at the University of Virginia, Stevenson drew comparisons between Thomas Jefferson and Eisenhower. Jefferson came out an easy winner.

A racial issue cropped up in the District of Columbia where the May 3 Democratic primary contestants are Humphrey and Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon.

Morse complained he was being hurt in the district because he turned down, and Humphrey agreed to, a request for endorsement of a Negro as a member of the party's national committee. Humphrey also said he'd consider naming a Negro to the cabinet, if he were elected president.

The district's population is more than 50 per cent Negro. Both Morse and Humphrey have records agreeable to the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People.

Here's the latest Democratic delegate count: Kennedy 361½, Johnson 34, Humphrey 24, Symington 6, Stevenson 2, others 21½, uncommitted 97. These total 221 for the 1,521 convention votes, with 761 needed to win.

The individual figures are based on pledged and favorable votes and preferences expressed in Associated Press polls. The candidates claim more.

'AIR CONDITIONING'

White Is Cooler Than Most Colors

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Even if you lack the money to air condition your house this summer, you might think about painting it.

Tests by the National Paint Association confirm the long held theory that white is "cooler" than other colors.

Testing different colored paints on the roofs of miniature houses, the association found attic temperatures in a white painted house averaged 8 degrees cooler than for black. There was a maximum difference of 11 degrees on the hottest day.

Uncolored aluminum paint also reduced temperatures compared with black, but less so than white. A medium green, was less effective than the uncolored aluminum. Colored aluminum paints lowered temperatures less than the uncolored aluminum.

Regardless of summer cooling problems, the question of paint comes up sooner or later for most every home owner. He wants to know: How long does an outside paint job last?

AT LEAST FOUR YEARS

The paint and lumber associations say in a booklet: "A good white house paint properly applied over seasoned wood on a well constructed house should last at least four or five years before repainting may be necessary, tinted paints five or six years and dark-color paints six to eight years."

Too frequent painting should be avoided. Putting a new coat on before the old one has weathered sufficiently can leave too much paint on the wall and cause cracking. Sometimes northern exposures should be given one less coat than others because they get less sunshine and consequently paint there wears off slower, according to Neil B. Garlock, chief chemist of the paint association.

Paint weathers somewhat faster on horizontal surfaces, such as steps, uncovered porch floors and roofs, and on surfaces sloping at an angle such as hand rails on steps and window sills.

DRY WEATHER BEST

A long time problem of home owners in industrial and swampy area was that sulfide gases reacted with the lead in paint and caused discoloration. Most house paints today, the booklet pointed out, "contain only small amounts of white lead and in many, white lead has been entirely omitted." Substituted for lead are titanium and zinc, or a combination of the two.

The best time to paint, according to the booklet, is in clear, dry weather with the thermometer reading 40 degrees and preferably 50 or higher. Wait until morning dew or frost has evaporated.

If it has rained, it is necessary to wait until exterior wood has thoroughly dried.

With high temperatures, say 90 or more, best results may be obtained by painting those surfaces already exposed to sunlight — the "follow - the - sun - around - the - house" method.

Pilgrims Flock To Hail Easter

JERUSALEM, Easter Sunday Pilgrims flocked through the winding alleys and cobble-stone streets of old Jerusalem in the pre-dawn hours Sunday bearing lighted torches and chanted "we feast, behold the holy fire" to hail the Easter-tide.

Thousands of pilgrims greeted each other after midnight services with the traditional greeting, "Christ arose," that is answered with, "truly he is risen.

Churches filled to overflowing for the midnight services, Catholic, Protestant and Eastern orthodox, commemorating the resurrection of Christ.

Molems who do not believe nevertheless joined Christians in the joyous spirit of the feast day as bells pealed from steeples the advent of Easter and the end of the fasting period of lent.

Pilgrims, all of them vaccinated against an outbreak of smallpox in Jordon, streamed to the shrines through the mandelbaum gate separating the Israeli and Jordanian sectors of the divided city.

One thousand arrived on Friday and more Saturday to swell the throng that had been arriving during the week to follow in the footsteps of Christ.

Americans in colored sport shirts, nuns in heavy dark robes and headdresses, monks and ministers thronged the streets in 80-degree temperature to attend the services at the churches built over the generally accepted locations of Christ's last actions.

Broadcasts In 17 Languages Hit Communist

By EROY KELLER

MUNICH (UPI)—Out of a steel and concrete building here goes crackling across the Iron Curtain a barrage of broadcasts in 17 languages. Radio Liberty (RL) fights the cold war of the air waves 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

There are some 10 million privately owned radio sets in the Soviet Union and this is Radio Liberty's potential audience. It is trying to explain the Western way of life to the persons who gather around these radio sets from the Polish border to the Siberian steppes.

How many Russians listen? How are they affected by what they hear? Is Radio Liberty getting through to its listeners or is it, in effect, talking into a dead microphone.

Researchers for Radio Liberty strive constantly to measure the size of the audience inside Russia. For example, an announcer will say at the end of a particular program: "If you liked this feature please write us at Box 7, Stockholm," or "Box 49, Paris."

A flood of mail will come pouring in within a day or two, but by the end of the week Soviet authorities will have succeeded in shutting off all letters and postcards addressed to that box number. But an analysis will give a clue to the overall number of listeners, since these documents have a surprisingly even geographical distribution.

Hundreds of Soviet tourists to the Brussels World's Fair and the Vienna Youth Festival were interrogated by RL assistants. Specifically they were asked how much they and other Russians listen to Radio Liberty, BBC and the Voice of America.

Since the thaw in East - West relations following the death of Stalin, large numbers of non-Russians have been repatriated from the Soviet Union, particularly former Greek, Spanish and German prisoners of war. From these some evidences of life inside the Communist world and habits of radio listening have been obtaned.

Finally Radio Liberty researchers have continuous, systematic talks with western visitors to Russia, many of whom speak Russian fluently.

From all of this sampling, Radio Liberty has found that it does have a large audience of Soviet listeners — not only those who have radio receivers, but millions of others who go to the homes of owners of sets.

And, of course who have heard Radio Liberty at all, more than half are regular listeners, according to Max Ralis, manager of audience research and evaluation department.

WALL STREET VIEWS

Profit Outlook Appears Good

NEW YORK (AP) — The profit outlook for department stores, variety stores and grocery chains is good, an investment advisory firm said Friday.

The Value Line Investment Survey expressed confidence that this will be a good year for retail trade as a whole and that department store volume will exceed the estimated six per cent year-to-year advance in disposable income.

"If a recession should occur in 1961," said Value Line, "department store chains probably would suffer little. Earnings, which should reach their peak levels in 1960, would probably slip as pressure on profit margins mounted, but not materially unless the business decline were more severe than any experienced in the last 15 years."

Of the variety stores' prospects, the firm said: "Ambitious new store programs, expansion of merchandise lines and extension of credit selling should lead to growth in both sales and earnings over the next three to five years."

Value Line points out that the major grocery chains have steadily expanded their share of the growing retail food market and undoubtedly will continue to do so. It predicts that out of an estimated annual average of 68 billion dollars in food sales between 1963 and 1965 the grocery chains will account for about 43 per cent, compared with 37.7 per cent in 1959.

"With disposable income rising, grocery chain earnings would probably be little affected should a recession develop in 1961," according to Value Line.

The brokerage firm of Winslow, Cohu & Stetson has made a study of the recent performances of 100 stocks which it considers a good cross-section of the market as a whole. Thirty-five seemed to be going down, 42 going up and 23 were in doubt.

"The poorest acting groups," the analyst found, "are aircrafts, airlines, oils, rails, tires and steels. They show no signs of reversing their downtrends.

"Autos, chemicals and papers look as if they are reversing.

"Aluminums, business equipments, drugs, electrical equipments, coppers and tobaccos seem to have started real uptrends in March.

"Electronics, food chains and utilities are in well-established uptrend channels."

Local Bridge Tourney Set

New attendance records are expected as players from five states move into town to compete in the fifth annual Monroe Bridge Tournament.

Mrs. Otto Passman, tournament chairman, said the event will be held April 22, 23 and 24 at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club.

Among those participating will be Dr. John Fisher of Dallas, 1958 National Open Pair Champion; Charles Garbiel of Fort Worth; Nate Silverstein and Pat Connelly of Memphis, one of the best pairs in the South; Fred Berger of Natchez, acknowledged as Mississippi's leading player, and Julius Rosenblum and Lou Gurvich of New Orleans.

In addition to ten sessions of bridge, cocktail parties, dancing and a banquet for the players have been scheduled.

FOR PRESIDENTIAL

Communist Party May Run Own Man

NEW YORK (AP) — The Communist party is thinking of running a candidate of its own for president, for the first time in 20 years.

But Gus Hall, the nation's top Red, says there are "so many laws of limitation on minority parties in so many states" that a nationwide campaign may not be possible.

In New York, for example, a minority party requires 12,000 nominating signatures, including at least 50 from each of the state's 62 counties.

Communist sources say there is no clear-cut federal ban on a presidential candidate, adding that the so-called Communist Control Act of 1954 has never been tested in this connection.

Chatting in his office, Hall said the possibility of putting up a candidate was discussed at length by the party's national committee at a recent meeting in Chicago.

He said there was no opposition to the idea, but only the question of whether it technically would be possible.

"The question is not yet resolved," he said.

He did not indicate whether he or some other party official might be the candidate.

The party's last candidate for the presidency was Earl Browder, in 1940.

A Communist candidate would be accorded no chance of winning, but would be in a position to publicize the Communist line of peace, civil rights, advancement of labor and the "loosening" of monopolies.

The 49-year-old official makes his headquarters on the top floor of a three-story red brick building on W. 26th St., a short distance from Fifth Avenue.

The building bears no sign of identification except for the street number "23" in gold figures on the black front door. It is inconspicuous in a commercial area of industrial shops, wholesale display rooms and luncheonettes.

The first floor is occupied by offices of the Worker, the party's weekly newspaper, and the remainder of the structure by various Communist offices.

Hall, a former Clevelander of Finnish descent, was a lumber worker and a union organizer and served in the Navy in World War II.

He was among leading Communists convicted in 1949 on charges of conspiring to teach and advocate violent overthrow of the government. He was sentenced to five years on that charge and then to three more for jumping bail and going into hiding. He was released from prison in 1957 after serving 5½ years.

FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover calls him "an ex-convict who has openly testified that he preferred an America with a Soviet government."

The husky Hall, further described by Hoover as a "Moscow-trained, utterly ruthless Communist leader . . . a powerful, deceitful, dangerous foe of Americanism," presents a mild appearance, smiles frequently.

The forthcoming election, he said, was the central subject of the party's national committee meeting. The committee was not satisfied, he added, that the forces for peace, civil rights and labor "have the best possible candidate among those on the scene."

But the Communists, he declared, will do what they can to "strengthen these forces in the camps of Nixon, Kennedy, Humphrey and all the others."

Hall said he was not too pessimistic about the future.

"What's new," he said, "is that there is tremendous motion. The stagnant years are over. People are in motion in all fields."

He said this was reflected in the Wisconsin primary campaign, with people asking the candidates questions in all fields.

"The issues of peace and civil rights are going to have a profound effect," he sad.

Second major topic at the meeting, he said, was the Negro quest for civil rights. The party would favor legislation requiring the federal government to intervene in behalf of Negro rights, he said.

Turning to some questions—

Is the party operating in the open more than formerly?

"It is in the open to the extent that it is possible," said Hall. "We would like to operate in the open except that it would be dangerous to the jobs and positions of some members."

Why did the party lie low during the visit of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev? The party provided no welcoming demonstratons. A natural surmise would be that it did not want to emphasize publicly its ties with the Kremlin.

Hall puts it this way: "We did not want to distract from the central problem of the visit—world peace and better understanding between our country and the Soviet Union."

Tragic End Written To Love Story

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—A tragic ending was written Friday to a love story that began in 1948 when two youngsters met while living in a Dallas orphanage.

Alton Richard Adcock wrote the final chapter when he killed his wife and teen-age sweetheart, Thelma, 22, about midnight.

The husband, 25, held on a murder charge, admitted that he used a shotgun to slay his pretty wife.

"I couldn't help it. Everything I had ever dreamed of was gone, shattered," exclaimed Adcock as he told of the shooting.

Adcock said he was only sorry he didn't kill himself too.

This would have left their son, Kyle, 3, an orphan like his parents.

"I don't care," Adcock said. "My son will never love me any way after this."

Adcock, a furniture salesman, gave this account of the incident:

He returned to the couple's home after a business trip through western Texas.

"Thelma didn't kiss me, and I thought something was wrong.

"We started talking—in fact, we started arguing.

"That's when she told me that she was in love with another man.

"She told me she had been having relations with him and wanted a divorce.

"It hit me something terrible. I could see everything I had ever wanted shattered and broken.

"I was an orphan and had always wanted a home. We had worked, and worked hard, to get one.

"We owned all our furniture, we had two cars, and we had money in the bank. This was the life that I had always dreamed of. I've never been happier."

Adcock said his only thought was "to kill this thing that has ruined our lives."

Adcock drove to a friend's house got a shotgun and went to a tavern to pick up his sister-in-law, Bessie Mae Dancer, 17.

On the way home, he stopped at a drive-in grocery.

"I don't know anything about shotguns," Adcock said. "I just walked in to the grocery, threw $2 on the counter, grabbed a handful of shells and walked out."

On returning home, Adcock said he told his sister-in-law to take care of his son.

"I left the gun in the car, and I don't think Bessie Mae knew I had it," said Adcock.

Adcock ordered his wife to get into the car.

Adcock said he drove several blocks and stopped the car.

"I told her to get out of the car. When I got out, I got the shotgun.

"She told me to think of our boy. All I could think about was that other man who had been seducing her.

"She was looking right into my eyes, when I shot her.

"Thelma said, 'Please forgive me, Richard,' as she fell to the ground."

Father Of Local Woman Dies, Last Rites Scheduled

HORNBECK (Special) — B. Lloyd Palmer, 83, died Saturday at his home in Hornbeck. He was the father of Mrs. Ralph E. Baldwin of Monroe.

Funeral services were scheduled for 2 p.m. Sunday at the Hornbeck Baptist Church.

Besides Mrs. Baldwin, Mr. Palmer is survived by his widow and a son, Houston L. Palmer, Beaumont, Texas.

Red Cross Reports On Disasters

NEW YORK (AP)—The American Red Cross said Saturday the United States in the last 10 years underwent the most disastrous decade in its history at the hands of such calamities as floods, storms and fires.

In a 24-page booklet compiled by the organization's Disaster Service, the 1950s in America were compared with "the era when polar glaciers wrenched and twisted the topography to produce the hills and valleys we know today."

"Nature struck with greater vengeance and destructive force during the period (1950s) than during any other decade in American history," the service claimed.

The booklet—titled "The Fifties counted that these events destroyed 29,000 homes, damaged another 600,000 dwellings and made 1,600,000 Americans homeless.

The service pointed out that during the period Red Cross volunteers and staff members conducted about 3,100 relief projects in which more than 1½ million persons were provided with temporary shelter, food and clothing during emergency periods immediately following disasters.

FOR 'LITTLE' INVESTORS

Treasury Eyeing New-Type Move

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Treasury is considering a move that would give "little" investors — individuals, fraternal lodges, small pension funds—a greater opportunity to put their money in U.S. government securities.

Under study is a proposal to permit anyone to buy for cash securities offered by the Treasury to refinance maturing issues.

The unvarying rule has been that only holders of the maturing issues could purchase a so-called refunding issue. The United States probably is the only country to follow this practice.

Between now and Dec. 31 the Treasury must borrow 25 billion to 30 billion dollars just to pay off maturing issues. These refinancings, or rollovers, will occur in May, August and November.

MAY OPEN DOORS

In one or more of them—or none—the Treasury may throw open its books to all comers. Or it may reserve the exchange securities for holders of the maturing securities—also giving them the usual alternative of demanding cash.

Main reason for cash refundings would be to curb market speculation in maturing issues. In a period of rising bond prices, speculators may eagerly seek the old issue so they can convert it to the new one, which they expect to sell in the future at a profit.

A major result—one welcome to the Treasury — would also be to bring more "little" investors into government securities.

Treasury officials have found that many people and groups do not know how to buy maturing securities, are timid about venturing into the public market, or are prevented by charter or law from doing so. Moreover, buying a new issue directly from the Treasury involves no commission cost but going into the market does.

NON-PROFESSIONALS LIMITED

Non - professional investors are generally limited to the Treasury's cash borrowings—financings conducted apart from the rollover of maturing issues. These investors include fraternal groups, school pension funds, estates and credit unions.

The Treasury likes to get them to buy securities because they hold them for a long time and because their funds represent genuine savings, as distinguished from bank-created credit.

Many investors and speculators would like to know if the six-billion dollar refinancing of three issues maturing in May will be on a cash basis. So far, the Treasury has said only that it is a possibility.

If speculation in the three issues begins to develop, the Treasury might spike it with word that the rollover will be for cash. That would wipe out the exchange value of the maturing securities.

Distribution Of Charts Set

In the interest of public health, the Monroe and West Monroe Jaycees will soon complete and distribute some 20,000 poison counterdose charts.

Project chairman James W. Moore Jr. said that a study at a local hospital showed an average of one poisoning case a week over a six month period.

Information for the charts was made available by the American Druggist. Distribution will begin sometime next week.

CYNTHIA KENTON

Scholarship At NSC Won By Area Girl

MANGHAM (Special) — Cynthia Kenton has been notified that she was one of twenty Louisiana high school students selected to participate in Northwestern State College's Program in Chemistry sponsored by the National Science Foundation, which will be held June 7 through August 6.

This program is designed to provide the superior high school student with educational experiences in science and mathematics beyond that normally available in high school courses. It will permit superior students to take advantage of the resources of some 137 cooperating college, universities and nonprofit research organizations, through special programs featuring classroom work, laboratory exercises, and field trips centered around one or more areas of science.

The training will be based upon participation by the students in advanced laboratory investigations under the guidance of scientists.

CHEMISTRY STUDY

These students will be re-enrolled in a nine weeks program of study in chemistry consisting of six weeks of course and laborotary work and of three additional weeks of junior research.

Dr. Alan H. Crosby, Associate Professor of Chemistry and Head of Department of Physical Science at Northwestern State College is the director. Instructions will be given in the new Chemistry-Physics Building where the participants will have sole use of a large air-condition laboratory. Students will occupy dormitory areas used to house general college students. The recreation facilities of the college will be available to all participants.

Appointments to the program were determined by the sponsoring institutions, and the selection of participants was based upon scholastic ability scientific motivation and the results of a battery of tests administered at the college on April 6.

Cynthia, a junior at Mangham High School, is an "A" student; a member of Mu Sigma Honor Society; the Future Homemakers of America; the Senior 4-H Club and is a member of the Dragon Annual Staff.

She is a member and the assistant pianist of the Hebert Metrodist Church and the immediate past president and pianist of the Hebert Methodist Youth Fellowship. Her science instructor is Miss Virgie Evans and her parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Kenton of Hebert.

Farmerville To Get New Post Office

FARMERVILLE (Special) — Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield announced Wednesday that a contract has been signed for the construction and lease to the Post Office Department of a new post office building in Farmerville.

The successful bidder was C. Scott Yeager Jr., 201 Lee St., Alexandria. Ground breaking and construction of the new post office is expected to begin immediately with completion due approximately Dec. 1. The lease will run 10 years, with renewal options up to 10 years.

The modern post office will be located at the corner of Washington and Franklin Streets. It will provide 2,800 square feet of interior space, an outside loading platform, and ample hard - surfaced space for parking and trucking meneuvering.

Specifications call for new modern lighting and equipment, including a low, open patron - service counter.

Summerfield pointed out that the postal facility to be built in Farmerville is typcal of many others going up elsewhere throughout the country.

He also stated that the new post office in Farmerville, one of 1400 new post offices to be built in fiscal 1960, will remain under private ownership while leased to the Federal Government, and hence will pay local real estate taxes to bear its share of the cost of local government.

Beauty Queen Chosen In West Carroll

Miss Hatten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Audis Hatten of Oak Grove, will next enter the Miss Louisiana contest at Lake Providence July 4.

Miss Marion Davis, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Davis of Forrest, was named first runner-up. The second runner - up was Miss LaDan McGaha, 20, granddaughter of Mrs. Fred Williams of Oak Grove.

Vickie Lynn Irby, 4, was named "Little Miss West Carroll" at the ceremonies. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Willie Irby. Second place was taken by Debra Lynn Pollard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Pollard, while third place honors went to Angela Barnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Barnett.

GREEK FESTIVAL REOPENING

NAUPLIA, Greece (UPI)—The famed Epidaurus Festival featuring performances of classic tragedies and comedies will open here June 18 and continue through mid-July.

Performances will be given each weekend in a centuries-old open-air theater which seats 17,000 persons. The 1960 program will include Europides' tragedies "Phoenissae" and "Mad Hercules," and the comedies "The Difficult" by Menander and "The Archanians" by Aristophanes. All performances will be given by the Greek National Theater Company.

INSTITUTE WORKING

Kinsey's Study Is Continuing

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — The Kinsey reports—first penetrating look at U. S. sex habits—are probing still deeper into modern sexual problems.

Their newest project: how and where human sex activity runs afoul of society and the law.

More than a decade has passed since the first Kinsey report shocked the nation with its findings:

One of two American husbands has sex relations outside of his marriage.

Eighty-five per cent of the women and 95 per cent of the men could be jailed one time or another for some element of their sexual behavior.

When Dr. Alfred Kinsey died in 1956 of a heart attack, he left the Institute for Sex Research to carry on his work. One of its purposes:

To provide an accurate picture of how people behave sexually to aid in the realistic formulation of sexual values and restraints, and in general to aid law-making bodies, psychiatrists, sociologists, clergymen and other scholars of human behavior.

The institute's small staff is now at work on the Indiana University campus, sifting through 2,800 prisoner interviews for the fourth report: Sex Offenders.

"One of the problems is that the law is so constituted that a great deal of human sexual activity is illegal," explains Dr. Paul H. Gebhard, institute director.

"In consequence, many of the people who have been fined or incarcerated on sex charges will probably prove to be very much like the average individual."

For instance, most states have laws forbidding intercourse with underage females, whether they consent or not. This is statutory rape, and every prison holds persons convicted on this charge.

However, it is ridiculous to study deeply the background of a man whose offense was intercourse with his underage fiancee, Dr. Gebhard says.

The new report, due sometime next year, covers minor and serious offenses—ranging from rape and offenses against children to peeping.

Women have been eliminated from the new report, largely because most female offenses have a commercial nature, such as prostitution, and the rest are relatively rare.

"As a result there are whole classes of sexual offense that are male monopolies," Dr. Gebhard notes. "Take peeping, for instance.

"If you went to the police of any large city and asked them how many female peepers they had caught, they'd laugh in your face. They probably never heard of such a thing."

In the same respect, you seldom hear of a female dressing in male clothes, or of a female who wants to change her sex to male.

One reason is that the average women hasn't as strong a sex drive as the average man, Dr. Gebhard says, and, although there are exceptions, the average woman never reaches the peak of sex interest attained by the average male.

The average woman also is stimulated by visual means, if at all — while the male is easily aroused by photographs of drawings on sexual themes.

The discrepancy between male and female sex drives is just one of the problems society faces when it tries to regulate sex.

The discrepancy itself is responsible for most of the acute sex problems, particularly in the early years of married life when it is greatest, Dr. Gebhard says.

Sometimes infidelity is a product of this. He notes that physically and emotionally, humans are not given to taking only one mate. He explains it this way:

Monogamy is a cultural condition we've chosen to impose on ourselves and in consequence there is a considerable amount of extramarital activity.

Monogamy is generally easier for women than for men. But even women have polygamous tendencies cropping up in dreams or fantasies.

Societies have taken different roads to control the problems of sex among their members. Thus few prohibitions apply to all mankind.

Premarital intercourse, taboo in the United States, is socially acceptable in many European countries and elsewhere.

And sometimes societies make trouble for themselves in the already difficult area of human drives and emotions.

"Take our own society, for example," Dr. Gebhard says.

"There's this great stress on physical beauty. Look at the inescapable advertising that's being pounded in on our female population day in and day out.

"Be beautiful. Dress stylishly. Wear this perfume. Use this soap. And the whole emphasis is to be beautiful—that is be sexually attractive. Adopt the mannerisms of the latest Hollywood stars.

"So on the one hand, society is strongly encouraging sexual attractiveness. But when it comes to the logical conclusion of sexual attractiveness—sexual behavior — then society suddenly reverses itself and says: No, no.

"So we have this peculiar situation of encouragement on one hand and repression on the other. It's almost schizophrenic.

"Or you see it again: society wants to discourage and repress homosexuality. And yet, through its very repression of heterosexual activity, it's encouraging homosexuality."

After the sex offender study, the institute has many new lines to investigate, depending on financial support.

STEEL OR FABRIC?

NEW YORK (AP) — Steel with polka-dot or multi-colored patterns?

It's likely in the near future, according to "Steelways," publication of American Iron and Steel Institute, which predicts that steel researchers also will devise a surface that will have the feel of fabric.

The magazine says the development could create a new world of steel designs for household appliances, offices, buildings and automobiles.

"Steelways" predicts that it may become impossible in the future to identify steel at first glance or touch.

For mixers, blenders and similar electrical appliances, the elementary rules for care usually are washing away food shortly after use, and drying with a soft cloth before storing.

'ECONOMIC DOPE PUSHERS'

Businessmen Tired Of Label

NEW YORK (UPI) — Business men who sell goods on installment credit are getting fed up wih being called "economic dope pushers" who cause inflation.

Because installment buying of automobiles, appliances, furnishings and other merchandise has soared, there's a campaign in Congress to pass more laws regulating installment loans. Most of the bills, like that of Sen. Paul Douglas (D-Ill.), aim particularly at making loan companies and merchants spell out in advance all the details of the cost of installment loans.

Lots of merchants favor this. The National Association of Manufacturers, the American Industrial Bankers Association and the American Bankers Association are against it. They say it would put a big burden on business and fear it would put the federal government in a position to bring about sudden halts and restraints in installment credit that would injure the national economy. And they offer figures to show installment credit is not inflationary.

Installment loans to consumers jumped 403-million dollars in February—the latest month for which figures are available.

There's no question that some people can no more resist drowning themselves in a sea of easy installment credit than an addict can resist heroin. And some installment sellers press loans on hapless victims with the remorselessness of a narcotics pusher and "pack" the financing charges with the same ruthless audacity. Sometimes even supposedly reputable dealers and finance houses aren't above padding—even doubling — insurance premiums and other items in the whole finance charge and pocketing the extra profit.

The public's ignorance of how installment financing works still is appalling: even well-informed people forget that a basic 6 per cent interest rate on a monthly installment account is a true interest rate of nearly 12 per cent a year and that other fees may run the total finance charge as high as 28 per cent a year on the sales price—although that's way above average.

"But the argument that installment credit is inflationary doesn't hold water," insists President B. F. Wonderlic of General Finance Corp. of Chicago. Wonderlic told a recent consumer credit conference at Washington University in St. Louis the truth is that the margin between the amount of money people have in savings and the increase in consumer credit actually has widened in the past five years by round 10 billion dollars.

We had a $5,400,000,000 jump in consumer credit in 1955, Wonderlic said, but in that year the Securities and Exchange Commission estimated Americans net financial savings at only $7,100,000,000 so the jump in consumer debt amounted to a potential charge against 76 per cent of the people's savings.

Last year we had another $5,400,000,000 rise in consumer debt—but this time, the SEC estimated net savings at $16,500,000,000—so the rise in consumer debt only represented a potential charge of 33 per cent against savings.

Wonderlic also pointed out that while auto installment loans were easier to get in 1958 and 1959 than ever before, auto sales were nowhere near record levels either year. Indeed, 1958 was almost the auto industry's worst year in a decade, even though down payments were as low as 10 per cent and financing averaged 36 months.

PHOTOGRAPHER FOILS THIEF

HARTFORD, Conn. (UPI) — After a camera was stolen from his automobile, Hartford Times photographer Ellery G. Kington telephoned camera shops on his mobile phone as he drove back to town.

He warned that the thief might try to pawn his camera, and 10 minutes later received a call that a suspect was in a shop. Kington drove to the store, identified his camera and the man was arrested.

Solon Tells Views On Insurance

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George D. Aiken (R-Vt.) said Saturday he believes President Eisenhower will be under "great pressure" from the country and Congress to approve some form of health insurance for the aged.

And he suggested that if the White House didn't back some plan of its own it would be forced to accept "something worse."

Aiken, GOP liberal who has tangled with the administration on other matters, said he did not think Eisenhower was as yet "buying the idea" of the need for such health aid.

"Or if he's buying it," he added in an interview, "he's not buying it very fast."

Speaker Sam Rayburn (Tex.) showed that the Democratic leadership definitely was "buying" the idea when he gave his approval Wednesday to a compromise plan to provide hospitaliation through the social security taxes.

The modification the speaker agreed to help push would be a trimmed-down version of the health insurance system proposed by Rep. Aime J. Forand (D-R.I.) but stalled in the House Ways and Means Committee.

Rayburn agreed to try to rally split Democrats on the committee in favor of the compromise. The House group will meet again next Wednesday to take up the issue.

Aiken said a "substantial" number of Republicans in Congress have expressed interest in enactment of aid-to-the-aged legislation—enough so that they would help assure congressional action.

The "concern" around the country over the issue, he said, plus the fact that this is an election year, almost guarantees that the problem "can't be submerged."

Aiken said that when an administration backer in the Senate told him he had to be a "good soldier" and oppose such legislation, his reply was: "A dead soldier is no good."

Aiken has backed with seven other Senate Republicans a voluntary program of medical insurance for the aged, financed by federal and state funds as well as by individual contributions.

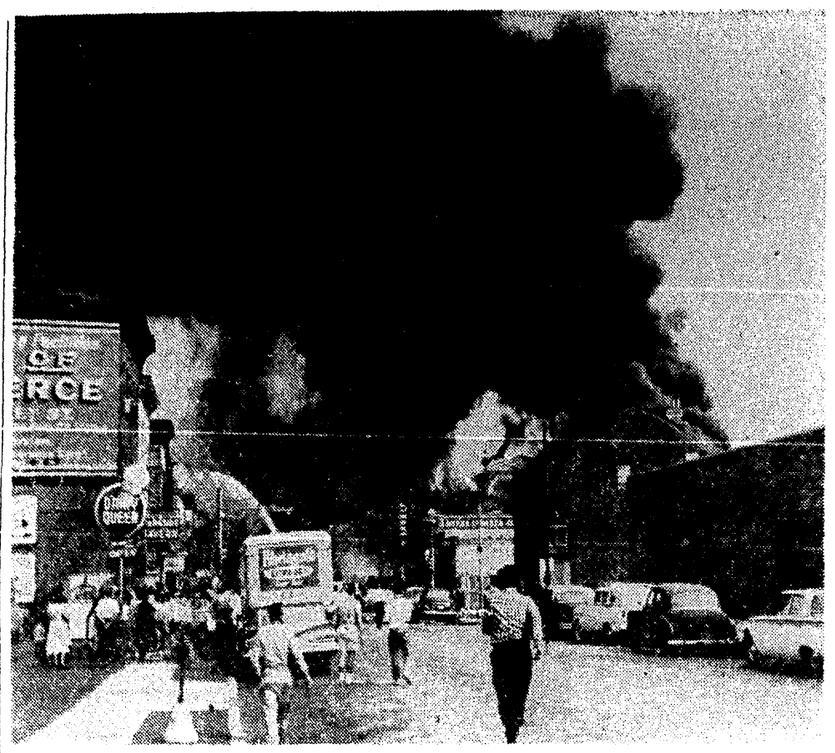
Administration spokesmen have said this bill is a step in the right direction and an improvement over the Democratic-backed plan.

But Secretary Arthur S. Flemming of the Health, Education and Welfare Department, declined to give the GOP measure his specific endorsement this week. He said he had not yet had a chance to study its specific provisions.

BAH, BAH RED SHEEP

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — Dave H. Alderson wasn't kidding when he asked the sheriff's office to find 400 striped sheep for him.

Anderson told officers he was rounding up more than 1,000 sheep for shearing when he discovered 400 head missing. They weren't branded, he said, but would be easy to identify. Each had a smear of red paint across its back to mark for shearing.



SPECTATORS GATHER excitedly in the street while smoke and flames shoot skyward from the fire that began on an abandoned railroad trestle in Newark, N. J. The blaze spread to dwellings over a four-square block area. Deputy Fire Chief Phillip J. Reilly said damage was at least a quarter million dollars. No one was reported injured. (AP Wirephoto)

EASTER LEGEND

Bunny, Indians Pioneer Mother

FREDERICKSBURG, Texas (AP)—This is an Easter legend about the bunny, a band of cutthroat Comanches and a pioneer mother and her child psychology.

The story began 114 years ago Saturday in this town founded by German immigrants.

It was very much a Western Wilderness. Comanches dominateed it.

The Indians slaughtered pioneers when they could catch them outside the town. They burned farm homes.

Just as in any present-day screen Western, only one man could talk sense to the Comanches. He was John Meusebach, the colony's leader.

Meusebach set out for the main Comanche encampment, four days journey away, to seek a treaty. It was shortly before Easter.

Comanche warriors surrounded the community. The townsmen could not determine whether the Indians planned an attack. Meusebach might have been killed en route by the unpredictable redskins.

On the night before Easter Commanche campfires flickered in the hills looking down on the town.

The tension in the adults communicated itself to the children. And when night came and the children saw the fires, they became more fearful.

Then, says the legend, one mother her name now lost, sat her children before her and explained the fires this way:

Easter bunnies in the hills spent the week collecting eggs. They also picked colorful wildflowers.

And tonight they build the fires to boil the flowers for dye and to boil the eggs.

The children slept well that night, the legend says.

In a few days, Meusebach returned waving the treaty. And Fredericksburg residents pledged they would light fires in the hills each night before Easter to mark the treaty consummation.

All week, workers have piled brush and timber in the hills for Saturday night's fires which mark the 114th observance.

Princess Gives Birth To Boy In Belgium

BRUSSELS (UPI) — Princess Paola gave birth Friday to a 7-pound son who became second in line to the Belgian throne after his father, Prince Albert. Both mother and son were reported doing well.

Albert is the brother of a bachelor King Baudoin who, at 29, appears in no hurry to take a wife. Baudouin succeeded to the throne on the abdication of their father, King Leopold in 1950.

The birth of the prince solved a succession problem which had worried Belgians for years. It definitely barred Prince Alexandre, 17-year-old son of Leopold and his morganatic wife Princess Liliane, from succeeding to the throne.

A 101-gun salute boomed from the city's main park when the baby was born. An artillery company had been standing by in the park since April 8 waiting for the announcement.

La. PTA Meet Set Thursday In Shreveport

SHREVEPORT (Special) —The thirty - seventh annual convention of the Louisiana Parent - Teacher Assn. opens here Thursday with clinics, discussion groups and speakers scheduled throughout the three - day meeting.

The convention activities actually get underway at 1 p.m. Wednesday with a pre - convention meeting of the State PTA Board of Managers, followed by a dinner honoring the board at 6 p.m. The board will again meet a few hours after adjournment of the convention.

The convention opens officially at 10:15 a.m. Thursday with Mrs. William B. Myrick of Baton Rouge State PTA president, presiding.

Lawrence Higgins, executive secretary of the Louisiana Youth Commission, state PTA board member and first vice president of the state unit, will respond to addresses of welcome by Mayor Clyde Fant, Superintendent of Education Shelby M. Jackson, Caddo schools superintendent Roscoe White, Louisiana School Boards Assn. vice president Joe D. Waggoner Jr., Louisiana Teachers Assn. president Merritt Beadle, National PTA vice president Dr. J. C. Moffitt, and local convention chairman Mrs. Martin Wallace.

Dr. Moffitt will be principal speaker at the three - day meeting, addressing delegates at the annual banquet at 7:30 p.m. Thursday. He will speak on "The Challenge of Change."

A convention highlight will be a panel discussion on teenage marriages to open the Friday morning program. Juvenile Court Judge Chris Barnette of Shreveport will moderate the discussion of the subject by Paulette James of Byrd High School, Paula Spencer of Bossier High School, Ronnie Loyd of North Caddo High School and Jimmy Wagner of Fair Park High School.

Delegates will vote all day Friday on officers, with installation of those elected scheduled for the closing session Saturday morning.

Recipe For Long Life Presented

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Beauty Editor

How would you like to live to be 120?

You would suffer little pain in your lifetime, have no worries and be a happy type.

This attractive set-up is within your grasp — well, almost — if you could just live like the Hunzukuts, a people who live high in the Himalaya mountains of Pakistan. Their existence is portrayed by Dr. Allen E. Banik, optometrist, student of geriatrics and traveler, in his new book "Hunza Land."

Banik found in Hunza 90-year-old men fathering children, and women of 30 who looked 40.

Hunzukuts rise at five in the morning, take a short nap in the afternoon and retire about nine in the evening. The men are straight, tall, broad-shouldered, deep-chested, slimwaisted, heavy legged. Women are attractive and there are no fat women in Hunza, the author says.

Their soil is enriched by silt from the mountain waters and there are no commercial fertilizers used in the gardens — it is against the law to use chemicals in a Hunza garden.

Everything that can serve as food for vegetables, field crops and fruit trees goes into the ground, Banik says:

Wednesday Slated For Oil Confab

By HARRY WILSON SHARPE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rep. James Roosevelt's House small business subcommittee throws open its doors Wednesday for another "coercion" bout with big oil companies.

The California Democrat is interested specifically in whether major oil suppliers are forcing independent filling station operators to handle their tires, batteries and accessories on an "or else" basis.

The "or else" according to Roosevelt, is cancellation of leases of those dealers who refuse to handle such items exclusively.

Roosevelt has been digging into the matter for several years. He has pending before the House Commerce Committee a TBA divorcement bill that probably will get lost in the election-year adjournment crush. But he is pressing ahead, building a record for use in the 87th Congress.

The two - day hearing starting Wednesday involves charges aired at a subcommittee investigation last December. At that time the subcommittee heard a purported tape - recording of a Sinclair Oil Co. salesman allegedly trying to dictate the sales policy of a customer filling station at Atlanta, Ga.

DURING PAST YEAR

Cabinet Committee Says Inflation Heavily Curbed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A cabinet committee headed by Vice President Richard M. Nixon reported Saturday that inflation has been effectively curbed in the past year. It can be held in check by firm and prudent government policies in the decade of great growth ahead, the report said.

The committee, which warned last June that inflationary hazards were high, said in its second report to President Eisenhower that a dramatic change has been achieved.

The White House made public the report, which seemed likely to become a basic Republican document in the presidential election campaign. Eisenhower called it "encouraging" in a statement which added:

"It reveals the substantial progress we have made in checking inflation and in creating favorable prospects for price stability and healthy economic growth.

"But the report is no cause for complacency. Both government and the public must be constantly alert to these problems."

The committee of eight administration leaders set up a year ago and titled the Cabinet Committee on Price Stabilization for Economic Growth credited the government's budget and borrowing policies with having done much to avert further price rises.

Its report also stressed that consumer prices have risen only 11 per cent in eight years—roughly the period of Eisenhower's incumbency.

Although some increase occurred last May and November, it said, the rise was "kept within narrow limits."

"This achievement in limiting price rises must be credited in large part to fiscal and monetary policies, supported by an aroused and effective public opionion," the committee said.

"The change since a year ago has been dramatic.

"A rapid turnaround in the federal budget position, coupled with firm monetary policies that moderated credit expansion, have blunted the inflationary thrust and calmed some of the inflationary fears.

"There is growing confidence at home and abroad that this nation can manage its monetary and fiscal affairs with firmness and prudence."

The report acknowledged that it would not be easy to hold prices stable while maintaining the kind of business climate that will foster growth and high employment, and went on:

"But the resolute efforts of the administration have demonstrated that these goals are compatible and attainable, that with fiscal integrity, coupled with monetary discipline and timely shifts in emphasis to meet changing conditions, we can make orderly economic progress, avoiding both mass unemployment and the ravages of inflation."

The report described the 11 per cent rise in the past eight years as having resulted primarily from the price bulge of 1956-1958, a 7½ per cent gain.

"Except for this two-year period, the index has been reasonably stable since the beginning of 1952," the committee said. It added that the 11 per cent rise, moreover, "is probably an overstatement of the true rise in consumer prices."

The committee discounted recent economic theorizing that the postwar inflation resulted from new economic forces—either the "cost push" of rising wages, as many businessmen contend, or the "administered pricing" which occurs in industries made up of a few big companies.

Both theories have been advanced to explain why prices did not fall during the 1957-58 recession. In this connection the cabinet committee noted that consumer prices usually do not stabilize or turn down until some time after the start of a recession, and in a dip as brief as that of 1957-58 they may not decline at all.

The pattern of price behavior "has not been exceptional or extraordinary and does not call for novel explanations," the report said. It added, however "Present day collective bargaining arrangements, government price and wage supports, subsidies, and business monopoly taken together do introduce rigidities and inflationary pressures into the economy.

"They stunt economic growth and make inflation more intractable."

The national policy of striving to insulate the economy from the boom and bust cycle also tends to keep prices up and give the economy an "inflationary bias unless we limit upward general price movements in recovery and expansion," the report said.

It suggested that the price spurt of 1956-57 occurred because fiscal and monetary authorities were too slow in applying firm anti-inflationary measures to check the boom that began in 1955.

AT SELMAN FIELD

Jaycee Air Show Scheduled May 1

An air show expected to attract a crowd of 10,000 to 20,000 spectators will be presented by the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce Sunday, May 1, according to local president Louis Daniel.

Thousands of military and commercial airlines and several manufacturers' displays will be included in the show at Selman Field. The U. S. Air Force will exhibit T-33 and T-37 Trainer Jets, a T-29 Radar Trainer, C-124 and C-119 Cargo Planes.

Highlight of the show, which includes The Tri - State Sky Divers, a parachute club from Shreveport, and a precision formation demonstration by USAF jet fighter planes, will be a two - hour aerial show by the Cole Brothers.

Organized in 1947, the world - famous Cole Brothers Airshow has in 12 years become the outstanding show of its kind. The show has gained prestige by flying in such extravaganzas as the National Air Races, the International Aviation Exposition, the All American Air Maneuvers and the Armed Forces Day Show.

The aim of the show is to entertain with a combination of showmanship, education, and safety. The aerobatocs of the powerful 450 horsepower Stearman as it roars out of a maneuver and the spine tingling antics of the parachute jumps and ladder acts of Jim Travis provide for thrilling entertainment.

The show, however, is not a succesion of thrill acts but is interspersed with educational maneuvers designed to better acquaint the public with the safety of the modern airplane. Safety to the audience and the pilots is stressed at all time.

All proceeds go to the benefit of youth activities conducted by the Monroe Jaycees. In case of rain each ticket holder has a rain check for the following Sunday, May 8th.

FATHER KNOWS BEST

Separate TV Ways Slated For Family

NEW YORK (AP) — After six long, happy years together, the Jim Anderson family is splitting up. All of them—mother, father, two daughters and son—will be going separate television ways.

"Father Knows Best," the Robert Young-Jane Wyatt family situation comedy which is one of the best loved, most respected shows in television, joins "I Love Lucy" in TV's limbo. Like "Lucy," it will stay around in repeats and re-runs but the actors and crew will move on to fresh pastures.

The decision to wind up the series came from neither network nor from sponsor, but from Young and his production partner who decided that six years were enough.

"I have mixed feelings about it," confessed Jane Wyatt, who has played Margaret Anderson, wife and mother, for so long. "I do know that I don't want to do another series. It would be impossible to top—even to equal—'Father Knows Best.' We've had perfect production, fine scripts, and a wonderful working relationship."

Miss Wyatt, in New York briefly to appear as hostess on the April 28 CBS daytime special, "Woman," reflected on her recent acting career.

"Six years, working five days a week from 7 in the morning until at least 7:30 at night, sometimes later," she recalled. "It has been tiring, and one result from the pressure has been that your social life suffers—if that's important to you. Weekends you rest up."

"I'd like to do a Broadway show—of course," she said. "I'd like to do some dramatic shows on TV. And motion pictures."

As a woman with two families, both highly respectable, Jane Wyatt was a logical choice to preside over "Woman's" forthcoming consideration of "The Troubled Teens."

She is the wife of an investment broker and has two sons. One will be graduated from Massachusetts Institute of Technology in June and almost immediately will be married. The younger boy attends an Eastern private school and is a promising music student.

Her other family consists of Lauren Chapin, who has been growing up on "Father Knows Best" and is just now emerging as a teen-ager, Elinor Donahue and Billy Gray.

"We have all had an extraordinarily close relationship on show," said the actress. "People are always asking me if I don't really feel like a mother to them after playing their mother for so long. The answer is that I don't. I feel more like an aunt—someone who can talk freely with them—enjoy them—but someone who does not have any real responsibility for them."

While the long-playing series is a family situation comedy, it is not a burlesque of American home life. Father—Robert Young—has not been portrayed as a bumbling idiot, the children are identifiable and so are the family's problems.

"That has been one of the problems of the show," said Miss Wyatt. "You'd think that as the show grew older, we would have been able to turn the shows out with greater ease. Actually, it has been growing more difficult as time went on—finding new situations, exploring new areas."

Newsboys Back In America

NEW YORK (UPI)—The advance guard of 73 newsboys who won all-expenses paid trips to London and Paris arrived back in the United States Saturday night loaded down with souvenirs and memories.

The advance guard of eight, all wearing berets, were to stay overnight at International Hotel near Idlewild Airport and depart for home Sunday. The other 65 will arrive aboard a chartered Transworld Airlines plane from Paris early Sunday morning.

One of the eight, Michael Rhodes, 15, of San Jose, Calif., a carrier for the San Jose Mercury News, said he spent most of his time on the return flight writing a letter to a pretty blonde English girl he me at a YWCA dance in London.

He said he sent a letter and two postcards to her from Paris and also telephoned her from Paris.

"I couldn't have talked for more than five minutes and it only seemed like about a minute but it cost me $10," he said.

"I plan to go back to England to see her again. It will have to be a few summers from now and I'll have to work hard to earn the money."

Michael's roommate, Thomas L. Wilkerson, 14, who delivers the Honolulu Star Bulletin, said the people the boys met were "real kind to us."

"I wish all Americans could be that way when Europeans come to visit us," he said.

LARGE MEALS

Young Wilkerson, of Honolulu, said another thing that impressed him was the seven and eight-course meals they ate.

"At the first meal I filled up on the first three courses and couldn't finish the rest, but when I learned the system I paced myself," he said.

Nathan Lipscomb, 12, of Little Rock, who delivers the Arkansas Gazette, said he most enjoyed a visit to Westminister Abbey.

"I liked to see all those tombs where the kings and queens are buried," he said.

He said he also enjoyed seeing the changing of the Guard at Buckingham Palace.

Nathan said there was one thing he didn't like—"hard rolls and very little butter."

"Down in Little Rock I'm used to nice soft juicy rolls, and I didn't see a one in London or Paris," he said.

Steven Stemper, 10, of Peru, Neb., who delivers the Lincoln Star, said, "what I liked best was going on top of the Eiffel Tower. You're way up and I've never been that high up before."

Ezra Dolan, public relations director of Parade Magazine which sponsored the trip said, "This tour was very successful. It is the best of the four that we have have held. The boys were wonderful."

Avrudakans Set Meeting Monday

The Swami Santha No. 102, Nomads of Avrudaka, will hold its darbar Monday at 8 p.m. in Castle Hall, 127½ St. John St.

A special Easter program is slated and plans of the Mid - South Dokey and Nomad Convention on June 24 and 25 at El Dorado, Ark., will be discussed.

You can store dry onions at room temperature for two to four weeks.

Prince Charles Is Growing Up; Big School Next

LONDON (UPI)—Prince Charles is growing up. Sometime in the coming week or so, his mother and dad are going to pick out a big boys' school for him.

On Nov. 14 the husky little Prince of Wales, heir to the British throne, will be 12 years old—old enough to enter one of the are really private.

public schools, which in England

During Charles' Easter vacation, Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip must decide which one it will be—Eton, Harrow, Gordonstoun Rugby—to name a few.

At the end of the Easter holiday, Prince Charles will be going back to Cheam School for probably his last term there. Then will come one of the better schools for the next four-year phase of his preparation for college.

Eton has educated many princes. Prince Michael of Kent and Prince Richard of Gloucester are students there now. But Eton is a tourist attraction and the town swarms with sightseers. It is rated unlikely the Queen would favor her son and heir roaming its narrow streets among the throngs.

Prince Philip would like Charles to follow in his own footsteps at Gordonstoun, the Spartan Academy in Scotland run on German educational lines.

Arnold Palmer, who led golf's money winners in 1958, with $42,607, has a head start again. In the first three months of 1960 he had won $25,300.

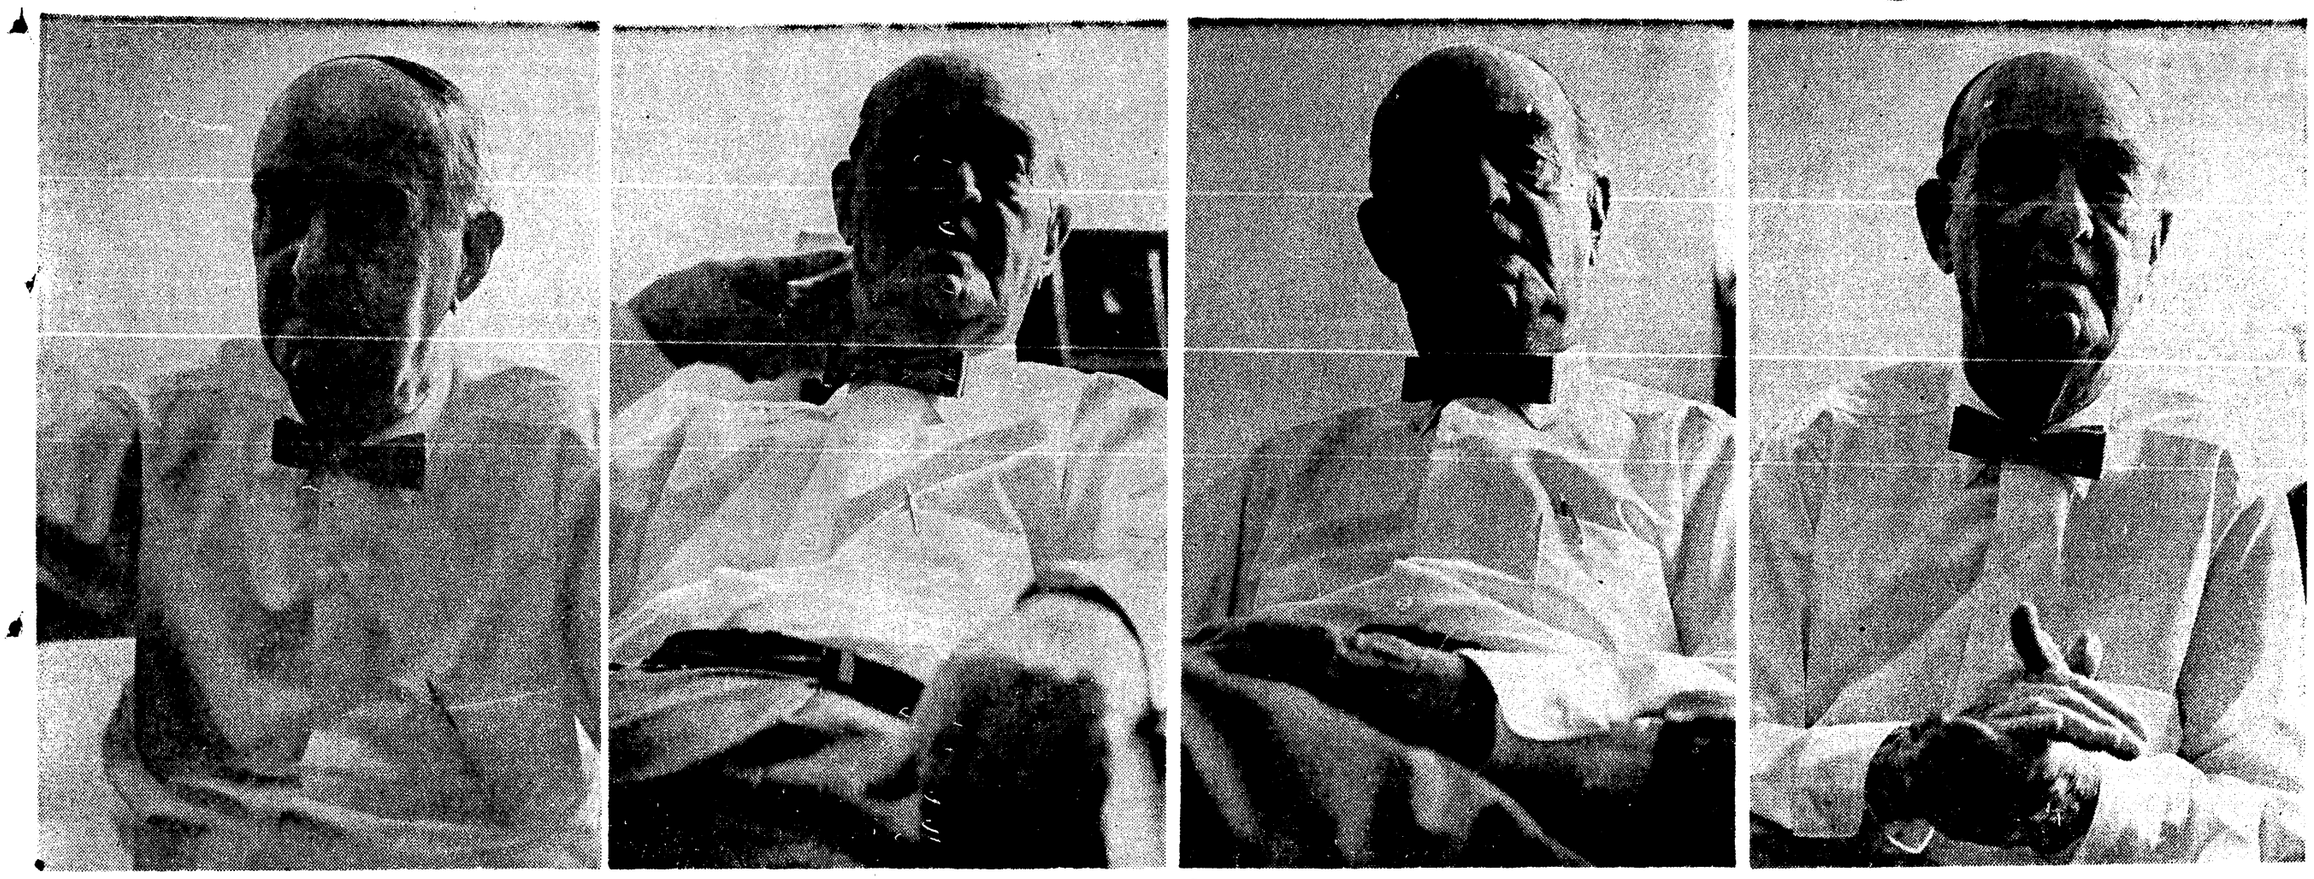
Tensas Boss For 2½ Decades Ending Career



"Huey grabbed his stomach and said, 'I'm shot'," relates Sheriff Elliot D. Coleman, boss of Tensas who shot Huey P. Long's assassin. (Staff photos by Jim St. Julien)

By SAM HANNA
Staff Writer

The boss of Tensas for the past 2½ decades is at the end of a career that was too much for one man to live through, even though that man was Elliot D. Evercaux Coleman.

Sheriff Elliot D. Coleman has been the long, strong arm of the law since he was a boy. He's 73 now, six weeks away from his 79th birthday.

And he has a bullet in his leg to show for it. It's been there since he was 17, when he went to get his first murderer. He also got his man, but failed to bring him back alive.

That, however, is a small occurence when compared to a historic night in Baton Rouge on Sept. 8, 1935 when Elliot Coleman shot the man who shot Huey P. Long.

His part in Long's assassination probably has never been published before, mainly because Sheriff Coleman is publicity shy.

"I don't want any notoriety," he said.

But the fact remains that State Trooper Elliot Coleman was on the scene the night the Kingfish was shot by Dr. Carl Austin Weiss, a Baton Rouge physician.

Today, 25 years later, Sheriff Coleman admits he shot Huey's assassin twice with a .45 pistol.

But, contrary to killing men, "Mr. Elliot," as he is known in his native Tensas, prefers to talk about conservation and refers to his fight against a drainage project as the highlight of his career.

Because of his influence, Tensas Parish has become the true sportsman's paradise in Louisiana. Game in Tensas, where conservation has been practiced for many years, is abundant.

That career will end next month when Mack Seaman, a Coleman deputy for 13 years, steps into the sheriff's job after defeating the old chieftain in last December's Democratic primary.

"I made a mistake," Sheriff Coleman lamented. "I should have retired."

Now that retirement will come and well deserved too, because Elliot Coleman has been a good public official, one who has risked his life more times than he will recall to perform his duty.

His years as a law enforcement officer have been packed with excitement.

He put it this way, "I'm telling you, I've had some close calls."

But his wife, Mrs. Janie Metcalf Young Coleman, whom he calls Jinks, summed it up best. "These lines on my face show it."

Born on Live Oaks Plantation near Waterproof in the same house he lives in today, Elliot the boy started out as a deputy at the age of 17 under his future father-in-law.

SUCCESS STORY

The late William C. Young was Tensas sheriff then. In fact, he was sheriff for 28 years, four years longer than his son-in-law.

But the success story of marrying the boss' daughter didn't fit Deputy Coleman who later on became a prohibition officer during the days when an iron still brewing full of moonshine liquor meant more than the revenuer's life.

Elliott Coleman, the revenuer found this out too, but, because of an apparent inborn boldness, was never forced to show his own hand, which undoubtedly would have resulted in the death of somebody.

Two old stills shaded by live oaks in the Coleman front lawn are reminiscent of those days when the Coleman home served as headquarters for prohibition officers.

"We'd get the stills located and then all meet up here at night and plan the job," Sheriff Coleman explained.

"There'd be 40 or 50 men staying here," Mrs. Coleman added.

Although he was never shot at by a moonshiner, Sheriff Coleman turns on a twinkle in his small blue eyes when he tells of two experiences. Once, a moonshiner went for his gun but too late for the Coleman quick-draw. On another raid, Elliot the revenuer met a brave moonshiner with an axe over his shoulder.

Looking down the Coleman gun barrel, the moonshiner eased the axe slowly to the ground.

"No sir, that man wasn't afraid," the sheriff explained.

Besides the time he was shot in the leg, Sheriff Coleman was shot at only once more. What happened to the man who fired the shot?

HE WAS KILLED

"He was killed," answered Sheriff Coleman, almost under his breath.

That was after 17-year-old Elliot learned a good lesson when he was out to arrest a murderer, the man who shot him.

"I learned not to stand there and get shot," he explained.

But experiences as a lawman aren't Sheriff Coleman's favorite topics of conversation. However, in telling of these experiences his personality as a good, persuasive politician comes forth.

He smiles with a chuckle and by the time his story reaches its climax, Elliot the storyteller relives it with a roar.

While best emphasizing this, he explained, "The best effort of my lifetime was the defeat of the Eudora Floodway." The "Overton Plan" of 1933 was designed to take water away from the Yazoo River by diverting the Mississippi River, or simply taking water out of the Mississippi.

Part of that plan would have constructed a large channel through Tensas Parish. This never materialized and Sheriff Coleman takes great pride in his fight to kill it.

He also takes great pride in his friendship with the late Claire Chennault, the Franklin Parish native who later became known the world over as general of the Flying Tigers.

"I met Claire once in Washington," the sheriff began. "He came there from China, greatly disturbed."

This was before World War II and according to Sheriff Coleman the Pentagon was warned by Chennault that the Japanese would attack Pearl Harbor.

Sen. Allen J. Ellender carried Chennault's message to the Pentagon, according to Sheriff Coleman, but it was received lightly, he said.

The Coleman-Chennault friendship apparently was to play a significant role in the sheriff's later life, because both had a mutual friend in James A. Noe of Monroe.

Noe was close to Huey Long and it was through Noe that Elliot Coleman the revenuer got an appointment with the Louisiana State Police, 1934-36.

And this led to the night that Huey Long was shot and the two shots that Elliot Coleman fired into Weiss the assassin.

Although there are numerous accounts of the shooting, Sheriff Coleman discounts the popular version that Huey was actually shot by his own bodyguards.

"That's not true," Sheriff Coleman said. "I was standing four feet from Huey when he was shot."

Then he leaned to the edge of his chair, clasped his hands and said with excitement dancing in his eyes:

"This is what happened the night Huey was shot."

Gen. Lewis F. Guerrer, then head of the State Police, had called Trooper Coleman to come to Baton Rouge.

"Things weren't looking right, Gen. Guerrer told me," Coleman continued. "So I went to Baton Rouge."

Skipping immediately to the Capitol, he said, "Huey Long walked down and started toward the Speaker's stand. He walked past Jimmie Noe and me."

When Long turned and started out of the House chamber, Sheriff Coleman said, "He got away from his bodyguards. I walked with him."

"About that time the Legislature adjourned and a big crowd came out down the corridor. That fellow (Dr. Weiss) stepped out in the corridor and quickly pulled a gun out from under his coat and stuck the gun almost in Huey's stomach."

"As quickly as the pistol was fired, Huey grabbed his stomach and said, 'I'm shot.' Then he bumped against me. It wasn't so, that the bodyguards shot Huey."

Coleman said one of Long's bodyguards, Murphy Rhoden, walked up just as Weiss shot.

"There were several shots fired," the sheriff explained. "I shot him (Weiss) twice."

Asked if he hit Weiss, Sheriff Coleman answered, "Oh yes."

"And then there was pandemonium," Coleman said as Long was carried into the governor's office.

"People were running everywhere and suddenly a crowd gathered in the corridor."

Sheriff Coleman said one man, whose name he requested be withheld, rushed to the scene with a machine gun and, believing the crowd was a mob against Long, raised the gun to fire.

"Can you imagine what would have happend if he had fired that machine gun into the crowd?" asked Sheriff Coleman. "I grabbed the gun because I saw right away that it was a one-man job." Inside the governor's office, Huey Long, although a dying man, wasn't believed to have been injured fatally, according to Sheriff Coleman.

Since that night, Elliot Coleman became a Kingfish in his own right, because for 24 years he was the supreme power in Tensas, actually the boss of Tensas.

Relaxing on the comfortable front porch of his plantation home where Southern hospitality could have been born, the retiring sheriff squinted through the screen and faced the future.

Outside a choir of birds sang in the trees.

"I don't want any notoriety," said Elliott the boss, with a well-worn bullet in his leg.

Fresh Water From Salt Water

By ROGER GREENE
Associated Press Writer

American scientists are pegging their hopes higher than ever this year on achieving a dramatic breakthrough in man's age-old struggle to harvest fresh water from the salty sea.

Federal officials caution that we are still many years, perhaps decades, away from actually making deserts bloom with water pumped from the sea.

But they emphasize, too, that some form of salt-water conversion may spell the difference, sooner than expected, between severe shortages and bountiful supplies of water in many parts of the world.

"It is hard to realize," says Dr. A. L. Miller, director of the U.S. Office of Saline Water (OSW), "that within a few years our No. 1 domestic problem may be plain ordinary water."

America's fast-growing cities, factories and farms today consume over 240 billion gallons of water a day, compared with 40 billion in 1900.

In 20 years, according to the U.S. Geological Survey, the total will reach 600 billion gallons daily.

"By 1980," says Asst. Secretary of the Interior Fred G. Aandahl, "hundreds of cities and communities will be obtaining all or part of their fresh water supplies from converted sea or brackish water."

Although plagued by frequent setbacks in the past, OSW officials are guardedly optimistic that at least one solution may be in sight.

If so, they say, an astonishly simple twist in approaching an old problem will have turned the trick.

Scientists have known for centuries how to distill potable water from the ocean. Through the ages, however, they have never discovered how to do it cheaply enough to compete with natural fresh water.

One artificial method is to run sea water through hot pipes until it boils, then draw off the vapor through cold pipes to condense it. The condensed steam becomes pure water.

The big stumbling block is that salt, precipitated out of solution, forms scale which clogs the pipe.

To reduce scale formation, engineers tried using pipe made of corrosion-resistant but costly copper-nickel alloy.

It worked better than steel pipe, but thick, heat-resisting collars of scale still formed. That meant frequent delays while the scale-clogged pipe was replaced.

About two years ago, a brainstorm hit chemical engineer Walter L. Badger of Ann Arbor, Mich., a former University of Michigan professor who had spent years experimenting with desalting processes.

"We fight fire with fire," he mused. "Perhaps we should fight salt with salt."

Other scientists shook their heads. "Poor Badger," they said. "He's worked on the problem too long."

But Badger persisted. Since hot salt water has an affinity for depositing its crystals on scale already formed in pipes, why not mix pellets of broken-up scale with the salt water?

Wouldn't that make it easier for the saline water to unload its salt crystals on the seeded pellets flowing along with it, instead of depositing them on the smooth inner surface of the pipe?

Badger didn't live to see his idea bear fruit. He died late in 1958. But for many months now, a pilot plant testing Badger's theory has been dealting 1,200 gallons of sea water per day at Harbor Island, N.C. It appears to have licked the scaling problem almost 100 per cent.

Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton says the tests have demonstrated "a major technological breakthrough."

In May, the government will let contracts for the construction of a 1½ million dollar salt water conversion plant using Badger's vertical multiple-effect distillation process. Located at Freeport, Tex., on the Gulf Coast below Galveston, the plant will produce a million gallons of fresh water daily at an estimated cost of less than $1 per 1,000 gallons.

That price tag is still far above the average U.S. figure of 30 cents per 1,000 gallons for tap water. But it would be a considerable improvement over earlier processes which cost around $4 per 1,000.

Even $1 a thousand would be competitive with ordinary water in some areas, such as Key West, Fla., where water costs $1.05 per 1,000 gallons via a 90-mile Navy pipeline from the Florida mainland.

It would actually beat the price now being paid by the residents of Coalinga (pop. 6,021) in California's San Joaquin Valley, midway between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Until last year the people in Coalinga were paying $7.50 to $9.35 per 1,000 gallons for drinking water hauled from 40 miles away. Today the price has dropped to $1.45 per housand, thanks to the installation of a conversion plant which produces 28,000 gallons of fresh water daily from local brackish water.

Coalinga is the first U.S. community to install a commercial-size conversion plant to obtain drinking water. It uses a membrane process.

In addition to the Badger plant at Freeport, the Office of Saline Water in the coming months will begin letting contracts for the construction of four other sizable conversion plants, each using a different process.

In July, under federal contract, work will start on a 1½ million dollar plant in San Diego, Calif., designed to convert a million gallons of salt water into fresh water daily at a cost of $1 per 1,000 gallons. It will take about a year to build the plant.

Local enthusiasm for the project, while high, was tempered somewhat by the fact that a million gallons a day won't go far toward slaking the city's thirst. The bustling port community uses between 50 and 80 million gallons daily.

The San Diego plant, using a multi-flash distillation process, will be hooked up with a four-million-dollar atomic steam reactor to be installed by the Atomic Energy Commission. The reactor will be ready in 1963.

OSW officials say three of the five scheduled conversion plants to be built with government funds will be ready for operation in 1961, the other two in 1962.

Already announced are plans for construction of two 250,000 gallons-per-day plants to convert brackish water in arid Western regions. One plant, using an electrodialysis (membrane) process, will be located at Webster, S. D. The other, employing forced-circulation vapor compression, will be built at Roswell, N. M.

More than 200 cities and towns, including several in Alaska and Hawaii, have offered sites to the federal government in the hope of landing one of the projected conversion plants.

Grevemberg Threat

In Tuesday's general election to name a new governor of Louisiana, the big question is whether the Negroes can and will deliver enough votes to elect Francis Grevemberg, the Republican candidate. This could not possibly happen if there is a representative vote of all the people of the state. It could happen if most of the voters neglect their duty and stay at home while the bloc vote of one class of people is being cast.

According to official state records of last February 29, there are 1,129,313 registered voters in Louisiana.

In the general election, these voters may cast ballots for any candidate they wish. This includes the Democratic nominee for governor, Jimmie Davis, Colonel Grevemberg and Kent Courtney, the States' rights candidate. Party registration is not binding in general elections—only in primaries.

Heretofore, in general elections for state officials it has been assumed that the vote in New Orleans would be enough to make it safe for the Democratic nominee and the voters of the rest of the state have been inclined to stay at home and let New Orleans do it.

Such a course at this time could be extremely dangerous. Orleans parish has a Negro registration of 34,441. In 1952 it cast only 44,307 Democratic votes and 2,131 Republican votes in the general election. Its present total registration is 204,017 but if the white voters were to stay at home and the Negro voters were to vote en masse for Colonel Grevemberg, the Negroes in Orleans parish alone might win the election for Grevemberg.

In Ouachita parish there are only 722 registered Negro voters and they constitute no particular threat insofar as the vote in this parish alone is concerned but the voters of this parish must do their part for the state as a whole to be sure of a victory by Jimmie Davis.

In the last election for governor —1952, between Democratic Nominee Kennon and GOP Nominee Bagwell—the total vote cast was 123,681.

This year, 157,155 Negroes are registered to vote—regardless of party affiliation. Of these, 151,691 are registered as Democrats. It is estimated that above 95 per cent of Negro Democrats voted in the second Democratic primary January 9 and that 95 to 98 per cent of those voting cast their ballots against Mr. Davis.

If they should choose to vote as a bloc again next Tuesday, in opposition to Mr. Davis, they could by themselves cast 34,474 more votes than ever have been cast in a gubernatorial election in Louisiana, Negro and white. If bloc voting of this type should go to GOP Nominee Grevemberg, and voters as a whole stay home as in the past, Mr. Davis easily could be defeated.

Disregard of Mr. Courtney in this mathematical projection is not meant as slight to him and certainly not as slight to the States' Rights party. It simply is obvious that a Negro bloc vote would not go to a States' Right party candidate. No one can say that it would go to Mr. Grevemberg. But it was an anti-Davis vote in both Democratic primaries.

Present total Republican registrations in Louisiana Negro and white are only 8,597. But, as stated party registration has nothing to do with how a person votes in a final election.

East Baton Rouge has a Negro registration of 10,001. In 1952 it cast 5,132 Democratic votes and 685 Republican, Negro and white.

Calcasieu has a Negro registration of 7,221, with a total parish vote in 1952 of 2,007 Democratic and 176 Republican.

It is easy to see what could happen if large percentages of white voters stay home in these and other parishes Tuesday. This applies also to Caddo, although Negro registration here is lower than in other heavily populated parishes. Caddo's registered Negro total is 4,731.

Of the 1,129,313 registered voters in Louisiana, 1,116,912 are Democrats. Of the Democrats voting January 9, 54.1 per cent decided on Jimmie Davis for their nominee and only 45.9 per cent voted against him.

But the majority wish as expressed by the 54.1 per cent can be brought into reality only if Democrats as a whole go to the polls Tuesday and support their party's nominee.

James Smithson, the English chemist who willed the money for the United States to begin the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., was inspired by a line in Washington's Farewell Address. Washington said: "Promote them, as an object of primary importance, institutions for the general diffusion of knowledge." Smithson's gift was valued at his death in 1829 at $508,318.

Delegates Party Hacks

Local Political Leaders Uusually Chosen Because Of Services Or Contributions To Organization

The two political parties are not associations in the sense that members attend them and vote as individuals. They are bodies of delegations, chosen by various devices, each state determining the method of selection. Some delegations as a body (the unit rule); other delegations are bound, for a number of ballots, to be faithful to a particular candidate; other delegations are uninstructed.

Those who attend conventions as delegates are not the greatest men in a particular party—most of those who sit on the platform or in boxes. The delegates are usually party hacks, locally chosen by political leaders either because of their services to the local party organizations or because of their contributions to the party. It is very rare for a delegate to be independent of his party leaders. Whenever a leader wants to, he calls a caucus and there any independent ideas which may beset a delegate are driven out of his mind.

It has often been suggested, but the idea has never been permitted to go far, that voting for candidates in the convention be done by a secret ballot. We elect presidents, governors, members of congress, almost everybody by a secret ballot but at conventions a delegation is voted in public or when each delegate is polled, as it is called, it is by a viva voce vote. That is, the delegate gets up and shouts his vote—nowadays over a microphone.

A secret ballot would change the nature of the convention. In the first place, the favorite son gimmick which is a waste of time would probably disappear. The favorite son gimmick has two functions: one, it advertises a governor or a senator to the nation and it might possibly give such a person a chance to run for vice president, although that is not too likely; the other function of this device is that it gives the leadership of a particular delegation an opportunity to bargain for deals.

It will be recalled that in the 1952 Republican convention when Senator Robert A. Taft and General Eisenhower were contesting for the nomination, the California delegation, pledged to Governor Earl Warren, was known to have decided to hold out to the bitter end for Warren. At one period of the convention, before the actual voting started, it looked as though Warren held the balance of power and he was being importuned by both sides not to vote for the other. As an instance of captive delegations, reference can be made to Governor John Fine of Pennsylvania, now forgotten politically, who was presumed to control 30 votes which both sides were seeking. The governor himself could not be found. He had made his bargain, whatever it was.

The secret ballot would obviate all this. The candidates would be lined up in voting machines and the delegates would vote and the highest man would win. The delegates could then go home and the bosses would probably drop dead.

Another thing about conventions is the long argument anent the platform. These are enormous documents, running to 10,000 or more words, covering every detail of the political, social and economic life of the nation. The platform is usually drawn up by a committee of one representative from each state. Few who serve on such committees know what they are doing. There are subcommittees and some of them hire experts.

The platforms are badly written and badly edited documents. I have recently gone over about a dozen of them, covering a long period in our history. On the whole, they are worthless documents, unrealistically drawn, incapable of being implemented, couched in an inspired language. Would it not be simpler if each party drew up a broad statement of principles, say a 1,000 or 1,500-word document, cogently prepared, sharply defined inspirationally stated — a document which could be a guiding light to its followers?

Perhaps it is too much to ask the political parties to take their platforms seriously. If one wants to see how far a politician moves from his platform it is only necessary to read the Democratic platform of 1932 on which Franklin D. Roosevelt ran. It preached economy; he entered upon a career of spending such as we had never before witnessed. In fact, not an item of that platform related to the New Deal.

Both parties ignore their platforms after Election Day; why bother about them before Election Day?

Colleges' Crop

Harvest Time In Meadows Of Learning Will Arrive Soon

CHAPEL HILL, N. C. (AP)—It's about harvest time in the meadows of learning.

America's greatest spring crop —its college graduating classes— is matured and ready to seek its own place in the golden granary of time. The 1960 crop looks like a record one in terms of both quantity and quality.

Critics of our younger generation might feel better about our nation's future they would take the trouble right now to go and see how these "hopes of tomorrow" really measure up.

I did just that the other day during a visit here to the University of North Carolina, which has won over the years an enlarging recognition as one of the great pastures of the mind and spirit. Its academic luster is not merely regional; it sheds a national glow.

Chapel Hill has always had a tradition of relaxed freedom and wide culture, and the late Thomas Wolfe was only one of many creative minds that have found inspiration here.

For any middle-aged man his return to a college campus is always a kind of journey into Australia. But it can teach him a few things too.

The day was soft and warm and sunny. Spring came late this way this year. The azaleas have lurked behind their usual season, and the dogwood trees are still all bark and no bloom. But the pear trees on the hills look as if they were walking to a wedding, the redbud trees are a lace of fire, and periwinkles blue the lawn.

The campus at Chapel Hill is quite beautiful. The walks are shaded by trees so old they are like shrines in leaf. The buildings, a mixture of many architectures, blend in a friendly weathered warmth.

But on this walk upon this day it was the students, not the mellow atmosphere of the campus, that kindled in me a reverie of comparison.

One does not like to be unfair to his own youth, but on the other hand it is not wise ever to get the idea that all that was best in the world died with it.

Looking around at the students I passed, pausing now and then to listen to them, I had the feeling they were superior to the college students of my own generation.

It wasn't only that they had more height and perhaps more health. They had an air of easy assurance and self-confidence visible even to an outsider.

In my depression-haunted generation the fear of being unable to find a job after graduation often made the last two years in college miserable. We hated to leave alma mater because we feared the world had no place for us. At one bull session I can recall a group of seniors deciding that if they could sign up right then for a guaranteed income of $200 a month for life they would be glad to do so.

These students here would strike no such frightened bargain. They are not fearful. They are hopeful, and they believe in themselves.

Many educators deffend this college generation as perhaps the best in our history, and I am inclined to go along with this view rather than with those doomcriers who hold we have raised a generation of spoiled milksops.

Returning from my stroll I had no desire to relive my own college days. One time of youth is enough for one life.

I felt no tinge of envy for these young men and women. But I did feel that the world they so soon will set forth to better will fare no worse at their hands than it has at ours.

Glory To God

THE sun appears beyond the hills . . . Sweet incense fills the air . . . An angel gestures to reveal . . . The holy tomb is bare . . . There is no sign of One who died . . . In loving sacrifice . . . Yet by that very fact a sign . . . Of God and paradise . . . Rejoice! . . . The Lord has risen, and . . . The heavens sing His praise . . . So let us rise with all our strength . . . Above our sinful ways . . . Let us kneel down beside His grave . . . With true humility . . . And beg His grace to help us gain . . . God's great eternity . . . Let every thought and word and deed . . . Reflect that we are sorry . . . As we rejoice and praise His name . . . Glory! Glory! Glory!

LIKES EDITORIAL READING

Gilbert, La.

We urge all readers to include the editorial pages of our daily and Sunday reading. (Get the habit.)

Only in America may we expect to find an editor anywhere who can go to any lengths almost to get pertinent ideas across without fear of instant and permanent reprisals from unhappy government officials or other disgruntled private citizens — whenever the editorial page especially goes into a matter of public concern or where the shoe may pinch a segment of our vast population to a degree whereby some one may wince out loud to him.

So we urge more people to take time out and read words of wisdom. By doing so, one may keep up with many worldwide issues of the day.

FAVORS NAME CHANGE

West Monroe, La.

Editor, Morning World:

On April 23 the people of West Monroe will go to the polls and vote on whether they favor changing the name of their city. There has been opposition to the proposal; on the other hand there has been some outspoken support for the change.

As one of these who favor changing the name of our city, I would like to express a few of the many reasons I believe justify the change.

First, I believe that a change in our name would help distinguish our city as a separate and independently administrated city. It would give us a basis on which to build a name for our city and have it clearly recognized as a municipality all its own — and not a westside suburb of our sister city on the east side of the river.

Any accomplishments we achieve under a name not so closely related to that of our sister city will be recognized as our own. I believe that I am not being selfish when I make this point. Rather, I feel that in view of the fact that we do have an entirely separate city, we deserve independent recognition for our achievements.

The percentage of growth in West Monroe has been phenomenal in the past 10 years. Yet, in the eyes of our friends throughout the state, nation and perhaps the world, we are likely to be observed as suburban expansion.

To change the name of our city would not require us to sacrifice our heritage nor any part of our history that has been good and worthy of preservation. Practically no city, town or hamlet in America bears its original name. For varied and worthwhile reasons names have been changed whenever the people were convinced that it should be done.

As a citizen of West Monroe whose forebears were born, lived, died and were buried in Ouachita parish west of the river, I do not feel that my support of changing the name of West Monroe would betray their hope for growth and progress in our community. Indeed, I believe they would approve of any step that would enhance the importance of our city and pave the way for future generations to build a great city.

I think it is a matter of personal pride and human nature that makes us singularly or as a group desire recognition for our achievements.

If our city makes mistakes, we don't want to blight the good name of Monroe. On the other hand, if our city achieves great progress and gains prestige I do not think it selfish if we expect credit.

As an example of what identity means economically to a city, I think it might be well to imagine what the attitude of a major distributor of some merchantable product might be when he sits down to select areas in which he will seek new outlets. Is he likely to look over the names of cities in Louisiana and authorize a dealership in Monroe and another in West Monroe or is he more likely to select a dealer in Monroe, and thinking West Monroe is a western suburb of Monroe, select dealership instead somewhere else?

Another outstanding example of what a separate identity means is in the interest rates of tax bonds issued to cover capital improvements. Bond purchasers generally consider West Monroe a part of the Monroe area and in that sense a suburb of that city. This automatically reduces the desirability of the purchase of bonds and therefore an increase in rates is brought about. According to the unbiased opinion of a well known Louisiana bonding attorney, West Monroe could have saved as much as $125,000 in interest on recent bond issues amounting to better than $3,000,000 if our city had been established as a separate and distinct municipality. This fact alone could mean a savings of several hundred thousand dollars in the years ahead.

A name change for West Monroe would not cast the two cities into hostility. Instead, it would form the basis for wholesome and friendly competition that will serve as a healthy factor in great expansion and prosperity for both cities.

On behalf of the many citizens who favor the name change, I would like to point out that our efforts are not motivated by selfish intent and I believe the proposal is worthy of serious and unbiased consideration by every voter before he casts his vote on this proposition next Saturday.

Thank you for allowing space in your fine paper for the publication of this letter.

Many Of Beauties Of 'Lovely Louisiana' Lie In This Area

MONROE, La. — If Napoleon had not been so busy with his wars, and had had an opportunity to visit this beautiful North Louisiana land of lakes and bayous, the "Lousiana Purchase" chapter in world history might not have been written.

But be that as it may, it has been written, and no one in these parts wants it changed. The natives wouldn't trade it for any other part of the world, and more and more visitors are discovering the beauties of this portion of "lovely Louisiana."

MONROE DOCTRINE

Mayor W. L. (Jack) Howard attributes a part of the city's growth to the fact that many vacationers liked the place so much they came back to live.

"For this reason," he adds, "we like to think of each visitor as a potential resident." That's pretty good "Monroe Doctrine," with a dual purpose, and it seems to be effective.

The city, of course, was named for President James Monroe, but not until May 12, 1819, some 40 years after its founding, when the first steamboat named President Monroe visited here. The little trading village up to that time had been called Ft. Miro.

No one could write accurately about his "Queen City of the Ouachita" without paying proper tribute to the Ouachita River which so scenically separates the "Twin Cities" — West Monroe being a separate municipality with its own government, business and residential sections.

RIVER AN ASSET

Navigable for barge and other lighter craft as far north as Camden, Ark., and on down to the Mississippi River, thence on to the Gulf of Mexico, the river is an economic asset. Which, of course, does not lessen its recreation and scenic value in a land dotted with lakes, lagoons, and bayous.

All of which feeds one of the largest boating and boating-supply industries in the nation.

Local boosters look forward to a role of increasing importance when the winding Ouachita, "the world's second most scenic river," is deepened to provide a nine-foot channel, which has been authorized by Congress.

INDUSTRY, TOO

Among other claims to distinction, this North Louisiana trading and industrial center is a "crossroad of pipelines," with more major pipelines converging here than anywhere else in the nation.

Scenic and recreation advantages are a boon to an ever-growing tourist industry, but another appeal of no little importance is the attractive level of hotel, motel and restaurant rates. Rooms with bath and free parking begin at about $4.

Two Post Bond In Winn Parish

WINNFIELD (Special) — A Negro boy and girl yesterday posted bond on charges of disturbing the peace after entering the Winn Parish Library Friday with another Negro boy and girl and requesting books and book cards.

The four were arrested by the sheriff department and placed under $300 bond. Two posted bond Friday. Officials said books from the library are obtained by Negroes through a required system, set up by a governing board, from Pinecrest (colored) High School here.

For sketching, writing, marking or coloring in school or around the home, there's a new felt-nib medium created especially for children. The new formula ink is odorless, non-penetrating, and dries instantly on porous surfaces. It washes off with plain soap and water or with ink eradicator.

The Best From James Cooper

THE LETTERS AND JOURNALS OF JAMES FENIMORE COOPER. Edited by James Franklin Beard. 2 volumes. Belknap Press-Harvard. $20.

Born in 1789 of a distinguished and prominent family, and tossed out of Yale for high jinks and heavy debts, Cooper was married on New Year's Day, 1811, to Susan De Lancey. He turned to writing, driven to it in part by the collapse of the Cooper fortune. In the 1820s with "The Spy" and particularly his most popular "The Last of the Mohicans," and already the recipient of many honors, he began to see a way out from under his burden of debt, and decided to sail off with his growing family to Europe to travel and write. It was a successful move; by 1832 and 1833, with European as well as American rights bringing in an income, he was collecting $20,000 and better a year.

These two volumes inaugurate a series of his letters, more extensive than had been supposed, the majority never before published; they carry his absorbing story up to his return from abroad.

Many different matters interested this European correspondent — the governments, the monuments, the modes of travel and costs, and professional problems.

Walter Scott called on him in Paris; he saluted brother novelist Eugene Sue; letters to fellow creative workers like sculptor Horatio Greenough and painter Samuel F. B. Morse were witty and exuberant. He used to follow Morse to the Louvre, perch on a high stool at his side while he copied some masterpiece, and talk his ear off.

But most of the time he was serious enough, and took on the problems of the world, not pretentiously, but earnestly. He disliked England and the English, and was delighted to report that in the House of Commons during a debate he saw 13 members with both feet up on the backs of benches before them, seven with both knees up, five with one foot up, and 11 asleep.

"We mean to see all the Kings we can," this visitor from the New World democracy wrote, and he did pretty well, gathering in Bonapartes on and off the throne, Charles X and Louis-Philippe — a king "no better than he should be." He believed in an aristocracy of talent, frequented the highest society, and let himself be caught in a laborer's presence only once, along a country road. But he could tell when oxen were yoked in a slovenly way, and once observed: "We should harness a pair of horses in America in half the time they would harness them in France, and in France, they do it in half the time it is done in Germany." Another interesting comparison concerned costs: "With the same management the American can live for one-third the money of the Englishman, and one - half what the Frenchman spends." He believed "America is the most civilized nation of the earth," and by a curious round-about course his very defense of his friend Lafayette, who had spoken up in America's behalf, got him in hot water with critics back home.

He could be sharp with printers who, instead of following copy, made flagrant errors in typesetting his fiction from his long hand. He could be overly weighty on the prospects of European wars after the 1830 revolution. But mostly this is a genial travel account by an alert and successful American. It is simple, unaffected, unliterary. Today in 1960 you might enjoy the letters more than the novels. And certainly they tell us more about Cooper than we ever knew before.

Contract bridge was invented by Harold S. Vanderbilt in 1925. It is estimated there are 35 million bridge players in the U.S.

Violence On The Surface Is Top Book

IN THE ABSENCE OF MAGIC. By Ernst Pawel. Macmillan. $3.75.

Annette to Max to Eleanor — that's the route Burt follows to reach Peter Kersten, his protagonist, his alter ego, keeper of his enemy, friend facsimile, victim, savior and nemesis.

It began in Berlin, in the days of Communist plotting and Nazi conniving, in the second stage of psythoanalysts, their couches and their penetrating, cool and sometimes killing remedies. Burt from the New World was a man of action, but unstable; it was better to do than merely to exist, and the deed even wrong was better than the word even right. He put himself in the care of Peter, worked conscientiously to make himself liked, let Peter shape him, betrayed him abroad and in the sanctuary of his home.

Now he hunts out Peter again, again bears gifts to the children of Max and Annette to curry favor, and ominously bears gifts to Peter's Mitya and Dolores out on the isolated island to which Peter, exhausted by the world, has withdrawn. Is this a second sanctuary to be violated by the volatile Burt, gun in hand, Dolores threatened, Peter weary?

This is a story with surface violence, and still greater violence underneath. Of two men each innocent, each guilty, one young, one old, one intried and one too tried, the more stable wins but neither goes unscarred. After all, as Peter can never forget, he has survived; out of all those who were maimed, burned, gassed, tortured, starved and mutilated, as he reflects tragically, he escaped. He is the physician who could not heal himself. Pawel uncovers some deepseated infections, and they are more than local, and bigger than a novel.

Fun And Frolic With A Bite; Is Attraction

EATING PEOPLE IS WRONG. By Malcolm Bradbury. Knopf. $4.

Not Oxford and not Cambridge, but a smaller, much less distinguished university, with an academic grove whose worth is measured more in board feet than in the shelter and shade it provides for peripatetic scholars, is the scene of this highly seasoned first novel about teachers, pupils, ambition, love and its satisfactions and frustrations, misfits, and other characters intemperately at sixes and sevens.

The central figure is Treece, nearly 40, bachelor, head of the English department, formed in an innocent age and clinging fast to sound and tried ideals though he has moved automatically into a tougher, more cynical, less scrupulous time. Treece has a faculty of sorts in his charge, he meets with students, he dutifully attends teas, lectures, dances and other functions, but he lives as much out of this world as in. He can fall in love with a teacher or even, indiscreetly, with a pupil. But if Viola is glad to accept what it suits him to offer, Emma is not; she thinks love includes the amenities, like talk, and that thoughtfulness and consideration are parts of it. Poor Treece is so aloofly Treece that he doesn't even know what she means. Emma is the unfortunate one, for both the men she arouses are far short of the perfect answer to her dreams.

While nobody really lives up to anybody's expectations, the one who is let down the most, and the only one to love it, is the author. "Eating people is wrong" according to a popular song, but Bradbury doesn't think badly of the idea, though he'd surely save his hapless but independent Treece for his last meal.

A good bit of the conversation which develops here in such a wry tone suggests I. Compton - Burnett, and Bradbury must at least have visited her circle. But he cuts loose every now and then with a broader wit, and there are very funny incidents — the lecturer who must take off shoes and socks; the Nicholsons who bake bread that tastes very woven and weave curtains that look baked; and Treece's wretched but hilarious time in the hospital where they wore him out so with attentions he wanted to go home and rest, where they kept waking him up to give him sleeping pills. Treece is a treasure; the ideas are ever so sprightly; and the fun and frolic have a bite to them.

Reminder Of Past, Lesson For Future

NARVIK. By Capt. Donald Macintyre. Norton. $3.95.

There had been a fall and winter of phony war, almost no more than a cold war except for Hitler's assaults in the distant East; and the uncertain French and English just sat on their hands. All of a sudden in the bright spring of 1940, the English and Germans both picked the pocked coast of Norway for an outburst of hostilities. Churchill wanted to stop the shipment of Swedish iron ore down inside the screen of islands; Hitler was afraid the British would move into Scandinavia, perhaps to speed help to Finland. Hitler signed the order first — on April 1.

You will remember the names from the black headlines — Narvik in the north, Tromso still farther off, and Namsos, Trondheim and Aandalsnes southward. The Norwegian government longed blindly for peace, but the British were almost as blind about German moves. The Nazis advanced up the narrow waterway to Oslo; the King and cabinet, deciding something was amiss, determined to send out mobilization orders — as the shocked Macintyre puts it in italics — by mail. Even so, at isolated spots soldiers and sailors knowing a German when they saw one did put up a desperate forlorn resistance.

At about the same time, but always a few fatal hours late, the British got landing troops aboard transports, then unloaded them, then sent out warships. They had one inadequate carrier available. The valiant Glowworm, outmatched, nevertheless crippled the Hipper; the Renown put the Gneisenau and Scharnhorst to flight in the spring's heaviest seas. That wasn't enough. Repeatedly displaying the indecision that always loses battles, the Home Fleet missed its great chance to block the enemy, who in little more than a week occupied every key position along the coast.

It was uneven in other ways, too. British submarines couldn't fire on merchant ships without first gallantly, and riskily, surfacing, though when it became clear the enemy was moving supplies and troops, the order was cancelled. On the other hand, the Germans operated under the handicap of fewer compunctions, and more than once obeyed the explicit order to be ruthless.

British Skuas managed to sink the first major warship by air, the Koenigsberg at Bergen; there was the heroic, historic and suicidal entry into the Narvik fjord under Warburton - Lee. But sailors and soldiers got contrary orders, the Admiralty even bypassed admirals with some vital instructions, nights were too short, Stukas were everywhere, and by April 30 and May 1 and 2 the English began withdrawals at Aandalsnes and Namsos. Narvik was no sooner captured than it was abandoned — the British were suffering the ordeal of Dunkirk at just that time. Though English losses were comparatively lighter, Hitler seized and held bases for his murderous attacks on Murmansk convoys.

Macintyre says it was perhaps not a catastrophe but "a defeat . . . most certainly." He blames the Navy for not foreseeing what planes could do, but he goes back primarily for the cause of the 1940 debacle to the "disastrous political decision" of 1918 to transfer the Navy's planes to the Royal Air Force — so fateful are the deeds of one generation for the next. This is a succinct and stirring account; it brings back the war with terrible clarity; it is yesterday pointing to the hazards of tomorrow.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

Several very interesting books of fiction have arrived at the Ouachita Parish Public Library during the past week. "My Brother Michael" is the title of a new book by Mary Stewart, who wrote the highly entertaining "Nine Coaches Waiting" last year. This is a story of love, mystery and terror and has it's setting on the slopes of Mt. Parnassus in Greece. This will surely be very popular. Ilka Chase excellently portrays the contemporary scene in her latest book. "Three Men on the Lift Hand." It is a story of a career girl in New York, of the men she meets and of the problems which beset her. This is not a deep book, but it is surely entertaining.

A most unusual book is "A Choice of Heaven" by J. M. Scott. It has it's setting on a remote island in the South Seas and is a thrilling adventure tale about two men who risk everything to gain a Shangri-la that most men merely dream of. "The Feud" by Amelia Bean has it's setting in the Tonto Bason of Arizona seventy-five years ago. It is a story of the war between the cattle men and the sheepherders. This book is more than the conventional western. These are warm, human people and the color and violence of life in the old West is most appealing. Lawrence Durrell has a small, but loyal audience who will welcome his latest book "Clea" which completes the saga begun in "Justine" and carried on to Balthazar and "Mount Olive." The setting is modern Alexandria and there are many elements in the stories to appeal to the sophisticated reader.

Those interested in the coming presidential campaign should read "A Roman Catholic in the White House" written by James A. Pike, bishop of California. It should help in clarifying one's thinking. An outstanding religious writer is Clive Steples Lewis. His latest book is called "The World's Last Night" and is a book of most thoughtful essays. "Principles of Comparative Psychology" by Rolland H. Waters will appeal to all students of this subject. Books about trials are always popular, the latest one of this type is "The Overbury Affair" by Miriam Allen DeFord. It deals with a famous trial which rocked the court of James I of England.

Do you have a Boston terrier? If you do, you will want to see "How to Raise and Train a Boston Terrier" by Evelyn Miller. It contains a wealth of valuable information. A book which should be valuable to all Little Theatre enthusiasts is "Costuming for the Theatre" by Josephine D. Paterek. One of the most beautiful books which we have received in a long time is "France" by Dore Ogrizek. It is a book for the traveller and for the stay at home. "The Waist High Culture" is the title of a book by Thomas Griffith. It deals with life in present day United States. Of great current interest is "John Kennedy" by James MacGregor Burns. It discusses his political career.

A number of books for young adults are among this week's offerings. "The Keys to Lawrence House" is a mystery story by Virginia Dailey. "Fashion for Cinderella" is an interesting career story about a girl who entered the world of fashion. Two valuable books are "Choosing a Career in a Changing World" by Virginia Westervelt and "Find a Career in Advertising" by Harry Cogswell. "Plants that Changed the World" by Bertha Dodge will interest young farmers and "Gateway to Space" is an interesting introduction to the subject by Charles I. Coombs.

Duo Of Art Treasurers

ANDRE DERAIN. By Denys Sutton. Phaidon - Doubleday. $3.95.

Dead six years, Derain has been a passive painter in the art market for even longer. This author notes the eclipse, and does his best to restore Derain, not to any major key position in our fruitful artistic age, but at least to a sound and substantial place. He was not a man of his times, perhaps, certainly not a man of Picasso's times; but sympathetic with tradition, he was in Ozenfant's phrase "a disenchanted optimist." This perceptive text is accompanied by 100 illustrations, a quarter of them in color.

MANET WATERCOLORS AND PASTELS. By Kurt Martin. Abrams. $27.50.

A really de luxe art book with cellophane envelope and tissue - shielded plates mounted on removable mats, this is a collection of 24 reproductions of pastels and watercolors. The subjects are mostly portraits and cityscapes, sometimes studies for famous paintings like "Luncheon on the Grass." Other artists in this series of Abrams facsimile reproductions hove been Klee and Renoir.

RUNNING THE SCALES

With JOHN CALE

After many weeks of preparation and rehearsals, the Little Theatre presentation of "Guys and Dolls," will open at Selman Field Playhouse Friday.

It has been hoped this production, planned last year, would have marked the decication of a new theatre in the organization's lot just off Louisville on Lamy Lane. Because of various complications the new building program will have to wait. This puts a big question mark on Little Theatre's next season as the old faithful playhouse at Selman Field is about to go the way of the Army Air Corps, horse artillery and other implements of war which served so well nearly a generation ago.

Spiraling building costs ran estimates for the new theatre beyond expectations. So the board of directors is faced with a fund raising problem in connection with finding a place to show next season's plays. Meanwhile, the old theatre has been turned into an arena a la "Pajama Game" and the cast, stage crew, orchestra and director are ready to give the go sign for "Guys and Dolls."

BIG BANDS

On that same night, Friday, April 22, the Tommy Dorsey band will play a concert at Northeast also for a dance on the Frances Hotel roof.

The name and the occasions — both ringing familiar to those who remember the pre-World War II days — invite the question, "What happened to all the big dance bands?"

Emerging from the roaring '20's, numbers of these brass, reed and rhythm combinations managed to survive even the tough days and nights of the big depression. Recordings bore such names as Jan Garber, Guy Lombardo, Wayne King, Russ Morgan, Blue Steele, Glenn Gray, Lud Gluskin, Paul Whiteman, Frankie Masters, Kay Kayser, Shep Fields, Clyde McCoy, Vincent Lopez, Bennie Moton, Bennie Goodman and Glenn Miller, to name just a few of them. Now the list of name bands has dwindled to less than a dozen.

What has happened over the past 20 years would in the popular music field calls for a suitable subject for a study in economics and sociology not to mention musicology. But the big bands seemed to die out with the rise of television. It is completely ironic that the decline came on the eve of high fidelity and stereophonic recordings. Record sales of old 78 R. P.M. types afforded operating capital even to the symphony - sized band of Paul Whitman.

The Glenn Miller band has tried a comeback under several leaders drawn from the old personnel. The same holds true with Bennie Goodman and the Dorsey band slated to appear here. As a rule, the bands make their return bids in fine shape musically. But the appeal once held by a personality "front man" is gone.

Instead, the post World War II period saw the rise of two - or - three piece combos with a vocalist out front. These have run the gamut from hillbilly to its coursing from across - the - tracks - towards - town, rock 'n' roll. When these impromptu creations cease to make money, the instrumentalists may come into their own again.

While the big bands of the post "speak - easy" period may never come back in full blast, this scale runner predicts more big name instrumentalists in front of the dance bands for the 1960's.

FIGURING THE ANGLERS

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI) — The Texas Game and Fish Commission is understandably cautious about introducing new fish into the state's inland waters.

When the commission of 1885 introduced European carp, the fish proved so undesirable that the commission was abolished in the resultant controversy. A new commission was not formed until 1895.

1959-1960 SEASON

Not One Of Best In The Theater

By JACK GAVER
Drama Editor

NEW YORK (UPI) —This has not been the sort of theatrical season to inspire anyone to furnish it with an impassioned defense.

On the other hand, one dislikes to see a rather vulnerable thing made to seem worse than it is.

A columnist, bent on making a comparison to the detriment of the admittedly unhappy 1959 - 60 season, observed the other day that while there were only 23 attractions current, there had been 47 at the same time 10 years before.

This had to be a palpable misstatement because in 1950 there were not enough Broadway theaters to accommodate 47 concurrent attractions. There were, in fact, just about 30, the same number as today. This is a total that, give or take one or two, has prevailed for more than 15 years. You'd have to go back almost 25 years to find 47 available Broadway theaters.

The number of Broadway shows 10 years ago actually totaled 27, and only 21 of those were newcomers of the 1949-50 season. The others were long-run holdovers from previous years.

Even more enlightening is the fact that at this same time 20 years ago the total of attractions was about the same, again with 21 shows of the then current season plus a few holdovers.

It should be remembered that 10 years ago television was in its infancy and virtually no competition to Broadway, which it quite definitely is today. And of course, 20 years ago it didn't exist at all.

Another factor that must be taken into consideration is the off-Broadway theater. There were 30 productions in this category last season, and the total this season will be only slightly less. There are 23 such attractions running now, and don't ever think they don't have some effect on the Broadway box offices.

Even so short a time as 10 years ago there wasn't enough off - Broadway production to rate space in one of the leading annual statistical books. This competition was even more unknown 20 years ago.

So, whatever its failings, the current Broadway season isn't quite as weak as short memories would make it out to be.

More Songs In English Slated Next Season

NEW YORK (UPI) — Next season at the Metropolitan Opera there will be more operas sung in English than in German or in French although, of course, there will be more sung in Italian than in the other languages put together.

General Manager Rudolf Bing has an adroit hand in steering his operatic barge through these language shoals. In principle he sees merit in the language of the audience idea but his steady audiences have strong views which for the most part are strong for the language of the composer.

But he can have his cake and eat it, too, by translating into English only those operas which have no deep lingual roots or those which have few if any partisans. The opera, "Martha," is an example. It has one tenor aria which is imperishable. Otherwise it's a corpse.

This corpse Bing will revive next season, as one of five operas in English. His showman instinct and musical taste are likely to be vindicated because there is every reason to believe "Martha" is a corpse only in the minds of operatic people but not in actuality.

Its first performance was in Vienna in 1847. Its composer, a wealthy nobleman, Baron Friedrich von Flotow, had a wide streak of musical genius in him. Unhappily it was exercised in trivial ways. Martha is an exceedingly light opera. The Met last performed it during its 1928-29 season.

The other four in-English operas are Strauss' "Arabella," Gluck's "Alcestis," Alban Berg's "Wozzeck," and Mouggorsky's "Boris Godunov."

Next season will continue the downward trend of the opera-in-German at the Met. One will be a revival of Strauss' psychological opera, "Electra," which involves the distasteful business of matricide.

The other three are Wagnerian, "Tristan and Isolde," "Parsifal," the standard Easter specialty, and a revival of "Tannhaeuser." The sole French opera will be good old sexy "Carmen." But there will be 14 opera sung in Italian. That enumeration is no complaint, however. Take the Italian out of opera and what do you have left?

Navy Pilot Killed, AF Pilot Escapes

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—A Navy pilot was killed and an Air Force pilot narrowly escaped injury Friday in two widely separated crashes of Navy planes.

Lt. Elwood M. Nielson, 31, of Attack Squadron 42 at Oceana Naval air station, was killed at 11 a.m. when his propeller-driven AD-6 plunged into Chesapeake Bay just off Tangier Island.

He was in a full power climb after a low-level approach to the Tangier bomb target when his plane stalled. It plunged into the bay.

The second crash occurred shortly after 1 p.m. when Air Force Capt. Jude R. McNamara was forced to bail out shortly after taking off from Oceana in a Navy F3U Crusader.

Highland Park Baptist Church To Hold Revival

An Easter season revival has been announced at Highland Park Baptist Church, according to Rev. Edgar L. Wiggins, pastor.

Services will begin today at the morning worship period with Rufus Spraberry serving as evangelist. Sermons were scheduled throughout the week at 9:30 a.m. and 7:30 p.m.

John Taylor will serve as song leader for the occasion and Bob Oldenburg of the First Baptist Church of West Monroe will furnish organ music. Assisting at the piano will be Mrs. N. L. Allbritton of the host church.

Concept Of Hell Varies In New Age

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Is hell a place of eternal punishment, to which unrepentant sinners are consigned at death, and from which they can never hope to escape?

There are passages in the Bible that seem to say it is, and this view has been incorporated in the traditional teachings of many Christian bodies, including the Catholic Church and most fundamentalist Protestant denominations.

But some Christians cannot accept the idea that hell has a one-way door. They believe that God's love for his human children is such that he intends for all of them ultimately to be saved.

Both viewpoints have been under intensive study during the past five years in a special commission of 43 Protestant theologians. The commission was appointed by the United Church of Canada, a denomination created in 1925 by the merger of Canadian Methodist, Presbyterian and Congregationalist churches.

Its report has been published in a 125-page booklet entitled "Life and Death — A Study of the Christian Hope."

NO PAT ANSWERS

Anyone who turns to this report seeking pat answers will be disappointed. The commission concluded that the Bible does not provide "a Baedeker's guide to the next world" and that no particular doctrine of final judgment can be conclusively proved by scriptural texts.

On one hand, it said, Christians "cannot and dare not deny the reality of hell." Jesus may have been "speaking symbolically" in His parables about the last judgment, but His teachings add up to an unmistakable warning that

TUESDAY

New Jersey Polls Ready For Contest

TRENTON, N.J. (AP) — About a fourth of New Jersey's voters are expected to go to the primary polls Tuesday. The hottest contests centers on U.S. Sen. Clifford P. Case's bid for renomination on the Republican ballot.

The Democrats have a U.S. Senate primary contest too, but Thorn Lord, the organization candidate, is considered a walkaway winner. Also to be elected are national convention delegates, congressional nominees and members of county committees.

There will be no state preferential poll for the presidential nominations, such as the one between President Eisenhower and the late Sen. Robert Taft in 1952, which drew a record primary turnout of 924,816 for both parties.

Case is rated a favorite to win renomination over a strong conservative challenge from Robert Morris, a 45-year-old Point Pleasant lawyer who served as counsel to the Communist-hunting U.S. Senate Internal Security subcommittee.

Case, also a lawyer, has spent 25 of his 56 years in public life. He has a reputation as a liberal and his pinned his campaign to a defense of Eisenhower administration policies.

Morris is making his second try for the Senate nomination. He ran third in a three-man field in 1958.

In a busy, handshaking campaign that started almost immediately after his 1958 loss, Morris has repeatedly said Case failed to back up Eisenhower's fight against inflation. He calls Case "one of the big spenders."

Morris started far behind Case but most GOP leaders say he has picked up strength in the past few months. Some of them say the vote might be surprisingly close. Predictions of a Morris upset, though a minority view, have become more frequent.

The Democratic state organization decided on Lord as its candidate in February, just about settling the nomination. Lord is chairman of the Mercer County Democratic organization, one of the most successful in the state.

There is a third candidate in the Republican primary, 37-year-old David G. Dearborn of Elizabeth, the only nonlawyer in the Senate primaries. He is a member of the Union County Republican Committee, has no organization support and is given practically no chance.

The election of convention delegates will be a routine affair for the most part, except for the multitude of names on the Democratic ballot.

The Democrats will have 41 votes at the Los Angeles convention. But they are sending 80 delegates with half a vote each plus 40 alternates. The national committeeman and committeewoman will also have half a vote.

The Republican delegate list is far simpler. The New Jersey delegation will have 38 votes, cast one each by 10 delegates at large and 2 from each district.

In the congressional primaries, there are three Republican contests. The Democrats have congressional contests in six districts.

U.S. Army Not Satisfied With New M14 Rifle

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army's not satisfied with its new M14 rifle and is working toward a much lighter weapon—one perhaps capable or firing several small projectiles at once.

This was disclosed through testimony of Lt. Gen. Arthur G. Trudeau, Army research chief, before the House Defense Appropriations subcommittee. Thursday testified at a closed-door session last month and part of his testimony was made public Friday.

The M14 which is just now being delivered to troops is only slightly lighter than the pre-World War II Garand. About 1,000 of the 269,000 M14's on order have been delivered.

Trudeau said the Army is testing new type ammunition with shorter range but presumably more wounding power. When this ammunition is perfected the ordnance experts "will build a rifle around it that is small and simple as possible."

The general said it is hoped to have ready by 1965 a new rifle that with 750 rounds of ammunition would weigh no more than the M14 and 160 rounds.

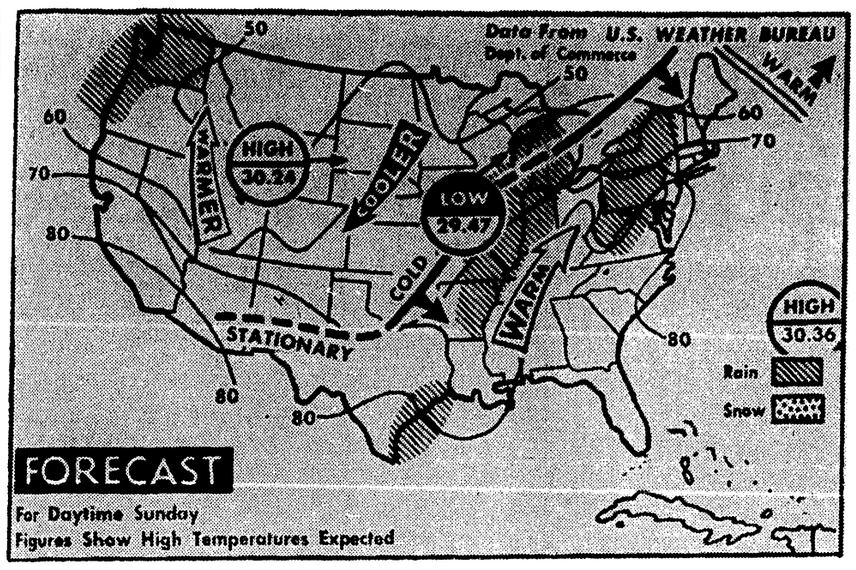
Trudeau's specific testimony on the new ammunition was censored but small arms experts know that so-called "salvo" ammunition firing several projectiles at once is a possibility. Such ammunition would lack the range, accuracy and killing power of the conventional single slug but would be capable of inflicting more wounds, especially at shorter ranges. Incapacitating an enemy soldier is regarded as more useful than killing him.

Trudeau' said the army is trying to get away from the "expert rifleman's concept" that every soldier should be able to hit a bullseye at 1,000 yards. He said most infantry rifle-fighting is done at less than 500 yards.

HOW WAS THAT AGAIN?

NORMAN, Okla. (UPI) — A high school girl went to the University of Oklahoma library to get some information on mercy killings, or euthanasia.

The librarian pondered the word, went to the card index, then returned with this report: "I can't find anything dealing strictly with euthanasia, but I found a book on 'Youth in India'."



IT WILL BE mostly fair for most of the nation Sunday except for scattered showers over the northern Appalachians, eastern portion of lower Lakes and parts of Michigan. Scattered showers are also anticipated for the mid Mississippi Valley, coast of Texas and Pacific northwest. (AP Wirephoto Map)

'STIRRING UP DOUBTS'

Kennedy's Backers Object Of Rapping

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — The cochairmen of the West Virginia Humphrey- for - President Committee Saturday accused Sen. John F. Kennedy's supporters of "deliberately stirring up doubts as to the fairness and tolerance of our voters."

They said the object of the Massachusetts Democrat's supporters is to "create a climate which makes it unfair not to vote for Kennedy, regardless of whether or not he is qualified."

They said Kennedy himself "seems to think everybody who doesn't want him to be president is a bigot."

Kennedy is a Roman Catholic.

The cochairmen, William Jacobs of Parkersburg and Marshall West of Oceana, made their accusations at a news conference in the Humphrey-for- President Committee headquarters in Charleston.

They said their immediate provocation was a story which a Washington columnist wrote about Slab Fork, W.Va., where he said he found a great deal of anti-Catholic sentiment.

There are those who profess to believe such sentiment in West Virginia may react against Kennedy in the May 10 Democratic presidential preference primary. Kennedy's opponent, Sen Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn), is a Congregationalist.

Approximately five per cent of West Virginia's population is listed as Catholic.

"It is difficult to find any other explanation, as the sources most actively accusing the West Virginians of intolerance are and have been consistent supporters of Kennedy.

Ike Prepares For Talks With French Leaders

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UPI) — President Eisenhower spent two hours Saturday in intensive preparation for his forthcoming Washington talks with French President Charles De Gaulle and the May 16 summit meeting in Paris.

The President's son, Maj. John S. Eisenhower, in his role as assistant White House staff secretary, brought with him from Washington Friday a number of secret documents relating to the De Gaulle visit, the summit and the chief executive's June trip to Russia and the Far West.

Wayne Hawks, acting White House press secretary, called the conference this morning "quite an extensive session in preparation for the summit."

PREPARATORY

The summit meeting preparatory material was forwarded to the chief executive by Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and presumably contained a resume of the Washington meeting this week of the Western foreign ministers.

As the chief executive pored over papers dealing with foreign policy, he was reported to be somewhat allergic to speculation that his role at the summit might be relatively ineffectual because of his short time left in office.

There have been printed and broadcast analyses of his stature at the forthcoming summit indicating that little progress can be expected from the Paris meeting because Eisenhower, leaving office next January, will be unable to make any long term policy committments for the United States.

DRUG HISTORY

Group Reminded Of Olden Times

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee was reminded this week there was a time in history when some doctors were "drug-happy," a situation which allegedly prevails today.

Dr. William Bean of Iowa University's Medical School brought chuckles from all of Sen. Estes Kefauver's drug industry investigators when he told of the treatment given King Charles II of England in 1685.

This is what the royal physicians put him through:

A pint of blood was removed from his right arm, then eight ounces from his shoulder, and then in succession he was given an emetic, two physics and an enema containing 15 substances.

Then his head was shaved, a blister was raised on the scalp, a sneezing powder was given to purge the brain, then cowslip powder to strengthen it.

KING DIED ANYWAY

Meanwhile, more emetics, soothing drinks and still more bleeding. A plaster of pitch and pigeon dung was applied to the royal feet.

The following substances were taken internally: Melon seeds, slippery elm, black cherry water, extract of lily-of-the-valley, peony, lavender, pears dissolved in vinegar, gentian root, nutmeg and finally, 40 drops of an extract of the human skull.

As a last resort, Dr. Bean said, the bezoar stone was employed, but the king died anyway.

Another witness, Dr. A. Dale Console, of Princeton, N.J., a former medical director of Squibb Laboratories, also dug back in history.

Console said it was a practice during the Middle Ages for some people to wear suspended from the neck a cloth bag filled with asafoetida.

HAD FOUL SMELL

"The foul smell was believed to ward off plague," he said. "Apparently someone had observed that some people who used this medicinal fetish did not contract plague. Either it was not observed or not considered important that some who did not use it also did not contract plague.

Console said the unscientific practice flourished a long time simply because it gave some people a greater sense of security and made them feel better—at least until they got the plague.

The doctor said the drug industry today sometimes markets products smacking of the Middle Ages.

Has your dollar been getting smaller? Can we hope to avoid sky-rocketing prices in the future? We can! This is the studied opinion of 64 leading representatives of education, government, labor and business, who conferred recently at the American Assembly. They agreed that America should strive for three goals: dynamic growth . . . low unemployment . . . reasonably stable prices. But it won't be easy! Needed is the whole-hearted cooperation of all Americans in working to achieve a steadily rising productivity.

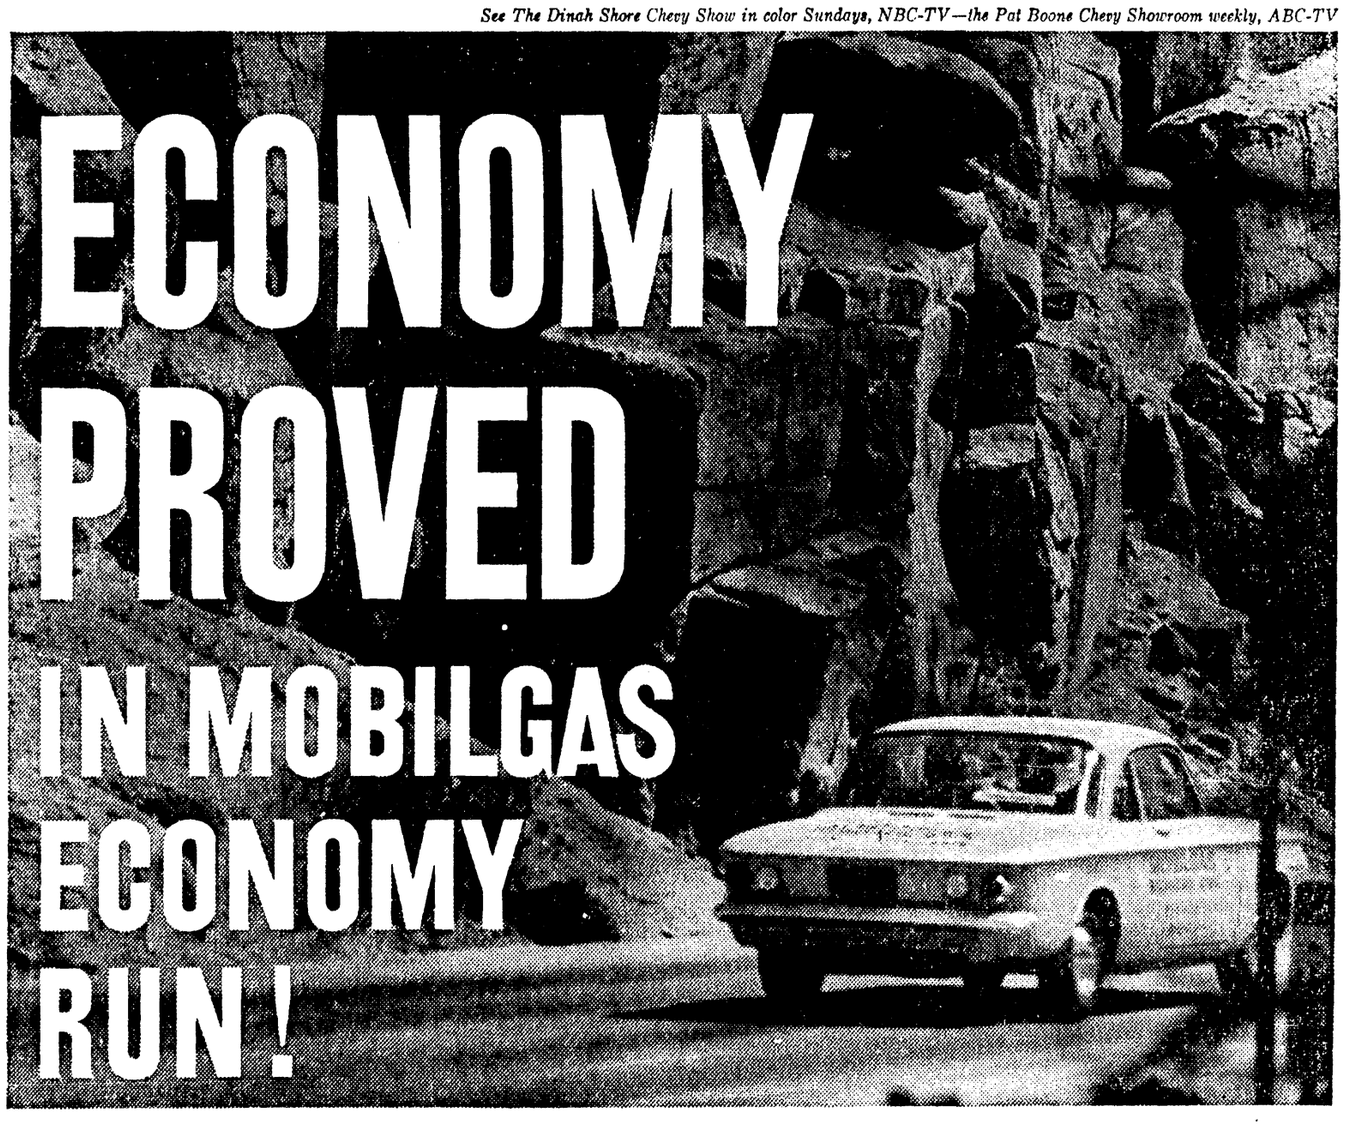
ECONOMY PROVED IN MOBILGAS ECONOMY RUN!



CORVAIR BY CHEVROLET DRIVE IT! GET OUR DEAL!!!!

A pair of Corvairs recently recorded 27.03 and 26.21 miles per gallon in the 2,061.4-mile Mobilgas Economy Run. That's certified proof that Corvair skimps on gas costs. It saves other ways, too. Corvair is the only U. S. compact that never needs antifreeze or costly radiator repairs. It's also the only one that provides the superb traction of a rear-engine design or the supple riding qualities of 4-wheel independent suspension. Drive it—just once.

Look at all the things Corvair gives you that America's other compact cars can't:

PRACTICALLY FLAT FLOOR . . . front and rear. Room for your feet, even if you're sitting in the middle. FOLD-DOWN REAR SEAT . . . that offers 17.6 cubic feet of storage space besides what's in the trunk. FOUR-WHEEL INDEPENDENT SUSPENSION . . . that gives each wheel its own coil spring and its own knee action. NO FUSSING WITH ANTIFREEZE . . . or water or radiator repairs with Corvair's air-cooled engine. REAR-ENGINE TRACTION . . . that comes with the engine's weight bearing down on the rear wheels.

You probably realize already that the mileage figures Corvairs recorded in the Mobilgas Run are higher than the average driver can expect. But because the cars met every kind of driving condition—rugged mountain grades, long country straightaways, congested city traffic—those mileage figures prove Corvair's inherent ability to save. Operating costs take a nose dive the day you take delivery of a Corvair.

Northeast Thinclads Defeat East Texas State
LSU, Miss. State Share Easter Baseball Crown

Maroons Repeat As Co-Champs

Mississippi State, cimaxing a long haul after dropping its opening game Thursday, crushed Baylor 14-2, and LSU squeezed past Northwestern, 3-2, here Saturday afternoon to tie for the second annual Northeast Easter Baseball Tournament championship.

The Statemen, who were almost knocked from contention by a 6-4 loss to LSU in the opening round, exploded for 12 hits — two of which were homers — and got a nifty four - hit pitching job from sophomore righthander Frank Janous to deadlock first place after LSU had shot into the lead temporarily with a morning victory.

Northeast, defending tournament co - champion along with Mississippi State, dropped to fifth place in the final standings, bowing to Arkansas in a free-swinging slugfest, 11-8.

Mississippi State third baseman Gary Dempsey, who led his club in the field and at the plate, was named the tournament's most valuable player by sports writers and broadcasters.

Going into the final day of play with LSU, Baylor and Mississippi State deadlocked for the top rung, the Tigers were the first to break the stalemate, edging winless Northwestern in the day's opening action.

In the following game it ended suddenly for Baylor, batting with State for the other first place spot, as the Maroons used a three - run homer by first baseman Dudley Hutchinson to explode for six runs in the first inning. Larry Brannon slammed a two - run clout in the second inning to put the game out of reach before Baylor, hard-hit because of the temporary suspension of seven key players, could manage more than one hit.

Northeast and Arkansas, both out of the running, locked up in a free - scoring donneybrook that produced four home runs. The Indians almost pulled it out of the fire in the final frame, scoring four runs and leaving the bases loaded with Redskins.

MISS. STATE 14, BAYLOR 2

Entering the contest with three regulars on the sidelines because of curfew violations, Baylor lost the game in the opening inning as State pushed across six runs.

Larry Adams started the rout with a leadoff single and John Cantrel was safe when third baseman Bob Turner booted his grounder. Gary Dempsey sacrificed the runners down and Larry Brannon plated Adams with a clean single.

Don Parvin walked to lead the bases and Dave Parvin stroked a two - run single to center, finishing starter Jim Daniel and bringing on Howard Lee. Lee retired Roy Johnson on a pop fly but Hutchinson hammered his next offering over the left field fence to make the score 6-0.

In the second stanza the Maroons picked up where they left off, sending seven batters to the dish and counting three more times. Adams led off with a double and loped home on Cantrel's safety. Then Brannon, who belted a home run in State's loss to LSU on opening day, smashed Lee's pitch over the left field wall to put the game on ice.

Baylor broke into the scoring column in the third on Sam Terry's double and Tommy Letbetter's single and added another tally in the fourth on walks to Bob Turner and Gerald Erwin and a base hit by Turner.

Frank Janous, who went the distance for the winners, proceeded to retire the last ten Baylor batters in order, striking out seven.

Erwin, who came to the relief of Lee at the start of the third stanza, pitched creditable ball for two innings but the Statemen caught up with him in the fifth.

Parvin singled in Don Pope, on with a triple, and romped home on Hutchinson's second extra - base wallop — a two-bagger. Adams' single pushed Hutchinson across with the 12th counter.

Parvin wound up the scoring with a home run behind a free ticket to Brannon in the final inning.

Parvin had three hits and five runs batted in while Adams cracked three hits in four trips. Terry and Letbetter accounted for all four of Baylor's safeties.

ARKANSAS 11, NORTHEAST 8

Supported by home runs by Darrell Williams, Norman Revis and Pat Foster, the Razorbacks rambled to a seven run over the Indians, then staved off a last-ditch rally in the final inning that left Northeast three runs short.

Leading 11-4 going into the last half of the seventh inning, Arkansas appeared to have the game sewed up with reliever Don Martin setting the Indians down regularly in the middle frames.

Louis Kincaid, the first and last batter of the big inning, opened with a single and hard-hitting Phil Petras, the tournament's leading hitter with nine safeties, clouted a towering home run over the left field fence.

Martin then gave up a bunt single to George Bryan and walked pinch hitter Ralph Ward before being pulled in favor of righthander Gary Weaver. Weaver got Ronnie Sims on an infield popper and retired pinch hitter Mickey Yerger on a fly to first. He followed with free passes to Eddie McGowen and Levy Redden, forcing in the third run of the inning and sending lefthander Darrell Peters, the fourth Razorback moundsman, to the hill.

Peters threw four balls to John O'Conner, scoring Ward. With the bags still loaded and the potential winning run at the plate, Kincaid bounced out on a hard grounder to second for the final out.

Williams sent the visitors into a quick one-run lead in the first inning, socking the second pitch of the game over the right field fence.

Northeast pushed over four runs on only one hit in the third inning to take the lead. Bobby Lockwood, the Indian starting pitcher was safe on an error and McGowen worked Martin for a walk.

Two consecutive errors on Redden's infield grounder scored both McGowen and Lockwood and sent Redden to third. O'Conner and Kincaid walked to load the sacks and Petras delivered his third double in two games to account for two more tallies.

Four runs in the fourth, two in the fifth, two in the sixth and two in the seventh wrapped it up for Arkansas in the seventh.

Revis' three-run homer in the fourth and Foster's two-run blast in the seventh powered the scoring in the later stages.

Max Holloway and Foster banged out three hits apiece for Arkansas while Petras and McGowan got two each in the seven-hit Northeast attack.

LSU 3, NORTHWESTERN 2

Excellent clutch pitching by Bob Flowers and maximum mileage out of five hits gave LSU a 3-2 victory over Northwestern and a share of first place in the Easter Tournament yesterday morning.

Flowers came on in relief of starter Cecil Raggio in the fourth with two runs in, a man on third and only one out. He retired the next two men and then squeezed out of a bases - loaded jam in the fifth to take the victory.

Flowers caused his own troubles in the fifth. He walked leadoff man Mack Knotts then erred on Tom Baker's sacrifice bunt, giving the winless Demons two baserunners with nobody out. Flowers got Houston Cade out on a grounder but Ralph Conrad singled to load the bases. But righty Flowers induced John Fisher to pop up to short and retired Nick D'Amico on a bouncer back to the mound.

Most of LSU's five hits were of the scratch variety and two of its runs scored on sacrifice flies. Morris Summers started off the Tigers' scoring in the second by singling and going to third on pitcher Robert Bates' throwing error. He came home when George Nattin's pop fly fell behind the infield for a double.

Northwestern scored both its runs in the fourth. Ralph Conrad gained first on Raggio's throwing error and D'Amico walked. Smith, who hit two home runs Friday, settled for a triple Saturday to drive home both runners. Then Flowers came in to shut the door.

Northwestern got two more hits than LSU but stranded nine baserunners.

PINCH BLOW SPOILS BID

Sam Jones Hurls One-Hit Victory Over Chicago, 6-1

By AL CLINE

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sam Jones pitched no-hit ball for 7 2-3 innings Saturday until pinch-hitter Walt Moryn homered for the Chicago Cubs' only hit in a 6-1 San Francisco Giant victory.

Jones, a no-hit, no-run pitcher in 1955 as a Cub, retired 17 men in a row from the third inning to the eighth. Then Moryn, hitting for pitcher John Goetz, came up with two out. Big Walt hit a two-one pitch high over the right field fence.

The victory was the second straight for Jones, who threw a three-hitter in Tuesday's 3-1 opening victory against St. Louis.

Only one Cub reached second base besides Moryn. In the second, Frank Thomas walked and was forced by George Altman, who advanced to second on Don Zimmer's walk.

Jones pitched an abbreviated seven-inning no-hit game against St. Louis last season and narrowly missed a nine-inning no-hitter against the Dodgers in Los Angeles. A controversial hit spoiled that one in the eighth.

Saturday, Jones walked three and struck out three. He had great support. Don Blasingame made a beautiful running catch to his right on Richie Ashburn's liner in the sixth. In the ninth, Willie Mays went far to his right to catch Bob Will's fly, then jumped over Orlando Cepeda, who was coming over from left field.

The Giants stole three bases and collected seven hits off four pitchers. Blasingame singled once, walked twice and stole two bases. Cepeda stole another.

Starter and loser Dick Drott gave up a lone run in the two innings he pitched. He left when his arm began to bother him. Cub Manager Charlie Grimm said he did not want to risk an injury to Drott's arm, which had been hit in practice by a batted ball earlier this week.

The crowd of 29,771 saw the Giant power get only one extra base hit, a double in the three-run drove in two runs.

Heads-up base running led to two Giant runs in the third. Blasingame singled off Glen Hobbie and stole second. He moved to third on an infield out and scored on the first of two singles by Mays. Mays raced to second when Willie McCovey grounded to the pitcher and scored on Cepeda's single.

Kirkland's double down the right field line brought a loud beef from Cub catcher Del Rice, who insisted the ball was foul. He lost the argument. Mays and McCovey scored.

Indians Slower But Fast Enough

By BOB ANDERSON
World Sports Editor

Northeast's track team — a step slower than Thursday night when they mauled SEC champion LSU and rewrote the Brown Stadium record book but still several paces ahead of East Texas State's lean flyers—won victory No. 9 in a sensational season Saturday night in their second and final appearance before Monroe fans.

The score was 80½ points for Northeast to 66½ for the Texans and Hoy Rogers and James Copeland cinched the victory with a 1-3 finish in the discus, completed just before the mile relay which a tired Dave Styron sat out. The famed Indian mile team won anyway.

McNeese was third in the meet with 28 points.

Northeast took 10 first places in the meet but had only a two point lead with two events left, the discus and mile relay. Rogers' distance of 164-4 ¾ won the discus and Copeland was third with 121-6 to cinch the victory.

The mile relay team, with Randall Walker running the first lap instead of Dave Styron, won its event easily to add frosting to the cake.

Sid Garton of East Texas beat Dave in the night's feature event, running the 100 in 9.5 to finish about two feet in front of the sprinting Styron. Garton also won the 220 with Dave sitting the event out.

Aiming for a spot on the Olympics in the 400 meters, Dave Styron ran the second 440 of his career last night, winning in 47.6, one - tenth of a second slower than the one he ran last season.

Don Styron picked up first places in both the hurdles, taking the highs in 14.3, breaking a string of three 13.9 clockings he had run up in the event. Don won the lows easily in 23.3. Two weeks ago he ran the event in 21.9, better than the world record.

Don Eiland captured his specialities, the mile and two mile. Rogers won the shot put, and John Pennel the pole vault to complete the list of Northeast firsts.

Firsts for East Texas, the king of small college track until Northeast came along, were Garton's two sprint triumphs, the 440 relay, Soc Bagiackas in the 880 run, and NAIA record holder James Baird's 24 - 4¾ broad jump.

McNeese had three athletes tie for first in the high jump at 6 feet, Anton Smajstrla, Darrell Ocker and Fred Thompson, and won the 880 relay by forfeit when neither East Texas or Northeast entered a team.

Garton tied the Brown Stadium record of 9.5 set by Dave Thursday night against LSU. Stadium records fell in the 880 run as Bagiackas clicked off a 1:52.4 time, in the 220 as Garton ran it in 21.4 and in the discus with Rogers' 164-4¾ toss.

Another big crowd watched the meet, final affair in Northeast's big Easter weekend sports carnival. The crowds for last night's meet and the LSU dual affair contributed over $600 dollars to a fund inaugurated by the Northeast Boosters Club to send Northeast's top prospects to the Olympic trials in Palo Alto, California, July 1-2.

A duel between East Texas' star hurdler, Buddy McKee, and Don Styron failed to materialize when McKee sat out both hurdles events with an injured leg.

Garton and Dave Styron ran chest - to chest for the first 50 yards of the century but the East Texas ace pulled ahead at the halfway point and won by a couple of feet. His victory gave Garton the edge in his duels with Styron, two to one. Dave beat Garton in the Southwestern Recreation Meet but lost to him at the SLI relays.

Eiland was never pushed in both the mile and two mile, jumping into quick leads and extending them. He ran the mile in 4:13.8, 13.8 off his time Thursday night, and had a 9:28.9 clocking in the two mile. Indian Bill Frye finished out of the money in the mile but was third in the two mile after jockeying with Texan Hylke Van Der Wal for most of the event.

East Texas led all the way in the 440 relay. Don Styron gave it a good try on the last leg, starting off behind Garton but pulling even about half way. Garton, however, took the lead again and held it. East Texas' time was 41.1.

Dave Styron took over the lead at the halfway point in the 440 run and won easily nihis last run of the night. The star sprinter is expected to be ready for his full schedule April 23rd when Northeast runs in the LSU Invitational at Baton Rouge.

Freshman Randall Walker running the first lap of the mile relay in place of Dave, ran like a first - teamer, getting the Indians off to a good lead in the event. Jim Mouser, and Dick Hays stretched the Indian advantage and Garton's finishing leg was too little and too late to catch Don Styron.

Knipping Holds Slim Lead In Bowling Playoff

Jerry Knipping held a slim lead over Don Waldron last night as the Northeast Louisiana bowling tournament moves into the final round today.

The eight remaining keglers will bowl 12 games today, with the top two advancing to the state playoffs.

Knipping rolled up 5811 points under the Peterson point system to hold a bare margin over second place Waldron who has totaled 56. The Petersen system provides one point for each game won, one point for each 50 pins and one-half point for each series won.

In third place is Tommy Higgins with 54 points. John Floyd and E. B. Peddy have 49 each, defending champion Bob Creighton has 46, Theo Finkbeiner has 44 and Jerry Paylor has totaled 41.

INTERCOLLEGIATE GOLF

Essig Shares Medalist Title

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Don Essig, the defending champion from Louisiana State University, fired a final round 70 Saturday to share the individual medal championship of the sixth National Intercollegiate Golf Tournament with Houston sophomores Larry Beck and Homero Blancas.

Darkness prevented a playoff and the trio will share the title with 1-under-par 278s for the 6,801-yard, par 72 Pine Forest Country Club course.

Essig moved into contention as Beck and Gene Dixon of Memphis State, the 54-hole leaders, faltered on the final 18 holes with a 75 and an 87. Dixon, the medalist Wednesday with a 71, dropped to a sixth-place 299 in final standings.

Essig had earlier rounds of 74, 70 and 73. Blancas tied with a 72-74-70-71. Beck had earlier rounds of 73, 69, 70.

Houston won the team medal and over-all team championship, but a 50-yard chip shot by Jacky O'Neill on the final hole gave LSU a 3½-2½ victory over the Cougars for the team match title.

Houston won the team medal with 1,160. Next were LSU 1,195, Oklahoma State 1,230, New Mexico 1,241, Texas A&M 1,243, North Texas 1,244, Tulsa 1,270, Baylor 1,272, Southern Methodist 1,272, Arizona State of Tempe 1,272, Texas Tech 1,272, Memphis State 1,280, Texas 1,296, Western Illinois 1,297, Oklahoma 1,370 and Rice 1,343.

Houston grabbed the over-all team title with 133 points. LSU had 110½, Texas A&M 40, Oklahoma State 32, New Mexico 22¼, Memphis State 12, SMU 11 Tulsa 8 Baylor 3, Texas Tech 3 and Texas 1.

Essig also shared two other titles. His LSU team won the low four-ball with 259. Essig and Sam Carmichael won low two-ball with 269.

Texas A&M defeated North Texas 4-2 for third place in team match play. Oklahoma State took fifth by defeating New Mexico 4½-1½. Seventh place went to SMU with a 6-0 victory over Tulsa.

Baylor finished ninth by beating Texas 6-0 while Texas Tech ranked 11th by defeating Memphis State 4-2. Memphis State copped 13th place with low medal over Arizona State in a 3-3 tie. Oklahoma defeated Rice 4-2 for 15th place.

Easily Tops 15-Foot Mark

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP)—Illinois and Oklahoma State dominated the Arkansas Relays track and field meet Saturday as four records fell.

Illinois won three relay events, setting a record in the mile relay, and Oklahoma State won two relays, setting a record in the distance medley.

Illinois won the 4-mile and sprint relays Friday, setting a record of 3:26.4 in the sprint.

Former Arkansas distance runner Tom Oakley, set a record of 9:21.4 in winning the 2-mile.

Illinois' mile relay team of John Lattimore, Ed Houston, Del Coleman and George Kerr was caught in 3:15 flat.

LOOKS 'EM OVER

Carroll At Sterlington

Make ready to welcome a new high school into the Louisiana family of prep athletics.

The new institution is at Sterlington where school athletics, particularly in basketball, have been growing since A. L. Smith Grammar School began winning titles in the elementary leagues, and, later, as A. L. Smith Junior High, began sponsoring this area's first junior high cage tournament.

Guy Carroll, a veteran of the coaching profession, will be making his coaching comeback as the first high school boss of athletics at Sterlington. Football will be a major sport on the new athletic menu for this newest Ouachita parish school.

Commenting on his decision to once again become a head coach, Carrol said, "I'm not happy out, so I might as well get back in.

Under the new school system at Sterlington this fall, the present buildings of the A. L. Smith Junior High will become an elementary school for grades up to the sixth. The new high school, also to house the junior high, will offer classes from the seventh grade up. The high school is a separate plant from the present school, and will have its own football field and gymnasium.

The athletic teams will be nicknamed the Panthers. School colors will be blue and white.

The football field is being made ready for play this fall, and Sterlington is already boasting that its new gymnasium will be among the best in Louisiana high schools. The stadium will, under present plans, seat 1,500 fans and will be lighted for night games.

Carroll was born at Rayville but spent most of his life in Homer where he participated in high school athletics. A Louisiana Tech athlete and graduate of 1939, Carroll began coaching at Rayville High in 1940. World War II claimed his services aboard a naval transport, but he returned to coach the Rayville Hornets for one year after the war. In 1946 he went to LaGrange where he spent five years building the Gators into an athletic power in the state.

He coached at Bolton for four and a half years after leaving LaGrange, leaving the Alexandria school at mid-term in '55 to move to Springhill High School where he has since served in physical ed and advanced driver training, jobs outside the coaching field.

Sterlington expects a high school enrollment of around 75 boys and Class B rating by the Louisiana High Schol Athletic Association. Sterlington does not expect to be a title contender this year although the town, which has been sending its high school students by bus to Ouachita High in Monroe, had five starters on last season's Ouachita eleven.

Coach Carroll is married to the former Miss Josie Mae Tillman of Mangham. They have three children, 10-year-old son Danny Lynn, and daughters, Alva Jo, 12, and Suzanne, four.

Day For Daye

Donnie Daye, the LSU halfback who first won athletic fame for Ferriday High's once state champions, will be given a "day" of his own at Sunset where he went to school for eight years before his family shifted him to Ferriday. The Daye celebration is scheduled for May 18 at Sunset High School.

Not long ago another Ferriday grid great, Max Fugler, was given a "day" at Vidalia. Donnie's parents and other Concordia parish friends are being invited to the Sunset program.

Rebel League

The Rebel Baseball League of West Monroe is ready to register boys from 12 through 15 years of age who want to participate in the youth athletic program this summer.

Coach Cecil Pirkey, West Monroe High, has been named league director, and will accept player registrations at the school.

John McCormick is league president this year, Earl Duncan has been named vice president, and Fred Woodcock is secretary.

The league plans to play on the new lighted diamond being built at the Southside Playground in West Monroe.

We Need Exercise

A recent issue of the Medical News comes up with a story giving this theory on heart troubles.

"Lack of exercise is suspected of being a cause of heart disease and is a threat to western civilization, five medical researchers reported. The physical inactivity of western nations is being increasingly suspected of being one of the most important causes of heart diseases and fatal heart attacks. Doctors from four different countries reported at a meeting of the American College of Physicians in Chicago that in terms of natural biological characteristics of the human race, as it has presumably existed for thousands of years, is not the so-called 'athlete's heart' which should be considered abnormal, but rather the degenerating, inadequate 'loafer's heart' for our present day civlized majorities."

Athletic Benefits

Dr. Creighton Hale, research director and vice president of Little League Baseball, Inc., says in a recent review of research that "physiological and sociological studies indicate that boys who participate in competitive sports are more mature, more highly skilled, more socially accepted, and better adjusted, and have broader interests than boys who have no experience in competitive athletics. The present evidence indicates pre-high school age children are not harmed, but rather benefit considerably from interscholastic athletic experience."

Champ Flying To New York To Sign Pact

PRANGINS, Switzerland (AP)—World Heavyweight Champion Ingemar Johansson said Saturday he is flying to New York next Monday to sign the contract for his June 22 return fight against Floyd Patterson.

Johansson has been training in Switzerland since April 5 when he piloted his own four-seater plane into Geneva from his hometown, Goteborg, Sweden.

"I guess I have been flying just as much as I have been training," he said. "I spend at least two or three hours in the air every day but from now on there will be just training."

He said he has not had any sparring partners in Geneva, where he established residence. But he said he felt in great shape.

"But it's too bad I have to give up flying," he added. "This was the last of it for a long time."

Tigers Tumble Athletics, 5-1

TIGERS 5, A'S 1

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., (AP)—Detroit's Paul Foytack, ineffective through most of the exhibition season, redeemed himself Saturday with a strong 6-inning pitching performance in the Tigers' 5-1 warm-up triumph over the Kansas City Athletics.

Steve Bilko smashed a 2-run homer for the Tigers as they scored three runs against Ned Garver in the fourth inning to wrap up the decision.

Foytack limited the Athletics to one run and four hits in six innings and did not walk a batter. Pete Burnside finished. The Athletics' lone run crossed in the second on a homer by Norm Siebern.

Foytack had made five appearances prior to Saturday and had been battered for 12 earned runs in 19 innings. The performance probably saved his spot in the starting rotation.

RED SOX 4, YANKEES 1

NEW YORK (AP)—The fine showing of the Boston Red Sox pitching staff continued Saturday when a trio of hurlers held the New York Yankees to three hits for a 4-1 exhibition victory.

The game was played in windy, 50-degree weather before a small, chilled crowd of 3,585 at Yankee Stadium.

Dave Hillman allowed two hits in the first three innings. Bill Monbouquette hurled hitless ball over the middle three and Nelson Chittum finished it off. The Yankee run came on rookie outfielder Deron Johnson's homer in the second inning off Hillman.

The latter, obtained from the Chicago Cubs in a winter deal, was working for the first time since sustaining an injury to his right shoulder in an auto accident near Scottsdale, Ariz. on March 9.

Three Yankee pitchers were tagged for seven hits and issued 11 walks. Rookie left-hander Billy Short gave up four blows and a run in five innings. Art Ditmar was tagged with the loss when Boston scored three unearned runs in the sixth because Yogi Berra dropped a throw at home plate. Ryne Duren worked two hitless innings and fanned four.

Ditmar, a spring disappointment, walked Haywood Sullivan and Gene Stephens after two out in the sixth. Monbouquette got an infield hit and Sullivan scored when Berra juggled Bob Richardson's throw. Ditmar then passed Pumpsie Green to reload the bases and Don Buddin doubled home two more runs.

RICHMOND 6, ORIOLES 2

RICHMOND, Va. (AP)—Rookie Chuck Estrada, expected to be a starter for the Baltimore Orioles this season, was treated roughly by Richmond Saturday as the International League team whipped the Orioles 6-2 in an exhibition game.

The Virginians made seven hits and five runs off the 22-year-old right-hander in three innings.

Leading the 10-hit Richmond assault was player-coach Granny Hamner, former player for the Philadelphia Phils. The 35-year-old veteran hit a homer and two singles while driving in three runs.

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — Rookie Wynn Hawkins, a 24-year-old New Waterford, Ohio, right - hander, hurled five hitless and runless innings for the Cleveland Indians Saturday in beating the Chicago White Sox 4-1.

The Chisox got only two hits—both off Bob Grim with two out in the seventh. Then Johnny Klippstein hurled hitless ball for the final two innings. A double by Minnie Minso and a single by Al Smith scored the one Chicago run.

Rookie outfielder Walt Bond hit his sixth homer of the exhibition season with a runner on base, to account for the last two Cleveland scores in the seventh inning off Bob Shaw.

Shaw also was nicked for a pair of doubles by Tito Francona and a pair of singles by Vic Power and gave up a total of eight hits in the seven innings he worked.

SENATORS 15, CHARLOTTE 0

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Three-run homers by Dan Dobbek and Reno Bertoia carried the Washington Senators to a 15-0 exhibition victory over Charlotte of the Class A Sally League Saturday night.

Dobbek hit his homer in the sixth inning with the Senators already ahead 9-0. Bertoia's came in the ninth.

Washington got fur runs in the first on a single by Ken Aspermonte, doubles by Don Mincher and Harmon Killebrew, a hit batsman and a walk. Five more runs trotted across in the third on two walks, two errors and singles by Lennis Green, Jose Valdiellso and pitcher Russ Kemmerer.

Three Washington pitchers fanned 11 of their Sally League farm hands and walked only two.

Freddie Glover of Cleveland won his second American Hockey League scoring crown with 107 points on 38 goals and 69 assists last season. He had 99 points during the 1956-57 campaign.

Wyoming's football team will play home games next fall against New Mexico, Denver, Air Force and Utah.

Jones Wasn't Interested In No-Hit Game

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Sam Jones was philosophical about the home run that spoiled his no-hit bid Saturday.

"All I care for is winning; if we can win I'm satisfied," said Sam.

The Giant right-hander said he threw Chicago's pinch hitting Walt Moryn a fast ball with two out in the eighth. Moryn slammed it over the fence for the only Cub hit in a 6-1 victory.

"I was pitching just the same as I always pitch, no different," the 34-year-old hurler said in the clubhouse. "I just wanted to win the ball game."

Jones concended Morny really clouted it. Sam said he wasn't tired but that his arm had been tightening up the last five innings.

"Doc really knows what he's doing," the pitcher said of trainer Frank Bowman. "He kept my arm loose. I don't know what I'd do without him."

Moryn was a little surprised when Jones pitched him two straight fast balls.

"I've got some hits off of him but he's also struck me out," Moryn said. "Maybe if he had pitched the no-hitter he would have a bad year. That's the way it happens sometimes. He really pitched a helluva ball game."

Ernie Banks, whose grand slam home run helped give the Cubs a 6-5 victory in the series' opener Thursday night, commented:

"Old Sam was as cool as a popsickle."

Giants' Manager Bill Rigney declared: "Sam is an amazing man. He did'nt have as much stuff as opening day but he kept the ball down and seemed to say 'you've go to beat me now.' He's a great pitcher. This is going to be a good park for him because he really throws strikes," Rigney said.

NEW ORGANIZATION

7 Area Towns To Field Pelican Teams

Seven northeast Louisiana towns will field Pelican League baseball teams this summer and several other communities may come into the new program, District Commissioner Woody Boyles said this weekend.

Boyles, Oak Grove football and baseball coach, said Monterey, Ferriday, St. Joseph, Newellton, Tallulah, Delhi and Oak Grove plan to enter teams in the league.

Similar to American Legion baseball, the Pelican League is open to boys 15 through 17. The organization was set up in Louisiana for the first time this year although some teams played without charters last season.

O'Hearn Mathews of Alexandria is the state president and Harold Knight, Louisiana College Coach, is commissioner of the league while John Clark of Delhi is president of the northeast league.

Boyles announced a meeting would be held Sunday, April 24, at the Delhi City Hall. Any city interested in joining the program should be represented at this meeting, Boyles said. Only one more meeting will be held before the season opens.

Boyles indicated the northeast league would probably be divided into north and south divisions to cut down on travel. A tournament within the district at the end of the season will determine the district champion. The district champion and an all - star team composed of the best players from the other clubs in the district will attend the state tournament in August, Boyles said.

"In order to keep big city teams from dominating the league," Boyles said," cities of the size of Ruston, West Monroe or Bastrop are required to enter two team and larger cities three or four. This way the small towns will be able to compete on even terms with larger towns."

Glenn Shaw Inks Chicago Contract

CHICAGO (AP) — Glenn Shaw, co-captain of the Kentucky football team last year, has signed with the Chicago Bears, Owner-coach George Halas said Saturday.

The 217-pounder was chosen by the Bears on the 11th round of this year's National Football League draft.

"Blanton Collier (Kentucky coach) says Shaw was his best blocking back and an excellent defensive man," said Halas. "That's significant, because the record shows Shaw also was a consistently successful ball carrier at halfback and fullback."

Shaw was a nine-letter winner in football, track and basketball in his high school days at Paducah, Ky.

Snead Vaults Into 3-Stroke Lead In Greensboro Golf

By KEN ALYTA

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Snead shot a 4-under-par 67 and vaulted into a three-shot lead with a 201 total for 54 holes Saturday in his bid for a seventh Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament victory.

The 47-year-old White Sulphur Springs, W.Va., professional broke out of a 36-hole tie with Dow Finsterwald of Tequesta, Fla. Finsterwald, third in his last three tournaments, finished with three 3's for a one-under-par 70 that gave him second place at 204.

There was a gap of six strokes between Snead and the third man, Len Woodward, Sydney, Australia, pro. Woodward had 70 for 207.

Gling into Sunday's final round of the $17,500 tournament the three men who shared fourth place at 210 were nine shots off the pace and virtually out of the race for top money of $2,400. They were Gay Brewer of Crystal River, Fla.; Gary Player of Johannesburg, South Africa, and Bob Goalby of Crystal River, Fla. Brewer had a 69, Player 72 and Goalby a 75 after starting the round one stroke from the lead.

Snead, with most of the gallery of about 7,000 tagging along at his heels, posted a 33-34 over the 35-36 Starmount Forest Country Club course measuring 6,651 yards.

He said later, "I didn't play as well as I did in the first two rounds (68-66). I didn't get the ball as close to the hole as often."

Three times on the back nine he missed putts of from two to four feet.

But on the other occasions his putter was a stroke saver. He birdied the first with a curling 12-footer and the third from 18 feet. A fine par four was salvaged on the second with a wedge shot that left him a three-footer after he had been in the woods and then in ground under repair with his first two shots.

He overshot the fourth green to lose a stroke, but birdied No. 7 from five feet. He rolled in 12 and 5 footers for birdies on the back nine and shipped in for two from 14 feet beyond the edge of the green on 18.

FOR 1961

Majors Planning One Starting Date

NEW YORK (UPI) — Sports of all sorts:

The American League, by opening a week later than the aggressive National, lost plenty of ground in the vital ballyhoo battle this spring and isn't likely to miss the same pitch next year . . . The American, National and perhaps the new Continental League figure to open on the same date in 1961.

With the Nationals playing for real this week, those American League training stories and pre-campaign statements were mighty tame stuff ... And in this AL town, they're starting to talk about the Giants and and Dodgers as if they never had flown away.

When Eddie Sawyer resigned as manager of the Phillies on Thursday he said, "I just don't want to manage a major league team" ... How's that again?... Considering the lowly state of the Phils maybe Eddie should have thought up another reason.

The oldest world track and field record for men — a broad jump of 26 feet, 8¼ inches by Jesse Owens 25 years ago —may go by the boards this year ... Good bets to do it under Olympic pressure are Greg Bell or Bo Roberson, who are coming closer.

Josse's mark isn't the oldest in the sport, however...Nearly 28 years ago, Stella Walasiewicz of Poland, who later became Stella Walsh of the U. S., sprinted 60 meters in 7.3 seconds — a woman's record that still stands.

Small basketballers can make it in college but not a single player of 5 feet, 10 or under made the list of 30 top high school boys named on Scholastic school squad ... The only lad under six feet was Doug Hatton of Clinton, Miss., at 5-10½ ...Topper was John Thompson of Washington at 6-11.

A WIN TO REMEMBER

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP) — Wisconsin football coach Milt Bruhn says he never saw anything like it when his Big Ten champion Badgers beat Ohio State last season.

"It was the first time in my 13 years at Wisconsin that we beat Ohio State," say Bruhn, head coach for the last four seasons. "After that game all the boys had bottles of soda pop and just let the works hit the ceiling. A lot of suits were ruined, but everybody was happy."

Swink To Play With Texans

DALLAS (AP)—Jim Swink, one of the greatest go-for-broke backs in Southwest Conference history, Saturday announced he will play for the Dallas Texans of the new American Football League.

Swink turned down pro football in favor of medical school when he was graduated from TCU after the 1956 season. By playing in Dallas, he can continue his education.

He was No. 2 draft choice of the Chicago Bears in 1956.

SCHOENDIENST RAPS FOUR

Mauch Sees 'Red' In Debut As Philadelphia Manager

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Gene Mauch saw "Red" Saturday in his first game as manager of the Philadelphia Phillies. The veteran Red Schoendienst rapped four hits in a 13-3 victory for the Milwaukee Braves at Connie Mack Stadium.

Schoendienst, who Thursday night socked his first hit since coming back to the Braves from a fight against tuberculosis, unloaded a triple, double and two singles in an 18-hit Milwaukee attack against starting pitcher John Buzhardt and three relievers. The inspirational key to Milwaukee's pennant hopes batted in three runs.

Mauch must have wondered about his statement upon arrival that the Phillies couldn't be as bad as painted. The Braves made Lew Burdette's first 1960 pitching victory a carefree occasion. Milwaukee led 7-0 almost before the 7,500 kids in the crowd of 16,833 could let fly with their traditional home team cry of "We want a hit." They got the hits all right, but from the wrong club.

Buzhardt, who came from the Chicago Cubs in the Richie Ashburn deal, gave up six runs on five hits in 1 1-3 innings. Schoendienst tripled in the first inning, scoring Billy Bruton, and came home himself on a double play ball.

The "battle" was over to all intent and purposes in the second when the Braves got six hits good for five runs. Al Spangler started it with a single, stole second and scored on singles by Johnny Logan and Del Crandall. After Burdette forced Logan, Bruton doubled home two and scored on Schoendienst's two-bagger. The Redhead made it home on Ed Mathews' single and a fly ball.

Five more Milwaukee runs strolled across the plate in the sixth with Hank Aaron's second homer of the season, scoring Chuck Cottier, running for Schoendienst, and Mathews.

Schoendienst had singled home Burdette as the pitcher joined the fun with a two-bagger. Back-to-back doubles by Joe Adcock and Spangler, who had three hits, accounted for the other run. A two-base error by Eddie Bouchee and Cottier's single in the seventh sent home Milwaukee's 13th run.

Ruben Gomez, who relieved Buzhardt, gave up six runs on nine hits in four innings.

Meanwhile, Burdette, a 21-game winner last year, had little trouble with the Phillies. He gave up second baseman Frank Herrera's first home run of the season, a second inning shot onto the right field light tower, and two more in the sixth when Joe Koppe doubled and scored on rookie Tony Curry's single. Bouchee doubled home Curry.

LATE

American League Opens Baseball Season Monday

By MILTON RICHMAN
United Press International

Spring was a little late this year and so was the American League, which finally launches its 1960 season Monday with help from President Eisenhower and a solemn promise never again to get caught with its dates down.

Ike will interrupt his golfing vacation at Augusta, Ga., to throw out the first ball in Washington when the Senators clash with the Red Sox Monday. By the time all the other American League clubs play their inaugurals the following day, the National League season already will be a week old.

This unusual split-opening has produced a lot of red faces and weak - tea excuses around the American League, but it also has brought forth a vow that the National League will never get away to such a previous start again.

Shortly after the President makes his traditional soft toss at Griffith Stadium, where a crowd of 27,000 is anticipated, Camilo Pascual, a 17-game winner last year and possibly the No. 1 pitcher in the league right now, will start on the mound for Washington against Knuckleballer Tom Sturdivant of Boston. Sturdivant, who never has hurled an opener before, had a combined 2-3 record with the Yankees and Athletics last year. He came to the Red Sox in a deal last December.

The real shooting, however, starts Tuesday with Detroit at Cleveland, Kansas City at Chicago New York at Boston and Washington at Baltimore.

Frank Lary, owner of a 17-10 record last season, will be on the firing line for the Tigers and Gary Bell, 16-11, for the Indians. Manager Jimmie Dykes of Detroit makes no predictions about where he expects to finish although insisting "we'll win more games than last year." Detroit had a 76-78 record in 1959 and finished fourth. Dykes' biggest concern is Al Kaline, who twisted his leg a week ago and hasn't played since.

The Indians are the most revamped club in the circuit. Fourteen of the 28 players on Cleveland's roster are newcomers and they include Johnny Temple, Bubba Phillips, Bob Grim, Johnny Klippstein, John Romano and Walt Bond, the slugging six- foot- six rookie center fielder who has ripped the ball at a .400 clip this spring.

At any rate, the White Sox will send their trusty 40-year-old ace, Early Wynn, a 22-game winner last year, against Kansas City's Bud Daley, who had a 16-13 slate in 1959. The A's have a new manager in Bob Elliott and a stronger pitching staff than last year.

Casey Stengel indicates he may open with Jim Coates (6-1) for the Yankees against the Red Sox, who probably will counter with Tom Brewer (10-12).

Stengel concedes he's worried about his pitching. Other than that, he concedes nothing. The big experiment, of course, will be Roger Maris in left field, and there is a possibility that rookie Deron Johnson may start in right field.

Fast-baller Milt Pappas will pitch the opener for Baltimore and he'll probably face Pedro Ramos of the Senators. Pappas had a 15-9 mark last season and Ramos a 13-19 record.

The Orioles are going with youth. Pappas is only 20 and rookie Ron Hansen, who will start at shortstop, only 21.

Washington, which had the 1958 A. L. rookie of the year in Albie Pearson and the 1959 rookie of the year in Bob Allison, already has a 1960 candidate in Don Mincher.

PLAY OPENS APRIL 24

Delta Baseball Slate Announced

Delta League President Don Zeigler Saturday announced the amateur circuit's 1960 schedule. Play opens in the eight-team loop April 24.

Members of the league are Calhoun, Chatham, Drew, Epps, Eureka, Monroe, Southside and Woodlawn.

Zeigler also announced a league meeting would be held Monday night at 7 o'clock at the P&K Cafe in West Monroe. He urged all managers and team representatives to be present.

The schedule:

May 1 — Monroe at Calhoun, Eureka at Drew, Chatham at Southside, Epps at Woodlawn.

May 8 — Calhoun at Epps, Eureka at Chatham, Drew at Southside, Woodlawn at Monroe.

Palmer May Not Enter At New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—There would be little doubt about the favorite for the $27,000 Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament starting Thursday if there weren't an "if" attached.

The uncertainty revolves around whether Masters champion Arnold Palmer will play.

Palmer, winner of just about everything on this year's tour, would be less than an even-money bet to pick up the $3,5000 winner's check. But the big belter from Ligonier, Pa., is on a brief respite after winning the Masters last Sunday and plans to rejoin the tour either here or next week at Houston, Tex.

His success on the 1960 tour belies his finish in the New Orleans last year. Palmer was at the very bottom of the ladder among the 1959 New Orleans money winners, earning $100 for a 31st-place finish — hardly the style he's used to these days with winnings for the year over the $46,000 mark.

The 6,700-yard City Park course is made to order for the power hitters like Palmer, Mike Souchak, George Bayer and a half-dozen others who can knock the ball out of sight.

But there's more than ample room for the precision golfers, such as Dow Finsterwald, Art Wall Jr., and Billy Casper, in the 1958 inaugural in the playoff with Ken Venturi. Bill Collins of Baltimore, one of the lesser known long hitters, took first place last year with a 24-putt demonstration in the final round.

The tournament has something of a new look this year. With rain plaguing the first two stagings, the PGA agreed to move it back on the calendar six weeks and sponsors increased the prize money by $7,000.

And the event may be unique in that fans flocking to the course may have more golf clubs than the players. A local firm is staging a hole-in-one contest with a sports car the prize.

AL Adding Suspended Game Rule

BOSTON (AP)—The American League is adding a suspended game rule for 1960, President Joe Cronin announced Saturday.

The league also made 14 schedule changes as part of a revision of its official press publication, the Red Book.

In the recent past the AL has not had a suspended game rule like that of the National League. Games were either postponed or ruled a deadlock and had to be played over from the start at a later date.

Starting with the opener on Monday, however, AL games can be ruled suspended and played over from the point of suspension with the same lineups, batting orders etc. Cronin said games ending before or after nine innings have been completed for the following reasons will be considered suspended:

1. A curfew imposed by law.
2. A time limit permissible under league rules.
3. Light failure.
4. Darkness in the second game of a Sunday doubleheader when because of any law, the lights may not be turned on.

The exception will be any extra inning game which has terminated with the score tied. In that case it will be a legally tied game and must be played over at a later date.

The schedule changes (x-indicates switch to day game from originally-scheduled night game):

x-April 23—Cleveland at Kansas City; x-April 30—New York at Baltimore; May 21—Washington at Kansas City; May 28—Chicago at Kansas City x-June 25—Baltimore at Kansas City; July 2—Cleveland at Washington.

x-July 9—Washington at Baltimore; x-July 30—Cleveland at Baltimore; x-Aug. 6 — New York at Kansas City; Aug. 20—Chicago at Kansas City; x-Sept. 3—New York at Baltimore; Sept. 10—Boston at Kansas City; Sept. 17—Boston at Washington; Sept. 24—Baltimore at Washington.

Day Court Ties Track Record At Gulfstream Park

MIAMI (AP) — Elmendor's Farm's Day Court equaled the track record Saturday as he outfinished favored Polylad and won the $25,000 Southern Cross Handicap at Gulfstream Park.

Captain Kidd II, the early leader, was third and Troubador II was fourth.

Day Court ran the mile and an eighth in 1:46 4-5, matching the mark set by Calument Farm's Gen. Duke in 1958. Second choice, Day Court paid $7.40, $4.20 and $2.80. Polylad paid $3.90 and $2.80. Captain Kidd II $3.50.

Day Court, going outside, collared Captain Kidd II turning for home as Polylad saved aground along the rail. At the eighth pole Captain Kidd II dropped out of contention and Day Court had a one-length lead over Polylad. The latter closed determinedly but could not get to the winner. Day Court had a half-length margin at the wire, with Polylad 2¾ lengths in front of Captain Kidd II.

Bailey Stars As Reds Rout Pirates, 11-3

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Ed Bailey slammed five straight hits and ex-Pirate Lee Walls a three-run homer Saturday as Cincinnati pounded rookie Jim Ubricht and two relievers for 14 hits and an 11-3 victory over Pittsburg.

The batting onslaught spoiled the Forbes Field debut of Umbricht, a 29-year-old right-hander. He was followed by Fred Green and Paul Giel.

Walls got his homer in the eighth off Giel but the Reds' big inning was the sixth when they scored four times and chased Umbricht. Four singles, a walk an error and a sacrifice fly did the job against Umbricht, who was charged with six runs on eight hits in 5 1-3 innings.

Bailey's 5-for-5 included four singles and a double.

The Bucs scored their other two runs in the ninth. Groat singled and scored on Bob Skinners' double. Dick Stuart then singled home Skinner.

St. Louis Deals Bob Ferry Away

ST. LOUIS (AP)—The St Louis Hawks traded Bob Ferry to Detroit Saturday for Ed Conlin, a five-year veteran of the National Basketball Assn.

Conlin, a 6-6 former Fordham star, has been a steady performer since breaking into the NBA and is regarded as a good outside shooter and driver. The 6-8 Ferry, a star at St. Louis University a little more than a year ago, had a 5.9 scoring average in 62 games with the Hawks but averaged only about 14 minutes for each game.

Crossett Wins 6-Team Track Meet Easily

Crossett, unbeaten on its home field for the past five years, scored 79 5-6 points to 62 1-6 for Fordyce. Pine Bluff was third with 33 1-6 points, El Dorado had 24 2-3, Texas High of Texarkana 4½, and Bastrop, La., 1 2-3.

Top race of the day was the mile relay, won by Crossett in 3:31.0, best time recorded in Arkansas this year. Fordyce was only a yard behind with a 3:31.1 time.

Bobby Richardson of Fordyce won the 440 in 52.1, edging Robert Mizell of Crossett. Hoyt Bond of Crossett won the high hurdles in 15 flat, best time in the state, while Mayer of Pine Bluff ran the 220 in 22.9, tying the year's best time in Arkansas.

Crossett also won the junior high meet as Bruce Switzer tied two state junior marks and teammate Jim Woods bettered another. Switzer ran the 50 - yard dash in 5.7 and the 100 in 10.6. Woods vaulted 11-2, six inches above the state record.

Robert Taunton of Crossett was the high scorer in the senior division with 13 3-4.

Nieder Outduels Davis In Shot

SANTA BARBARA, Calif (AP)—Handsome Bill Nieder outshone Dave Davis with a best mark of 63 feet 1¼ inches in their heralded head-to-head shotputting duel here Saturday.

But neither could break the existing world record or even approach his own best marks.

The two giants performed in the feature attraction of the 22nd annual Santa Barbara Easter Relays. But this was not a day of record-smashing.

Davis had a best of 62-2¾.

Davis' best put wth the 16 - pound ball was a 63 - 10½ last month.

The official world's record is 63-4, held by two-time Olympic champion Parry O'Brien. He set it at Albuquerque, N.M., Aug. 1, 1959.

O'Brien was inactive this weekend. Earlier in the afternoon, Dallas Long, the fourth of the world's best shop putters, competed in Los Angeles. The best he could do was 61-11¼.

Nieder, of the U.S. Army, led off with 62-10¾. He followed with 59¾ inch, and then fouled on the next three tips into the ring. His 63-1¼ came on his final put.

Davis, competing for the Southern California Striders, performed as follows: 61-4½, 59-7, foul, 61-5½, 62-2¾, foul.

Nieder, 26 and former University of Kansas star, was obviously off form and disappointed after predicting before the meet that he might have a good day.

A crowd of more than 8,000, largest in the history of the event, packed La Playa Stadium.

Ray Norton, the nation's top sprinter, captured the 100-yard dash with a light wind behind him in 9.5, edging Bobby Poynter of San Jose State.

Last Meeting Scheduled For Softball Teams

The Monroe Recreation Dept. will hold its final meeting for the purpose of organizing fro the coming softball season Monday night.

The Church League will meet at 7:00, City at 6:30, Civic at 7:45, and the Ladies at 3:15. At the present time there has been only one Ladies team to enter and at least four teams are needed.

Managers of all teams that are planning to enter a team in the summer leagues are requested to attend these meetings. The meetings will be held at the Monroe Community Center, 113 Catalpa.

There will be a meeting of all persons who are interested in umpiring in the summer softball or baseball leauges Tuesday night at 7:00, at the Community Center. Anyone desiring any information before the meetings may contact Jackie Neal at FA 2-2170.

A BLOW TO HIS PRIDE

TAPPAHANNOCK, Va. (AP) — The fish just weren't biting on the artificial bait James Gregory was using.

His companion, Miss Gladys Gaulding, noticed a big school of striped bass striking on the surface and decided to try something else. She tore up a foam rubber cushion, put hunks of it on her hook and caught six bass in quick succession.

Gregory caught nothing.

AROUND CURVE

Tidwell Betters 220-Yard Record

ABILENE, Tex. (AP)—Charlie Tidwell of Kansas bettered the world's record for 220 yards around a curve Saturday as he sped to a 20.2 seconds clocking in a five-way invitational track and field meet.

The time will not be submitted for a record, however, because only two timers got him. The third failed to catch the start of the race.

It will, however, go as an American Record.

The world's and American records are held by Ray Norton of San Jose State. He ran the event in 20.6 last year.

Tidwell had only a 3 miles an hour following wind as he turned in the great race. He is the NCAA 100-yard dash champion.

Tidwell also won the 100-yard dash in 9.4 and ran on two second-place relay teams to become high point man of the meet with 12.

Eddie Southern, former Texas star who was second in the 400-meter hurdles of the 1956 Olympic Games, won a special 300-yard race and tied the American record of 29.8 set by Herb McKinley in 1946. There is no world record for the event.

Kansas won the meet with 79 points. Abilene Christian College was second with 57, Houston was third with 43½, New Mexico fourth with 33½ and North Texas State last with 24.

Ollan Cassell of Houston ran a 46.2 quarter-mile as one of the highlights of the meet while Calvin Cooley of Abilene Christian ran the second fastest 220-yard low hurdles of the year—22.2. It was a tenth of a second over the recognized world's record but three-tenths of a second away from what Don Styron of Northeastern Louisiana did recently. He ran it in 21.9.

Bill Woodhouse of Abilene Christian won a special 100-meter dash in 10.2 with Jimmy Weaver of North Texas State second and Southern third.

Howard was second to Cooley in the low hurdles but beat Cooley in the high hurdles in 14.2.

Abilene Christian College ran the 440-yard relay in 40.2 to tie its best time of the year—the best in the nation.

Bill Alley, of Kansas threw the javelin 241 feet 8⅞ inches.

Finishing second to Tidwell in the 220 was New Mexico freshman Adolph Plummer. He had a time of 20.8.

Bobby Morrow, the Olympic sprint champion, was supposed to appear in the special events but withdrew because of a sore leg.

Minimum Of $50,000 For PGA Winner

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — The Professional Golfers' Assn. announced Saturday the 42nd PGA championship would carry a minimum purse of $50,000 and that the East Lake Country Club, Atlanta, Ga., would be the site of the 1963 Ryder Cup matches.

Harold Sargent, PGA president and professional at East Lake C.C., said the executive committee had approved the Ryder Cup site for matches with British professionals and the increase in the U.S. PGA prize from $30,000 to $50,000 minimum.

The 1960 PGA tourney will be played on the Firestone Country Club course, Akron, Ohio, July 21-24.

The 1959 PGA championship at Minneapolis Golf Club had a $30,000 minimum but the actual prize distribution was $51,175.

Sargent said record-breaking advance sales of tickets and heavy program advertising had made the higher minimum possible.

Selection of Atlanta for the Ryder Cup matches brings the event to the Southeast for the second time. In 1951 the matches were played at Pinehurst, N.C.

Sargent said the 15th biennial Ryder Cup matches would be played in October, 1963. The exact dates will be set by the PGA of America and approved by the PGA of Britain. The U.S. won the cup last fall at Palm Desert, Calif. The 1961 matches will be played at St. Anne's-on-Sea, England, at a date to be decided.

Fund Drive For Little Boys Park On In Mangham

MANGHAM, La. (Special) — The board of directors of the local Little Boys Baseball League is scheduled to meet in the high school cafeteria Monday night at 7:30.

In a meeting last week, the board discussed plans for the league ball park now being built. A drive is currently on for donations to help pay for the park with Lee Booth, Calvin Odom, Burdis Allen, Jimmy Logan, Bobby Lowery, G. C. Hill, Bill Taylor, Marvin Fife, Huey Wiggins, Odelle DeVille, Paul Gandy, Bob Chapman, J. A. Baskin, J. J. Hollis, Bob Bell Jr. and Edward Tarver on the finance committee.

A total of $350 has already been donated to the park fund.

Tony, Jessi Jiminez To Be Partners

Baellangeon defeated Tony in a rough, Texas rules brawl last week but the Mexican, an ex-hero who turned villain in a big way, doesn't think the big Canadian can do it again.

Although this will be the first bout here with the brothers as partners officially, they teamed up illegally last week and it cost Jessi, Tony's younger brother, his match with Rivera. Tony jumped into the ring to help out his brother and the referee gave the decision to Rivera.

Rivera and Tony, who developed a feud last week, will get a chance to settle it in the night's 1-minute opener when they tangle in a one-fall fray.

"Jumping" Johnny King and Ken Cooper trade holds in the evening's semifinal. Cooper was scheduled to meet King last week but failed to show up. Both boys play it clean. King made a good impression on Monroe wrestling fans last week with his colorful exhibition.

Both the main event and the semifinal bout will have one-hour limits with two falls to win.

Jones, Moran Take Wins In Quanico Track Meet

By ED CORRIGAN

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — Hayes Jones, the Eastern Michigan flash, turned in the fastest 110-meter high hurdles of the year—13.6 seconds—and Ed Moran breezed to a 4:4.6 mile victory Saturday in the Quantico Relays.

This was Jones' first outdoor effort this spring. His clocking was eight-tenths of a second under the qualifying standard for the Olympics.

But perfectionist Jones was not satisfied with his performance.

"I'm bad on the last three hurdles," he complained. "I've got to improve."

He was off like a shot and never was in danger, finishing about a yard in front of Bill Johnson of Maryland.

Moran, who had a disappointing Winter indoors, turned in a solid performance. He had hoped to get down to the Olympic qualifying time of 4:02.

But he had no one to push him. Peter Close, an ex-St. John's miler, was second, a good 60 yards behind Moran at the finish.

This was the first eastern outdoor meet of the year and the performance were excellent. For the first time since the meet started in 1956, the sun shone both days.

Besides seven meet records set Friday, four more went by the boards Saturday.

Moran's performance broke the meet record of 4:20.5 set by Brian Shannon of Fort Lee two years ago.

The Michigan State two-mile relay team not only set a meet standard but the 7:33.2 clocking was the fastest of the year. Jim Carr, Brian Castle, Bob Lake and Willie Aterberry carried the baton for the Spartans.

Bill Sharpe of the Shanahan Catholic Club, Philadelphia, got off a 49 foot effort in the hop, step and jump to erase Joe Middleton's mark of 45-11 set last year.

Morgan State's mile relay team of Lawson Smart, Bob Ridley, Tom Anderson and Nick Ellis was caught in a snappy 3:13.1. It wiped out the 3:15.3 record set two years ago by Ohio State.

Dave Sime, the world record holder in the 200 meters and 220-yard dash, pulled a muscle and had to scratch from the final of the 100 meters. Only Friday he said he hoped to avoid any more injuries before the Olympic trials in July. The pull isn't believed to be serious.

In Sime's absence, Walt Fillman of the U.S. Army won the 100 meters in 10.6, nipping Penn State's Bob Brown.

Al Cantello, world record holder in the javelin, also had trouble. He had a bad back and aggravated the injury on his first and only throw. He had to pull out, but his 200 foot, 8 inch toss got him fifth place. Sid Kiwitt of the New York Pioneer club won with 228-11.

Villanova captured the 880-yard relay in 1:26.2 and North Carolina Coll. the 440 in 42 seconds flat.

Nation's Top Shot Putters Below Form

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The nation's big shotputters, who have made 60 foot throws look mediocre in recent weeks, failed to come up with any new marks this weekend.

Dallas Long, Bill Nieder and Dave Davis all made throws that were disappointing when compared to their best.

All have thrown farther than the newly recognized world mark of 63 feet 4 inches, set last year by Parry O'Brien. O'Brien was not in action this weekend.

Long, Paul Bunyan-sized Arizonan, had little competition at the Southern California-Occidental meet in Los Angeles. Nieder, ex-Kansas University athlete and Davis were stars of the 22nd annual Santa Barbara Easter Relays.

Davis threw 62-2¾. His best mark is 63-10½. He attends Valley State College near Los Angeles and competes for the Southern California Striders.

SPLIT DECISION

Kingpetch Wins Flyweight Title

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Pone Kingpetch, a 24-year-old son of a poor Thai fisherman, Saturday won the world flyweight boxing championship by split decision from defender Pascual Perez of Argentina in a bloody, 15-round bout.

The tall, thin Thailander's left eye was swollen shut and blood dripped from a cut above the eye as he was proclaimed Thailand's first world boxing champion on the deciding vote of neutral judge Nat Fleischer of New York. Perez was cut above both eyes.

Fleischer, editor of Ring Magazine and director of the title fight, cast his vote for Pone, 146 to 140. Referee Lorenzo Torrealba of Argentina voted for Perez, 145 to 143. Judge Wong Hiranleka of Thailand had Pone ahead, 148 to 137. The ten point "must" system of scoring was used in which the winner of a round received 10 points and the loser nine or less. Perez was a 2-1 favorite.

The crowd of more than 30,000 including the King and Queen and members of the Thai cabinet, screamed in approval when Fleischer's vote was announced. All the spectators, including King Phumpiphol Aduldej and Queen Sirikit, sat behind a barbed wire fence, erected to protect the fighters and officials.

Thai fans have gone berserk in the past. Two years ago the crowd tore up seats and threw bottles into the ring when Dommy Ursua of the Philippines fouled Pone. Ursua required police protection.

Saturday, the fighters climbed into the ring to the wail of flutes and the clanging of gongs. The flyweight championship belt was placed in a golden Buddha temple bowl on a table at the ringside as the fight started.

Perez weighed 112 pounds, Pone 110¾.

Pone, who stands 5 feet, 6½ compared to Perez's 4-10½ matched his long punches against the body punching of the 34-year-old Argentina. The reach advantage was the main factor in Pone's favor. His left jabs penetrated Perez's defenses and enabled him to open cuts over the and over the right eye in the 11th. defender's left eye in the tenth. In the tenth, Pone was cut over the left eye and in the next round the eye was almost shut.

In both the seventh and eighth rounds, Perez had the Thailander in trouble. Pone rallied brilliantly in the ninth but Perez dominated the battle in the next three rounds. In the closing rounds, they slugged away on fairly even terms.

"I disagree with the decision," said Perez after the second defeat of his long career. "We will see whether it was right in 90 days. He's a good fighter, smart and clever. I thought I had him several times."

Their contract calls for a return bout. It may be held in Los Angeles.

Pone, overcome by emotion, could only say "thank you, thank you."

It was only his 23rd fight and his 20th as a pro since he started boxing in 1954. His pro record is 16-4.

Perez, a pro since 1952, has a 52-2-1 record. He won the 112-pound division crown by outpointing Japan's Yoshio Shirai in Tokyo, Nov. 26, 1954. This was his 11th defense.

Idolater Wins Chesapeake In Stretch Rally

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Idolater showed Kentucky Derby distance ability Saturday by giving up the lead and then coming on again in winning the $27,350 Chesapeake Stakes.

The grey son of Mahmoud, given a left handed whipping by Jockey Bobby Ussery in the stretch, defeated Fortune P. Ryan's Whitechapel by a length and a half in the mile and eighth race. Idolater, giving Vanderbilt his best Derby hopeful since Native Dancer, covered the distance in 1:50, only three-fifths behind the Laurel record.

April Fool Farm's April Skies was third in the field trimmed to five by the scratching of Yomolka. Playgoer and Timberlane.

Elkcam Stable's Kennation was fourth and Walter M. Jeffords' Merganser last.

Idolator paid $4, $2.60 and $2.20. Whitechapel returned $3.80 and $2.40 and April Skies $2.40.

Idolater and Whitechapel are eligible for the Preakness and Belmont as well as the Kentucky Derby, first leg of the Triple Crown.

The Chesapeake, which carried a net first prize of $17,452.50, was the first stakes triumph for Idolater, who has been rounding into winning form only recently.

The 3-year-old grey equaled the Laurel record for seventh-eighths of a mile last Saturday. Last year he was able to win only one compared with his three to date this season.

Jockey Ussery sent him to the front soon after the Chesapeake field took off and stayed there for three-quarters of a mile.

Whitechapel, also a son of Mahmoud, forged ahead going around the second turn into the stretch.

But Idolater had another run left and an eighth of a mile from the finish swept by Whitechapel and Jockey Howard Grant with a burst of speed.

Trainer George Poole said Idolater will be shipped back to New York, and added, "If he works well we'll try him in the Wood," another test for Derby eligibles at Aqueduct next Saturday at the same distance as the Chesapeake.

'Frisco Hurler Injuries Back

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Lefthander Johnny Antonelli, scheduled to be the San Francisco Giants starting pitcher against Chicago Sunday, suffered another muscle spasm in his back and may not get the call.

Antonelli had one last Sunday but was reported okay Friday. The second one occurred as he got into his car Saturday morning.

Manager Bill Rigney said if Johnny is unable to pitch, either Mike McCormick (1-0) or Billy O'Dell (0-1) would start.

Meet To Open In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—The 8th annual Colonial invitation golf tournament opens here Wednesday as 208 players prepare for the 13-flight, five-day event.

Championship qualifying starts the first day. The low 31 players and defending champion Maynard Craft of Jackson will comprise the championship division for 18 holes of medal play Thursday.

Craft and the low 15 of this group will make up the championship flight and the remaining 16 will play in the first flight competition.

These two flights will open match play Thursday with a pair of rounds carded Saturday for first flighters and two rounds Sunday for the championship flight.

Havana Club May Switch To Jersey

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—The Havana Sugar Kings will move their International League baseball club to Jersey City within 30 days, the Rochester Democrat & Chronicle said Saturday.

A story by George Beahon, the paper's baseball writer, said the Havana club will leave Cuba after its 13-day opening home stand. The club will then play the remainder of its home games in Jersey City, N.J., Beahon said.

Beahon, who is covering the Rochester Red Wings in Homestead, Fla., said league officials refused to confirm the story. But he said International League President Frank Shaughnessy did not deny it.

"We refuse to answer that question," Beahon quoted Shaughnessy as saying when he asked him if Havana would finish the season in Cuba.

Beahon said the league's biggest problem was not getting other clubs to play in Havana but getting the Sugar Kings out of Cuba for their road games. He did not elaborate on this.

Rochester opens the season at Havana April 20. Buffalo, Montreal and Toronto follow the Red Wings there with the last game of the stand scheduled for May 2. The Cubans then move to Montreal May 4.

Havana is a farm team of the Cincinnati Reds whose General Manager Gabe Paul, said in Cincinnati Beahan's report "is absolutely news to me," and added, "I think I would have heard about it.

"I talked by telephone two days ago with Bob Maduro (head of the Havana team) and he said everything was going well, but he was trying to get another pitcher. We're trying to help him get one.

Paul said "nothing ever was Havana move.

Election Eyed In Louisiana

BATON ROUGE (UPI) — Democratic nominee Jimmie Davis has piled an insult of neglect upon the three men he faces Tuesday in the general election for governor of Louisiana.

Wandering through a series of occasional speeches before various groups, Davis has ignored the shaky efforts of an embryo Republican band and a handful of States' Righters to field teams for the general election. A New Orleans man was a late entry as a write-in candidate.

The Republicans chose Francis Grevemberg, a turncoat Democrat who was beaten in the 1956 governor's race by Earl Long. The GOP almost stripped its state central committee of members fielding candidates for the other state offices.

The States' Rights party went too the post with only two candidates—Kent Courtney, a New Orleans publisher, for governor, and Vaughn C. Phelps of Monroe for lieutenant governor. Their campaign literature observed they were looking for candidates as well as votes.

Morris Clark of New Orleans used a rare method of entering the governor's race—merely notifying parish clerks of court that he would be willing to receive votes as a write-in candidate.

Basically, the Republicans based their campaign on the virtues of a two-party system for Louisiana, while the States' Righters waved the segregation banner.

Both minorities had a common lacking—campaign funds.

Grevemberg headed a delegation that appealed to the national GOP for funds to sustain the Louisiana Republican decibles, but they came back empyrehended. Four members of the GOP ticket were so disappointed they dropped from the race.

Courtney's entire expense will run about $5,000, he estimated.

Davis has concerned himself with organizing his administration for the next four years and his program for the immediate session of the legislature. He's merely substituted a reminder for voters to "stamp the rooster"—the Democratic ballot symbol in Louisiana—in place of a folksong or hymn that usually ends his speeches.

Candidates on his ticket have gone through the motion of political rallies, mainly in parishes with large populations or wherever it was convenient. After two wild, free-swinging primary campaigns, it seemed as mild as a prayer meeting.

The Republican candidates could not do that well. Their lack of funds limited Republican campaigning to a few such rallies, and individual appearances before civic clubs.

Courtney admits he is more concerned with organizing a national segregationist-States' Rights party in time for the fall presidential election than the race for governor. He's attended conferences with governors Orval Faubus of Arkansas and Ross Barnett of Mississippi, and has appealed mainly to the Citizens Councils of Louisiana for his gubernatorial vote.

Although Davis has remained tightlipped about details of his plans, an occasional remark as speeches indicate he favors plans to streamline Louisiana's government.

But the former folksinger has been tempered by four years as governor (1944-48), and probably will limit any revisions to combine chiefly the elements of economic operation with political feasibility.

Several bills to streamline and reorganize various functions of the state government are already drafted, the result of legislative and citizens committee studies made during Gov. Earl Long's administration.

One such committee prepared a revision of laws covering prisons, paroles, and pardons that has drawn praise from national authorities in that field. Another committee worked through a maze of laws regulating elections.

Davis has urged citizens—particularly businessmen—to take an active part in the state government, modeling any further changes along the lines of a corporation.

Grevemberg has also mentioned efficiency and economy of government in his speeches, but his main concern has been the promotion of the two-party system, and as a by-product, the Republicans.

Courtney, splitting his time between campaigning for governor and organization of the States' Rights party throughout the south, opposed all types of federal aid in his platform, urged higher qualifications for voters, and favored a repeal of state income and inheritance taxes.

Prison

ULM, Germany (AP)—Johanna Oechsle drew a 2-year prison term for feeding her mother-in-law rat poison even though the bottle was labeled "Not dangerous for human life." The court convicted the 50-year-old woman of attempted murder after she said she couldn't read the label anyway because she is nearsighted. She admitted trying to kill the old lady because "life with her was hell."

Merchant Fleet Need Is Cited

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (AP) — A modern merchant fleet is necessary if this nation is to maintain leadership in the world, a Federal Maritime Board member said Saturday at the launching of a cargo-liner.

Sigfrid B. Unander, Washington, said the 10 million dollar SS John Lykes will contribute to "keeping the sinews of the American merchant marine strong."

The 495-foot vessel was christened by Miss Ruth Lykes Webb, Tampa, Fla. It was named for her late grandfather, one of the founders of the Lykes Brothers Steamship Co., New Orleans. Her maid of honor was her roommate at Hollins College, Va., Miss Jane Gray Friedberg, Louisville, Ky.

The vessel will replace the present SS John Lykes now in service with the Lykes fleet.

The ship is the fourth of five such cargoliners Ingalls Shipbuilding Corp. is building for Lykes. The line is initiatng a long-range program of the Martime Administration and shipping firms for replacement and modernization of dry cargo ships.

The program includes 3 Lykes ships, constituting the largest fleet of dry cargo vessels under one management in the United States.

Unander, the newest member of the Maritime Board, predicted 25 years of service for the John Lykes, which now goes to a wet basin for outfitting prior to joining the Lykes fleet.

Speaking briefly were Joseph T. Lykes, senior vice president of the line; Monro B. Lanier, vice chairman of the Ingalls board, and Frederick J. Mayo, Ingalls president.

The John Lykes will have 68,830 cubic feet of general cargo space. It displaces 16,870 tons.

DRINK UP, IT'S COFFEE DAY

NEW YORK (UPI) — Today is Coffee Day — as if every day isn't in a country which drinks 143 billion cups of the brew annually.

But April 21 has been so declared as part of the annual Pan American Week observance by the Organization of American States which represents the government of 21 Western Hemisphere republics.

The U. S. imports more green coffee each year than the rest of the world combined. Last year this amounted to 3 billion pounds, about 85 per cent of it coming from 15 Latin American countries.

This was enough coffee to serve three cups a day to every man, woman and child in the U.S.

The coffee - break which is now an accepted part of the American scene is some 400 years old. It was started by the Turks in Constantinople (Istanbul). Now, 77 per cent of U. S. workers take one or two coffee - breaks a day.

Little used silver articles will remain bright an untarnished in storage if they are wrapped in self - sealing transparent plastic after being carefully dried to remove all moisture.

MRS. CHARLES FLOWER STUBBS

Charles F. Stubbs Claims Bride In Jacksonville

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Benjamin Lee announce the marriage of her sister, Miss Julia Lee Slaughter of Montgomery, Alabama, to Charles Flower Stubbs of Birmingham, formerly of Monroe, on April 4 in Jacksonville, Florida.

The bride is the daughter of the late Rev. Dr. and Mrs. D. Perry Slaughter of Ozark, Alabama. Mr. Stubbs' parents are Mrs. Frank Palmer Stubbs of New Orleans, and the late Mr. Stubbs of Monroe.

The ceremony was solemnized at the home of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Jack G. Hand in Jacksonville. Dr. Hand was the officiating minister. Mrs. Hand is a sister of the bride.

The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by the groom's sister, Mrs. Robert C. Lynch, of New Orleans.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, G. Perry Slaughter Jr., of Spartenburg, S. C., wore a dressmaker suit of navy blue sheer wool. The short semi-fitted jacket had three-quarter sleeves and a shawl collar outlined with white Chantilly lace and she wore a matching lace blouse. Her hat was a navy blue and white Milan straw pill box with a chenille dotted veil and she wore navy blue accessories. The bride carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid, lilies of the valley, and tube-roses.

After the ceremony a luncheon was served to the wedding party and members of the two families at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Hand. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Lee of Louisville, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. G. Perry Slaughter, Jr., of Spartenburg, S. C.; Mrs. Frank P. Stubbs of New Orleans; Dr. and Mrs. Robert G. Lynch of New Orleans; and Miss Sadie Dunford of Montgomery, Ala.

Later in the afternoon, the bride and groom left on a Caribbean cruise and upon their return will be at home at 31 The Prado, Montgomery, Alabama.

Mr., Mrs. Hicks Honored On Golden Wedding Date

Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Hicks of Route 1, Rayville, were honored on their golden wedding anniversary, April 3, with an open house held at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hicks.

Mrs. Dewey Hicks and Mrs. Lamar Hicks greeted guests at the door between the hours of two and five. Approximately seventy-five friends called during the appointed hours.

The living room was decorated with baskets of gold gladioli and chrysanthemums on pedestal stands. Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Bartlett of Simsboro stood with the couple as they renewed their vows before the Rev. John Carlisle.

A deep yellow cloth overlaid with ecru lace covered the dining table. Centerpiece was an arrangement of gold chrysanthemums and stock topped with the numerals "50".

Mrs. Joyce Head served the gold and white cake, and Mrs. Sue Brown presided at the punch bowl. Both are granddaughters of the honored couple. Others who assisted were Mrs. Thomas Cook and Mrs. Alva Dring.

Mr. and Mrs. Hicks have eight children, all of whom were present at the golden wedding. Their daughters are Mrs. Thomas Cook of Pioneer; Mrs. Alva Dring of Simsboro. Sons are Dewey and Eugene of Marion; James, Marvin Ardis and Lamar of Rayville. There are eighteen grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

FOR PURPLE PEOPLE-EATERS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Harriett Tyler said she carefully followed directions on the box of food coloring, thought she added the proper amounts, but ended up with purple gravy for supper.

CELEBRATING their golden wedding, Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Hicks cut their gold and white cake. The couple were honored at an open house in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hicks in Rayville.

MRS. CHARLES FLOWER STUBBS

Charles F. Stubbs Claims Bride In Jacksonville

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Benjamin Lee announce the marriage of her sister, Miss Julia Lee Slaughter of Montgomery, Alabama, to Charles Flower Stubbs of Birmingham, formerly of Monroe, on April 4 in Jacksonville, Florida.

The bride is the daughter of the late Rev. Dr. and Mrs. D. Perry Slaughter of Ozark, Alabama. Mr. Stubbs' parents are Mrs. Frank Palmer Stubbs of New Orleans, and the late Mr. Stubbs of Monroe.

The wedding march from Lohengrin was played by the groom's sister, Mrs. Robert C. Lynch, of New Orleans.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, G. Perry Slaughter Jr., of Spartenburg, S. C., were a dressmaker suit of navy blue sheer wool. The short semi-fitted jacket had three-quarter sleeves and a shawl collar outlined with white Chantilly lace and she wore a matching lace blouse. Her hat was a navy blue and white Milan straw pill box with a chenille dotted veil and she wore navy blue accessories. The bride carried a white prayer book topped with a white orchid, lilies of the valley, and tube-roses.

After the ceremony a luncheon was served to the wedding party and members of the two families at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Hand. Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Thomas B. Lee of Louisville, Ala.; Mr. and Mrs. G. Perry Slaughter, Jr., of Spartenburg, S. C.; Mrs. Frank P. Stubbs of New Orleans; Dr. and Mrs. Robert G. Lynch of New Orleans; and Miss Sadie Dunford of Montgomery, Ala.

Later in the afternoon, the bride and groom left on a Caribbean cruise and upon their return will be at home at 31 The Prado, Montgomery, Alabama.

Mr., Mrs. Hicks Honored On Golden Wedding Date

Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Hicks of Route 1, Rayville, were honored on their golden wedding anniversary, April 3, with an open house held at the home of their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hicks.

Mrs. Dewey Hicks and Mrs. Lamar Hicks greeted guests at the door between the hours of two and five. Approximately seventy-five friends called during the appointed hours.

The living room was decorated with baskets of gold gladioli and chrysanthemums on pedestal stands. Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Bartlett of Simsboro stood with the couple as they renewed their vows before the Rev. John Carlisle.

A deep yellow cloth overlaid with ecru lace covered the dining table. Centerpiece was an arrangement of gold chrysanthemums and stock topped with the numerals "50".

Mrs. Joyce Head served the gold and white cake, and Mrs. Sue Brown presided at the punch bowl. Both are granddaughters of the honored couple. Others who assisted were Mrs. Thomas Cook and Mrs. Alva Dring.

Mr. and Mrs. Hicks have eight children, all of whom were present at the golden wedding. Their daughters are Mrs. Thomas Cook of Pioneer; Mrs. Alva Dring of Simsboro. Sons are Dewey and Eugene of Marion; James, Marvin Ardis and Lamar of Rayville. There are eighteen grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

FOR PURPLE PEOPLE-EATERS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Harriett Tyler said she carefully followed directions on the box of food coloring, thought she added the proper amounts, but ended up with purple gravy for supper.

CELEBRATING their golden wedding, Mr. and Mrs. O. K. Hicks cut their gold and white cake. The couple were honored at an open house in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Hicks in Rayville.

Miss Thompson, Mr. Dow Wed In Church Ceremony

Miss Betty Louise Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Thompson of West Monroe became the bride of Lonnie Ray Downs April 8 in the Welcome Home Church of God. The Rev. and Mrs. A. B. Downs of West Monroe are parents of the groom.

The Rev. James Downs, brother of the groom, officiated at the double ring ceremony in a setting of southern smilax, burning white candles, and baskets of white gladioli. The candles were lighted by Miss Kathy Downs and Miss Gena Thompson, wearing identical dresses of blue nylon.

A pre-nuptial concert was given by David Nordan at the piano. He accompanied Mrs. Bob Nordan, who sang "Whither Thou Goest," and The Lord's Prayer.

The bride's only attendant was her sister, Miss Barbara Thompson, maid of honor. She wore a dress of pink embossed organdy with a matching headpiece, and carried a nosegay of spring blossoms.

The bride entered on the arm of her brother, Carl Thompson, who gave her in marriage. Her ballerina length bridal gown of satin and lace was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice, and full skirt. She wore a shoulder length veil and carried a white Bible topped with white chrysanthemums.

RECEPTION

Immediately following the ceremony, a reception was held in the home of the Rev. and Mrs. James Downs.

Mrs. Thompson chose to wear for her daughter's wedding a spring green dress with accessories of white and a white carnation corsage. Mrs. Downs, mother of the groom, was in blue with navy accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

A white lace cloth overlaid the bride's table, which was centered with the tiered cake. Tall tapers burned in the branched candelabra placed at each side. The cake was served by Mrs. Otto Frost. Mrs. Virgil Hibbets served punch, and Miss Doris Frost presided at the guest register.

Eddie Lee Mize Weds Carol L. Geisenberger

Mr. and Mrs. Abraham H. Geisenberger, of Natchez, announce the marriage of their daughter, Carol Lee, to Eddie Lee Mize, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eldred Mize, of Crosbyton, Tex.

The marriage was solemnized on the first of April in Baton Rouge.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Mize are students at Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge. The bride is a senior in the College of Education and the bridegroom is a senior in the College of Geology.

The couple spent the week-end in Natchez with Mrs. Mize's parents. They were joined by another son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Gabe Hausmann, Jr., of New Orleans, who were recently married and are now making their home in the Crescent City.

For something different in the way of baked desserts, try apricot bread pudding. Line a deep dish with buttered slices of white bread, crusts removed. Heat a can of apricot pie filling in a saucepan. Cover bread with filling and alternate layers until dish is full. Chill in refrigerator for several hours, or overnight, and serve with cream.

IN THE RECEIVING line at the Kappa Kappa Iota tea Saturday were Mrs. Carter Cozine, president of the local chapter; Mrs. James N. Riddle, state president, in whose home the party was held; and Mrs. Marvin M. Hill, local vice-president.

Riddle Home Scene Of Kappa Kappa Iota Tea

Kappa Kappa Iota, honorary teachers' sorority, entertained with its annual guest tea Saturday between the hours of three and five in the home of Mrs. James N. Riddle. Mrs. W. B. McGee was chairman of the affair, which was attended by about one hundred and fifty guests.

Mrs. W. H. Steen, Jr., received at the door and presented guests to Mrs. Riddle, Mrs. Carter Cozine, Mrs. Austin Miller, and Mrs. Marvin M. Hill, who formed the receiving line. Dogwood, iris, camellias, and bridal wreath were used in the bouquets which decorated the living room.

The dining table was covered with a pink net and satin cloth. Heather, pink carnations, wedgewood and yellow queen iris, and white starburst in a silver bowl formed the centerpiece. Mrs. A. D. Tisdale and Mrs. F. J. Ortis alternated at the punch bowl, while Mrs. Sara Hollingsworth and Miss Kathryn Douciere served coffee.

Others who assisted were Mrs. Lee Buatt, Mrs. H. H. Walter, Miss Dorothy French, Mrs. James G. Daniels, Mrs. G. E. Boggs, Miss Hermione Driskell, Miss Marie Minard, Mrs. Z. J. Byrd, Miss Helen Schelette, Mrs. W. D. McGee, and Mrs. W. B. McGee.

Webster, Sr., Mrs. G. C. Williams, Mrs. Aline Banister and Mrs. Armand Wroten, and one guest Mrs. W. R. Clark.

Swartz HDC Sees Freezer Demonstration

"Food for the Freezer" was the demonstration presented by Mrs. D. A. Mears when the Swartz Home Demonstration Club met for its regular April meeting in the home of Mrs. S. C. Hixon, Sr.

Reports were given by Mrs. A. J. Harrington, home management leader, and Mrs. D. A. Mears, substitute citizenship leader.

Members present were Mrs. D. V. Archer, Mrs. Harrington, Mrs. W. P. Gee, Mrs G. M. Homphries, Mrs. Mears, Mrs. G. A. Speir, and Mrs. Hixon, Sr.

The next meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. W. J. Roper on Friday, May 13.

One way to cut down on the time involved in turning out enjoyable pastries is to sift flour and sugar into the canisters when you first bring packages back from the store. When you are preparing ingredients, you can measure directly from the container without sifting each time.

Well, the gayest party of the week was not an Easter party at all, but the Bavarian Night at the Lotus club Saturday. Red and white checked table cloths centered with hurricane candles were used throughout the club room. Guests wore informal attire, suitable for tourists in Germany, and little feathered hats, given as favors, completed the picture.

The combo which played for dancing dressed the part in Tyrolean shorts and the hats. There were two strolling guitarists, who played and sang German and Bavarian songs.

The buffet table, set up in the long hall, offered a menu nothing short of fabulous. Drawing particular raves were the presse-sylte loaf, the stuffed lobster tails, the pork chops with wine kraut and the matching bowl of pig knuckles and sauerkraut . . . . Both meat and fish pastelias were offered, as well as wiener schnitzel, beef tar-tar, Norwegian liver saute in shells, and bacon wrapped franks . . . . Sardines and herring were served, each in three different styles. Kosher salami sticks, beer kraut, potato salad, hogs head garnished, assorted cold meats and cheese, and herring salad were also available . . . . Over a hundred members and guests attended the party.

CAROLYN OLIVER BROWN

arrived yesterday for a week's visit with her parents, the COURTNEY OLIVERS. With her are the three children, NANCY, PHILIP, and STEVEN. Carolyn has turned into a real Connecticut Yankee who can't face a visit here in the summer. We hope that she gets some of the glorious spring we've had for the last two weeks.

In Dallas for the Easter weekend is ZANONA FLINN, who went over on Thursday, will be home tonight. She met her children, ANN and HALL PEYTON of Houston at the Statler-Hilton.

On Tuesday afternoon, BETH M'GOUGH entertained at bridge in her home, honoring FRAN M'CROCKLIN, who is leaving soon to make her home in Brazil. The hostess used a bouquet of spring flowers in the living room, and centered each table with a small Easter arrangement of eggs and crabapple blooms. Divinity pie and coffee were the refreshments served to two tables of players. Fran received a jewelry case as guest prize from her hostess. Winners at bridge were JEANNINE AMMAN, first; and BOBBIE INABNET, low.

KATHLEEN JENA is the name chosen for the new daughter of the D. V. LOFLINS, JR., who arrived on Wednesday, April 13. This is MILDRED JACKSON'S eleventh grandchild. The baby has an older sister, LYN, and brother, WES.

The W. E. LAMBS returned the first of the week from a wonderful trip around the world. They sailed from New York over three months ago aboard the Swedish American line's Kungsholm. The route led through the Mediterranean, the Suez canal, India, and back across the Pacific to Los Angeles. There were stops, with inland excursions, at Majorca, Italy, Egypt, Arabia, Malaya, Thailand, Hong Kong, Japan, and Hawaii. The Lambs were fortunate enough to spend six days inland in India, visiting the Taj Mahal by moonlight and other famous spots. We are happy to report, however, that they found the most beautiful spot of all is still our fiftieth state, Hawaii.

DOROTHY GRANT left Sunday by plane for Los Angeles. She will visit EVIE VINCENT in Santa Barbara for two months, and then stop with friends in Compton before returning home.

A train trip to Calhoun yesterday was the celebration for DEBBIE JEAN BUTLER'S eighth birthday. Later the group had an Easter egg hunt and picnic at the home of Debbie's grandparents, the H. W. BUTLERS. Little guests were SUSUN YORK, MELISSA BERRY, CATHY BATES, ALICIA ALBRITTON, DONNA VESTAL, SHARON WORLEY, RUTHIE THATCHER, VIRGINIA REIGHNEY, and JOYCE ANN GULETT.

BETTY and HARRY STONE and their three daughters, SUSAN, MARTHA, and EMILY, have recently moved into their new blonde brick home on Bayou Lane. Your reporter took the tour this week while the photographer made a picture of the girls for our Easter page.

Cool greens are used in the entrance hall: solid green for three walls and the carpet, a paper patterned in shades of green on the fourth wall. Green louvered doors to the left open into the living room, and straight ahead, into the family room. Green walls and carpets continue into the living room. The entire side wall of the living-dining room consists of two very large plate glass windows divided by a built-in breakfront of birch, which matches the dining furniture. Draperies of neutral textured linen are used at the long windows.

Behind the dining room is the kitchen, completely lined with birch cabinets. Counters are of white Formica flecked with gold. This is also used at the breakfast bar with its high slat-back stools. The wall between the kitchen and the family room is made up of carefully engineered storage space, centered with a pass-through and snack bar.

The beige vinyl tile floor and the birch panelling of the kitchen continues into the family room, and both rooms open onto the screen porch. Draperies are neutral monk's cloth, and furniture is covered in a small green print.

The utility room is found on the bedroom hall, back to back with the girls' bath. Cherry yellow and white tile decorates the bath, which is divided into compartments to ease traffic.

Walls in each of the girls' rooms are painted white. Martha's features sky blue spreads with white draperies, and Susan used light blue to accent the white walls, white piano, white chest, and white dressing table in her room . . . . Emily's room has a yellow spread and draperies. All three girls' room feature floor to ceiling louvered doors on the closets, to eliminate those unreachable top shelves.

Death, be not proud, though some have called thee
Mighty and dreadful, for thou art not so;
For those whom thou think'st thou dost overthrow
Die not, poor Death; nor yet canst thou kill me.
Form rest and sleep, which but thy picture be Much pleasure; then from thee much more must flow;
And soonest our best men with thee do go —
Rest of their bones and souls' delivery!
Thou'rt slave to fate, chance, kings and desperate men,
And dost with poison, war and sickness dwell;
And poppy or charms can make us sleep as well
And better than thy stroke. Why swell'st thou then?
One short sleep past, we wake eternally,

MISS JULIA JUANITA BARFIELD

AAUW To Present Review By Mrs. George Marshall

The American Association of University Women, Monroe Branch, will sponsor Mrs. George Marshall of Lansdowne, Natchez, in a review of her book, "The Six Little Girls of Lansdowne."

The public is invited to attend the review April 30 at three p.m. on the hotel Frances roof. Tickets may be purchased from AAUW members or at the door that afternoon.

Appearing with Mrs. Marshall will be her six granddaughters, who were the inspiration for the book. They will model antebellum costumes.

The book is a children's portrait of domestic life on a deep south plantation, told in a style of simplicity, kindliness, and nonsophistication. The events include experiences with the girls' pets, the Natchez Pilgrimage, picnics, the playhouse, Christmas at Lansdowne, and other phases in life there.

Lansdowne was built by the Marshall family in 1853, and is still in possession of descendants of the original owner. It is located on Pine Ridge road a short distance from Natchez, and was featured on the Yellow Tour during the March Pilgrimage.

Mrs. Marshall was born at The Towers, another ante-bellum Natchez home, formerly owned by her great-grandfather, John Fleming.

Miss Barfield, D. A. Hughes Plan Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Leonard Barfield of Ferriday announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Julia Juanita, to David Allen Hughes, the son of Mr. and Mrs. David Bedelle Hughes of Vidalia.

Miss Barfield is a senior of the Ferriday High School and will attend Louisiana Polytechnic Institute in Ruston this fall.

Mr. Hughes is a graduate of the Vidalia High School and is taking pre-law at Louisiana Polytechnic Institute.

The wedding will be solemnized in the Calvary Baptist Church in Vidalia on Saturday, the fourth of June, at four o'clock in the afternoon with the Rev. B. A. Nolan officiating.

Trampolene Demonstration At Kiroli PTA

The April meeting of the Kiroli P.-T. A. was held in the school auditorium, Monday evening with the fathers as special guests.

The meeting was opened with prayer and devotional brought by James Neyland.

After the business session was completed, the children performed on the trampolene and tumbling mats under the direction of Howard Barker, principal.

At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served to all. Mrs. Hennessey's fourth grade won the room count.

Mrs. Ford Is Hostess To Twin City Club

The regular April meeting of the Twin City Study Club was held in the home of Mrs. R. P. McKay on K Street, with Mrs. Milton Ford co-hostess.

Mrs. Edward Whatley, president, conducted a short business session with special emphasis on the state convention of G.F.W.C. to be held in Alexandria on April 22nd and 23rd. Mrs. Milton Ford, Mrs. Jerome Johnson and Mrs. Edward Whatley will serve as delegates from this club.

A timely devotional was given by Mrs. Harry Arthur Genung.

Mrs. W. W. Hinson introduced the guest speaker, Trooper Joe Smith of the State Police Department, whose topic of discussion was "Safety," followed by a question and answer period.

LIP BEAUTY HINTS

Dry or chapped lips present a beauty problem anytime, and during warm weather they become even more annoying and uncomfortable. To avoid their rough, chafed look, and also to relieve the discomfort of this condition, follow these tips:

In the morning before applying your lipstick, and also in the evening before retiring, apply a night cream or active moisturizer to the lips and massage gently but thoroughly with a damp-dry silk sponge. This will keep your lips soft and pliable and also remove the unsightly flakes or particles of skin that have hardened or cracked. Use a lipstick with a creamy moist texture, and do not blot after applying it. For additional protection from the weather, use lip-gloss over your lipstick.

Pie crusts are a problem many housewives complain about. To be sure yours are crisp and boast a satiny sheen, pour a cup of ice water over the entire surface of the crust before you pop the pie into the oven. Hold the pie at a slant so the water can run off, not soak in.

MRS. GEORGE M. MARSHALL

When pressing clothes, always press in the direction of the grain of the material, whether or not seams run with or across the grain. On bias skirts, move the iron diagonally across the seam and not up or down the seam.

MISS JANICE LEA BUCKLES

Miss Buckles, Mr. Thomason To Wed In June

June 2 is the date selected for the wedding of Miss Janice Lea Buckles, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Harrison Buckles, Jr., of Rayville, and John Houston Thomason, son of Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Thomason, also of Rayville.

The Rev. W. D. Boddie will officiate at the ceremony at four in the afternoon at the Methodist Church of Rayville.

The prospective bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Buckles of Rayville, and of Mrs. Lee Woodard of Triplett, Mo. She is a student at Louisiana Tech, where she is a member of Theta Upsilon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Merchant of Archibald are grandparents of Mr. Buckles? The young couple will live in Ruston, where both will continue their studies at Louisiana Tech.

Freezer Food Demonstration

"Preparing food for the food freezer" was the demonstration given by Mrs. Grace Guillory at the April meeting of the Progressive Home Demonstration club.

The meeting was held in the home of Mrs. L. O. Guillory. Members present were Mrs. Charlie Guraedy, Mrs. Roy Simmons, Mrs. J. E. Mann, Mrs. Rowe Harrell, Mrs. Tim Ford, Mrs. Grace Guillory and the hostess.

MR. AND MRS. Eldon Sheppard of Monroe announce the engagement of their daughter, Sharon, to Hugh Archie Britt, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Britt, also of Monroe. The wedding will be solemnized on the fourth of June at St. Matthews' church.

Flowers Shades Seen In New Lipstick Hues

Never were flower-massed Easter hats better designed to make you look like a great lady in a Sargeant Painting. And never have you been in greater need, of a make-up palette with various key lipstick shades and colored eye shadows to complete the beautiful picture.

And never was a lipstick need better met than three new California sun colors to harmonize or match flower colors on a hat, no matter if they are real or make-believe.

Aptly called Pink Sunshine, Coral Sun and Orchids-in-the-Sun, these new lipstick shades can faintly echo or brashly repeat the color intensity of flowers rippling over new hats, toppling from brims. Each lipstick shade draws its fire and color from California sunshine, world-famous source of fashion excitement and natural beauty.

Pink Sunshine, as its name implies, can take on all pink comers flowering on a hat: pink roses, carnations, poppies; and will look as lovely with hats bedecked with blue; with delphiniums, cornflowers, even old-fashioned forget-me nots. Pink Sunshine is a natural, too, to wear with wig-like hats of green leaves, the season's No. 1 flowerless favorite.

10 Basic Rules To Follow When Selecting Hat

1. Simplicity is the foundation of good taste.
2. Select hats that do something FOR you, not TO you.
3. A beautiful hat is a woman's best friend.
4. It would be wonderful if women dressed more to suit their face and figure and personality rather than follow trends set by goofy designers. Don't copy a fad just because it happens to be the last gasp in fashion. Just because it is inspired by Paris doesn't make the hat becoming to you — only accept what you think is best for YOU.
5. Select hats to please men....
6. Rather have one good hat, and wear it 100 times, than have a dozen thrilless hats.
7. Color is exciting ... color is alive . . . color is flattering . . . color helps to express your personality. If you see a hat that you honestly like . . buy it . . don't wait, your first impression is always best.
8. A new hat is the most stimulating accessory in the wardrobe.
9. There's no price on good taste . . the difference between a well dressed woman and one who isn't . . is good taste . . not what they paid for their clothes. Your hat may have cost a fortune, but that does not mean it is becoming and flattering.
10. After a woman reaches 35, accept flattering hats that make you appear 10 years younger. Remember, . . a woman is as old as her hat; therefore, a woman is as old as she looks ... a man is never old until he quits looking, . . so why not wear attractive, beautiful hats and keep the men looking!

How To Tell If Baby Is Truly Sick

By DOROTHY V. WHIPPLE, M.D

A YOUNG mother with her first baby often worries that her baby is sick. She doesn't know what a sick baby looks like so she fears that each little sneeze or cough means her baby is sick. After she has had several children, she learns the signs of sickness. But in those early months she may be needlessly worried.

A mother needs to know what signs are serious and call for the doctor's immediate attention and what signs are not so serious and can safely be treated at home and then the doctor called if necessary.

A baby changes rapidly as he grows and develops but certain kinds of changes may mean that he is sick.

The sudden changes are of two kinds. First, those acute things that anyone can recognize as signs of illness, a convulsion, a hemmorhage, a high fever. Second those vague changes which are first apparent to the mother who knows her baby better than anyone else. Has the baby been more irritable than usual, has he eaten as usual, or has he been more restless in his sleep?

Some signs of illness may be the beginning of serious disease and should have the immediate attention of the doctor. The following are serious signs:

A sudden very high fever, especially if the baby seems tense, jittery and jumpy. He may be the verge of a convulsion. A call to your doctor may give you aavice to avoid a convulsion.

Difficulty in breathing.

Hoarseness which developed suddenly, especially if there is also a hard barky cough.

A blue or gray color to the lips and face, especially if the child seems listless.

Blood in the stool (not just a drop but a large amount)

If your baby shows any of these signs, put him to bed in quiet place and phone your doctor as soon as possible regardless of the hour. Your doctor will tell you what to do immediately and make arrangements to see your child.

When your baby shows any of these serious signs of trouble there isn't much doubt in your mind that you need the doctor but there are a host of less serious ailments that may leave you in doubt. The following may indicate illness but they are not emergencies: irritability or restlessness, loss of appetite, vomiting, diarrhea, constipation, pain, running nose, cough, rash, fever, inability to move part of his body.

If your baby shows any of these signs take his temperature. If it is as high as 104 or 105, consider it an emergency and call your doctor.

If the temperature is from 101 to 103, call your doctor as soon as convenient, but not in the middle of the night.

Handicapped Create New Career Fields

CHICAGO (UPI) — New techniques to help persons overcome speech and hearing problems have created new career opportunities.

The fields of speech pathology and audiology are growing fast to help many adults and the more than three - million American school children who are hard of hearing. More than one child out of every classroom will grow into adulthood with a permanent hearing defect unless detected in time, says the American Speech and Hearing Association.

About 7,500 speech pathologists and audiologists work in hospitals, clinics, schools and industry today. Because of the increasing need for workers, a hearing aid-manufacturer made a film on careers in the field. The film is available for women and service clubs across the country.

Master's degrees generally are required of speech pathologists and audiologists. About 70 universities and colleges offer master's or doctor's degrees in the subject.

Starting salaries range from $4,000 to about $6,500 a year. Many experienced audiologists earn more than $10,000 a year.

MR. AND MRS. William Mack Redmond are pictured cutting the wedding cake following their marriage in the Brownville Methodist church.

Church Wedding Unites Miss Hearne, Mr. Redmon

Miss Linda Robelene Hearne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stacey Augustus Hearne of West Monroe, became the bride of William Mack Redmond in a candlelit ceremony Friday, April 1. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Redmond of Monroe.

The Rev. Paul Durbin officiated at the double ring ceremony at six in the evening in the Brownville Methodist Church. White gladioli and stock decorated the altar, which was flanked by two pair of candelabra holding tall white tapers.

Richard Dyer, soloist, sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer," accompanied by Miss Nancy Shell, at the piano, who gave a pre - nuptial concert.

The bride entered the church with her brother, James Edward Hearne, who gave her in marriage. Her gown was white Alencon lace over satin. She carried white mums mounted on a white Bible, with streamers of white tube roses. Her gown was accented with a veil of illusion, fitted on her head.

Miss Carra Bell was maid of honor. Her dress was of pink organza, fashioned with a scooped neckline and fitted cummerbund above the full skirt, with matching accessories.

The candlelighters were Billy Long and Scott Rambin, who also served as ushers. Donald Redmond, brother of the groom, was best man.

Mrs. Hearne, the bride's mother, was wearing a beige lace over taffeta, with matching accessories. A shoulder corsage of pink carnations complimented her ensemble. The bride-groom's mother, Mrs. Redmond, was dressed in champagne blue lace with matching accessories, and a shoulder corsage of blue carnations.

A reception followed in the banquet hall of the church. The bride's table was covered with a pink satin damask cloth. A crystal epergne, with pink stock and pink camellias and tall pink tapers, in silver candelabra was used on the table.

The punch bowl was at one end of the table and the three-tiered wedding cake, topped by a miniature bride and groom, was at the opposite end. Those assisting were Miss Rita Long and Miss Glenda Faye Redmond.

Mrs. D. R. Simmons presided at the guest book.

The couple toured parts of Mississippi. For her wedding trip, the bride chose a green and white suit, with white accessories. She wore the corsage from her wedding bouquet.

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Redmond will make their home in West Monroe.

Tamale Supper Is Given For Lakeshore Club

A tamale supper was held at New Cabin overlooking the bayou at the home of Mrs. H. B. McDowell. This was the setting for the April meeting of the Lakeshore Garden Club. Mrs. J. H. Alford was co-hostess.

The following officers were elected for the new year: Mrs. H. B. McDowell, president; Mrs. C. T. Welker, vice president; Mrs. B. B. Seale, secretary; Mrs. Tracy Higdon, treasurer; Mrs. J. B. Evans, Sr., parliamentarian.

Mrs. John Lewis gave demonstration of flower arrangements using flowers and containers brought by members.

Those enjoying supper and program were: Mesdames J. H. Alford, J. W. Bubnick, B. J. Carlton, John Craft, J. B. Evans, Sr., Tracy Higdon, H. B. McDowell, Claude Price, Jody Rodden, B. B. Seale, R. L. Taylor, C. R. Watson, C. T. Welker, and Earl Phelps.

Responsibility Helps Children In Growing

NEW YORK (UPI) — Dr. Ernest Osborne, of Columbia University Teachers College, urges parents to provide more "growth-producing responsibilities" for their children.

He said there should be more recognition of the child's "acceptance as a family member with his own rights and privileges — as well as his responsibilities."

This includes personal privileges such as his own key to the house, a special work corner or work room, and other signs of recognition that he is a responsible member of the family unit.

Dr. Osborne also criticized many parents' failure to allow children "the right to make mistakes."

"Only when children are denied such opportunities because parents are blind to them or too busy to be bothered do we find 'irresponsible' youngsters," Dr. Osborne said.

IT WAS A CRIME

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) Burglars made a prize haul when they broke into the parked automobile of Chester V. Stringer.

Taken from the car were a sport coat, a transistor radio and a book of personalized checks. The burglars also got Stringer's commission as an agent of the State Crime Bureau.

MRS. ALLEN LEWIS SMITH, Jr., of Ferriday, the former Miss Lelia Anne Roy of Marksville, Miss., whose marriage to Mr. Smith was solemnized April 2 in the St. Joseph's Catholic church in Marksville. Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Jennings Roy are parents of the bride. Mr. Smith's parents are Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Smith of Baton Rouge, and his grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. P. A. Poag of Monroe. Both graduates of bride. Mr. Smith's parents are Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Louisiana State University. Mr. and Mrs. Smith will be making their home in Ferriday.

Essay Winners Guests At Auxiliary Luncheon

The April meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary to the Ouachita Parish Medical Society was held at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club on Thursday. The tables were decorated with lavender and white hyacinths, iris, wisteria, and bridal wreath, arranged in white Easter baskets.

Guests at the luncheon included the student winners of the essay contest sponsored each year by the Woman's Auxiliary to the Ouachita Parish Medical Society. Tom Scott, Neville High School, read the winning essay: Nela Bloomer, Paula Bauer, and Dianne Garrett, all from Ouachita Parish High School were the other winners. The essays are now being judged at the State level along with other participants in the Fifth District. Localities represented besides Monroe, and West Monroe are Collinston, Delhi and Harrisonburg.

Members and their guests were also entertained by Mrs. Marcus Mapp reviewing "Quiet — Yelled Mrs. Rabbit" by Helen C. Espeth.

Hostesses for the meeting were Mrs. C. H. Whitaker, chairman; Mrs. Henry Guerriero, co-chairman, assisted by: Mrs. A. S. Hamilton, Mrs. Sampognaro, Mrs. Polen, Mrs. N. R. Spencer, and Mrs. Wright, Jr. and Mrs. Wright Sr.

Others attending were Mrs. Fred Sartor, Mrs. J. T. Jackson, Mrs. N. Klam, Mrs. Fred Millsaps, Mrs. F. J. Willey, Mrs. H. F. Madison, Mrs. C. T. Yancey, Mrs. J. T. Best, Mrs. C. K. Smith, Mrs. G. M. Shannon, Mrs. J. W. Schonlau, Mrs. J. Bolling Jones, Mrs. T. W. Meriwether, Mrs. Oliver H. Vreeland, Mrs. George R. Ellis, Dr. Julia Hunter, Mrs. E. L. Carroll, Mrs. Cavitt Cookston, Jr., Mrs. Fred A. Marx, Mrs. V. J. Sampognaro, Mrs. Edward J. Brown, Mrs. C. H. Whitaker, Mrs. H. S. Coon, Mrs. Ralph Talbot, Mrs. G. D. Williams, Mrs. E. M. Clark, Mrs. J. Graves, Mrs. C. P. Gray, Mrs. Irving Wolff, Mrs. J. D. Kelly, Mrs. Morris Phillips, Mrs. Faheam Cannon, Mrs. T. H. Scott, Mrs. Henry E. Guerriero, Mrs. Mortimer Raphael, Mrs. R. W. Dickenhorst, Mrs. C. P. Gray, Mrs. R. Kelly, Mrs. C. A. Roberts, and Mrs. Eugene F. Worthen.

Questions And Answers Guide For Homemakers

By BETTY PEPIS

Q. — Please advise me on a question of taste. I have in my dining room an empty corner near a window, I would like to place a table with a vase of flowers or perhaps a small chair in this corner. My friends have told me that to put anything at all here would be in the worst possible taste. I think the corner looks bare and is wasted space. What do you think?

A. — A home furnishing expert has said that the main trouble with most rooms is that they are overcrowded. If you place a small flower stand in your corned it certainly will not be bad taste but might contribute to an undesirable "over-full" look. I would prefer flowers on the table or buffet, but if the bare corner bothers you, by all means use a small square table (don't cater-corner it, please!) in this area. It's your house!

Q. — My living room is 15x16 feet, has good light and is painted a very light green. I have two white leather sectional sofas and two rattan chairs. Accessories are black with bronze trim. What colors can I use for draperies (to cover one wall), bookshelves, accent rugs and pillows?

A. — You have a very subdued color scheme which will permit almost any color addition. Have draperies white or a light neutral beige, paint bookshelves to match walls or use a system of brass strips with natural walnut shelves. Your accent rug and throw pillows can be bright, pale, hot or cold — choose rug in a pattern using your favorite colors and key pillows to the rug. The rug might be gold with pattern in burnt orange and mocha and pillows could be yellow, mocha, golds and orange.

Q. — My daughter's bedroom has sunshine yellow walls and bedspread. Furniture is maple. Please tell me what color or colors to use for draperies and a rug.

A. — Keep the color light and cheerful for a young, fresh look. Draperies might be white with delicate fern print in green. The rug could be cotton in a clear leaf green.

Q. — My living - dining room has a gold, brown, orange and white scheme which I should like to change completely. I plan to keep light gold walls, and antique gold rug. I need colors for draperies, upholstery for Danish sofa and chairs, and accessories.

A. — Cool blues and greens would provide a startling change of pace from your warm scheme.

KITCHEN SINK, TOO

PHOENIX, Ari. (AP) — Edward Gabbell told police thieves were carrying away an unoccupied house he owned — piece by piece.

Gabbell said within six months thieves removed all the locks from the doors, regulators from cooler ducts, covers from electric outlets, light switches, a gas water heater, two wall cabinets —and a kitchen sink.

Oak Grove Rites Unite Mr. Jordan, Miss Anderson

The C. O. Jordan home in Oak Grove was the scene of the wedding of Miss Phyllis Anderson of Greenville, Miss., and Rex Paul Jordan, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Jordan. The bride is the daughter of L. H. Anderson and the late Mrs. Anderson of Detroit, Mich.

The Rev. Harry McKoin officiated at the ceremony before a background of ferns and pastel gladioli.

The bride, given in marriage by Bob Morris of Greenville, wore a sheath dress of sapphire blue silk faille featuring a low sweetheart neckline. She chose beige accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Miss Mary Rose Fratizi of Greenville, was maid of honor and the bride's only attendant. Charles Miles of Greenville was best man.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony. A white crocheted cloth covered the table, which was centered with the tiered white cake, trimmed with white roses and topped with a bride and groom. Mrs. Harry Martin served the cake, while Mrs. C. W. Jordan and Mrs. C. O. Jordan alternated at the punch bowl.

About fifty guests attended the wedding and reception, including Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Dupree of Sonheimer, Leslie Parker of Greenville, and Mrs. E. E. McGehee.

The couple will live in Greenville.

DEAR ABBY

Can Help Only Those Who Wish To Be Helped

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Dear Abby: I have a serious problem. At least it's serious to me.

I am married to a man who smokes FIVE PACKS of cigarettes a day! And if he runs out, he searches around for butts in the ash trays and garbage cans like a mad man.

I don't smoke and never have so maybe I can't appreciate what Dave is up against but, Abby, it is driving me out of my mind.

Dave gets up in the middle of the night for a smoke and he has to have one even before he is fully awake. You can't tell me it isn't hurting his health.

He laughs at the cancer research reports and says all they prove is that mice shouldn't smoke. How can I help him without being a nag? HELEN LORRAINE

DEAR HELEN LORRAINE: You can't help anyone unless HE wants to be helped. It takes a combination of "will" power, "won't" power and "Supreme" power.

DEAR ABBY: We are an old couple in our 70's. All of our children are married, but now that we aren't able to do much for them any more, they have forgotten all about us.

We have to look elsewhere for someone to help us with our storm windows and jobs like that.

When they come to see us, which is very rare, they usually come about 10 P.M. when we are getting ready for bed. And if they come earlier, they stay only a few minutes so they can go somewhere else for the evening.

Why do children treat their parents like this, Abby? JUST LONELY PEOPLE

DEAR LONELY: Because they don't know better. But when you are gone they will water your graves with their tears. Poor, unfortunate, short-sighted children!

"What's your problem?" Write to Abby in care of this paper. For a personal reply, enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

For Abby's pamphlet, "What Every Teen-ager Wants To Know," send 25 cents and a large self-addressed, stamped envelope in care of this paper.

Rabbits And Easter Eggs

By MILDRED SWIFT

An old pagan custom regarded the rabbit as the emblem of fertility and new life. The Easter rabbit was supposed to leave colored eggs for good children after they were asleep. The use of colored eggs for Easter comes from the ancient Persians who regarded eggs as symbol of rebirth. Eggs were first colored with dye about 74 years ago for a New Jersey druggist. On this Easter morning we feel the spirit of "Love thy neighbor."

Camellia bloom blight has been found in a number of gardens in Ouachita Parish. The entomologists say this is not the time to spray but that every person growing camellias should carry on an extensive sanitation and clean up program. All old dead blooms and mulch under plants should be taken up and burned. Please not just carried away. In that case you'll just scatter the disease. Burn everything that has been around and under every camellia plant. We'll keep you informed later, the precautions to take against the bloom blight.

Word from Tony Veazy in Tampa, Florida is of interest to gardeners. She dined one evening under the spreading limbs of Florida's famous Kapok tree. In fact the limp spread is 200 feet and said limbs bear flame colored blossoms as winter advances. In full bloom, the lovely tree is almost a ball of fire and can be seen miles around. The blossoms fall to form a carpet of rosy wonder at the tree's 60 foot base. Tony has been in Tampa working with the Red Cross to help the flood victims to safety and rehabilitation.

CLEMATIS VINE

It's time to plant a jackmani clematis so it can become well established before blooming time. This is a hardy vine in most locations, coming back each year. The plant prefers a good loamy soil and an east exposure. It is necessary for it to have a support or trellis.

The white clematis, paniculata, is a rampant grower but not so with the jackmani. It has a neat growing habit. The vine blooms in early summer for a month or more. The flowers are a soft textured, rich, violet purple, about three inches in diameter. They have prominent yellow stamens tipped with gray. These blossoms have no fragrance and last eight to ten days. This vine is quite spectacular in bloom and plants can be bought from local nurseries.

GARDENING

In about two weeks you can set out your candle trees. (Cassia alata). In New Orleans they're planting 300 of these in the parks and boulevards. That should be a beautiful sight.

In April you can divide and reset chrysanthemums. Watch for aphids on new growth of many plants. Use a nicotine spray when the temperature is 70 degrees or higher. Pull off camellia seed pods as they form, unless you want to plant the seeds.

Divide and reset violets. Layering may be used this month to propagate many trees and shrubs.

ROSES

The roses have started their spring growth. If you haven't fertilized these, do so at once. You can repeat this feeding later on. Keep captan, fermate or dithane on hand to spray for leaf spot.

The azaleas are in bloom so watch for petal blight. Thylate or Dithane are both recommended. Dithone was the preferred spray up until this year. Now Thylate has been found to be superior because it has to be applied about half as often and is less likely to leave a residue on the blooms. Mist spray this. Mix according to instructions on the container.

FRIENDLY BUTCHER

Old Schultz and thousands of neighborhood butchers like him sort of passed from the American scene just prior to World War II. Women have always felt there's no substitute for watching the white-aproned friendly butcher work while deluging him with questions about the best cut and the best way to cook it. Researchers say the store of the 70's will be a neatly laid out collection of neighborhood stores from the 30's. It will have a separate meat department, with the butcher in plain view at his chopping block. There will be a separate baker, delicatessen produce, cosmetic and household goods department. All will be arranged in orderly semi-circles to permit easy inspection. Women usually get what they want if they keep hammering at it long enough. Who was it said, "The hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world?"

NEW

In this world of realities, no one has yet come up with a crumbless cracker to munch on in bed or figured out a way to make the zipper replace the can opener. But — it probably won't be long now, for there is always something new under the sun.

For instance: a patent was issued just recently for a safety device for gas stoves to prevent children from turning on burners. This bright idea involves a tall beam of light and a photo electric switch. To turn on the stove, the light beam must be interrupted by someone of adult height. What's next? Why doesn't someone come up with a car that folds up like an accordian so it's easy to park.

There's a carpet with a dual purpose: to beautify the floor and warm the room. This is accomplished by an element woven in at 2-inch intervals, invisible. It's controlled by a thermostatic plug. The makers claim the carpet is safety proof against dogs, cats, children and spilled liquids. It can be shampooed or vacuumed and can withstand the weight of furniture. Not available for some time, yet.

Your Open House programs for next week are: Monday, Sue Ellerman will show us that we don't have to be fat: Tuesday, "Food Facts and Fallacies"; Wednesday, flower arrangements. Thursday and Friday marketing with Mildred.

See you next Sunday.

MAN TO MAN meeting was given a human interest touch in this entry in the "America's Many Faces" contest by Ferenc Berko, a professional photographer of Aspen, Colo.

Camera News

ONE OF THE traits which marks many amateur camera fans is the haphazard way in which they take pictures. Usually they shoot whatever crosses their viewfinder. Professionals, on the other hand, generally seek out their target or plan their pictures in advance.

Most photo contests provide separate categories and separate prizes for amateurs and pros if both are allowed to compete in the same contest.

Once in a while, a contest makes no distinction between photographers. The sponsor wants the best pictures he can get whether it's a lucky shot by an amateur or the most carefully planned effort of a professional.

The search is headed by Edward Steichen, dean of American photographers and director of photography for the Museum of Modern Art in New York. The contest is sponsored by the National Urban League to dramatize the melting-pot concept of our American heritage.

"In this search," Steichen says, "we are looking for photographs which depict the wide variety of racial, national and cultural origins of the people of the United States."

Because the project's theme, "America's Many Faces" might lead camera fans to concentrate heavily on portraits, Steichen adds this note:

"We are interested in portraits . . . but are more interested in pictures of people in action, living their lives in America."

Here, then is a theme which is a challenge to amateur camera fans and which they can tackle at their own level. Symbolic pictures that express the theme can be found in their own homes and communities, parks and playgrounds, in their places of work and worship, in recreations, sports and schools.

Photographs taken in recent years are eligible provided the original negative is available if it is needed. If not, there are approximately four more weeks to plan and produce suitable pictures. The deadline for entries is May 31.

A total of $20,000 has been set aside for prizes. Each entry selected will earn its taker $50, with $250 going to every series selected. The selected pictures will be seen as an exhibition and published in book form.

It will be interesting to see how the amateurs fare in the contest. Personally, I'm predicting that there will be as many amateurs with single picture awards as professionals, but that the pros will overwhelm the amateurs in the series acceptances.

(EDITOR'S NOTE: You may wish to inform your readers that entries must be unmounted prints no smaller than 4 x 5 inches nor bigger than 11 x 14, in color or black-and-white and mailed to: "America's Many Faces," 14 E. 48 St., New York 17, N.Y.)

Spirits Lift At Easter Time

By AUDREY DAWSON

Easter is a beautiful time of the year. It reminds us that ole man winter is about to disappear and our spirits are revived with the new growth on trees and shrubs. Of course, most of the fairer sex purchase the Easter bonnet for revival. Speaking of hats, aren't the flower hats beautiful? In fact, it seems to yours truly that every hat has a flower or flowers this year. So after today, Mrs. Homemaker, you have all the girls of the family decked in new spring flower hats, let's talk about flowers in the landscape. Really most of us wait until after Easter to get to our gardening because we just know ole man winter will probably hang around until after this date.

One of the most popular plants for the flower bed that has been used to give color these past two or three years has been the caladium. Rightly so — because so far these have not developed any disease, nor do any of the insects attack them. This eliminates some of that spraying. If you need color, caladiums can answer your problem. If you desire green and white, then get candidum; crimson wave is red, Lord Derby is pink.

Remember to be sure to leave leaf foliage on your bulbs until entirely dead so they will bloom next year.

Spray camellias and azaleas with oil emulsion or malathion for scale and aphids.

Plants that should be pruned in spring after they have bloomed are: spirea, deutzia, philadelphus (mock orange), forsythia, Japanese magnolia, flowering quince, flowering almond, winter honeysuckle, flowering peach and azaleas.

FARM BUREAU

All Farm Bureau women of Ouachita Parish Mrs. Osterland, your chairman, wants you to circle Thursday, April 28 — 1:00 o'clock on your calendar and save that date for coffee with her at the Trianon. Be sure to save that date for Mrs. Osterland.

EASTER STAINS

Removing chocolate stain from the children's Easter clothes is usually a troublesome task. Most candy stains can be removed by washing in water, but this is not true of chocolate candy. To remove chocolate candy, first scrape off as much of it as possible with a dull knife. Then try one of the following methods: launder washable materials in warm soapy water — sponge stubborn stains with a mixture of sodium perborate to 1 pint hydrogen peroxide. Be sure to test these chemicals on the material to see what effect they have on color before using. If the material is not washable sponge with carbon tetrachloride to dissolve grease.

TIN CANS

The tin can, an indispensable item today was invented 150 years ago. Today there are more than 1,200 different canned foods to choose from. Eleven million tons of food about 8½ per cent of all we eat wind up in cans each year. That many cans set side by side in a row would circle the world 430 times. Over 2,700 canneries are busy keeping up with America's appetite for handy canned foods. Canned foods today are higher in nutrition, taste better than ever before and they're completely safe.

WASH AND WEAR

Seam puckering is a problem when sewing wash and wear fabrics. Our clothing specialist, Miss Fae Roark says there are four things that you can do to eliminate the seam puckering — sew with a lighter tension and a balanced stitch; reduce the amount of pressure on the presser foot, which will make both pieces of material travel at the same speed; adjust the length of the stitch to suit the fabric and the type of stitching to be done and use the throat plate with the smallest round opening.

A THOUGHT: If you want your neighbor to know what Christ will do for him, let the neighbor see what Christ has done for you.

THE SOUTHERN GARDENER

Coping With Urge To Plant

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Azalea planting or transplanting ought to satisfy that spring urge better than anything a gardener can do in April. No better time can be found for moving these beautiful shrubs about. Just as soon as the flowers wilt, azaleas go to work and send out their fine network of tiny roots. While you still have in mind just what color the flowers are or were, you can make up your color scheme.

Most of us like to plant azaleas fairly close together and then, when they grow together, take out every other one or every third one and make another planting. Nothing in the garden could be more accommodating about being moved around at almost any time. Summer is about the only time when it is advisable not to move them.

Thirty years ago, not much was known about azalea growing. Now, almost anybody you meet on the street can tell you how to mix your soil and humus and how to make the soil acid. It may not be long, now, till we begin to be rhododendron growers as well as azalea growers in spite of the greater difficulties of rhododendron growing. The only mistake gardeners make with their azalea planting is to occasionally plant them too deep. Remember to set them at the same level at which they grew. If you firm the soil right underneath the ball of dirt on your new azalea (you do not need to pack it hard), just before you set it in the bed, it will not be apt to sink very much. The soil that goes around the ball can be watered down without any packing, and an inch or two of humus thrown over the surface will take care of the plants if they should be a trifle high. This little mulch on the surface is what we usually put on, anyway.

Are you aware of the numbers of new kinds and varieties of azaleas that are for sale now in this country? "The Azalea Book" by Dr. Frederic P. Lee was reviewed in this space before Christmas. It was published by Van Nostrand for The American Horticultural Society and contains descriptions of all the new types of azaleas. Azaleas are being constantly changed and developed for us. For instance, if you have had trouble with even that stalwart old plant, the white flowered Azalea ledifolia alba — sometimes it does get killed back, then try Palestrina, one of the Vuykiana Hybrids.

Everyone wants to grow yellow azaleas. After poor success with our wild yellow and orange azaleas from the coast and the mountains, most people have given up. The Mollis and Ghent types run to these same colors. They were mostly created by crossing our wild American species with one of the foreign ones. These gorgeous varieties seem to almost bloom themselves to death. Some people grow them successfully for years and say they do not care if they do die after such a show. Even in summer and fall, they will sometimes burst into flower. Try to get these varieties on their own roots because grafted plants from Holland do not last long.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Birds Aid In Insect Control

By MARY JARDINE

FIFTH DISTRICT GARDEN CENTER NOTES
By GLADYS M. KULCKE
Guest Writer

One way of controlling insects about our gardens is to get myriads of birds to do much of the work for us. There are any number of birds with different appetites that you may attract to your garden. They not only work for you "around-the'clock" but furnish you with much pleasure by their varied songs.

To attract the birds of your choice you should know four items of bird lore or "secrets".

First you should know the bird not only by his color, size and song, but by his bill. The birds are classified as vegetarians or heavy meat eaters. The vegetarians are all seed or other plant life eaters. Their bills are short and fine — as English sparrows, doves and a few others. The birds who do the most work for us are the "meat eaters". They prefer to eat insects.

In this class are the barn swallows, swifts, house wren and some species of warblers. They have long and straight bills or long and curved bills. They may be whiskered and short billed as the whippoorwills and the nighthawk family. The birds who like a mixed diet of insects and seeds and other plant life have fine, sharp bills. They eat the very small insects, insect eggs, or plant lice (aphids). In this way many of the enemies of plant life are destroyed before they hatch; or while they are still young and have not had time to grow and devour much of the plants. We also have the long, strong sharp, boring bills of the Flickers, and woodpeckers. These birds search in deep places for harmful insects and in seed eggs. The second secret is to provide protection for the birds. Now is the time to provide suitable nesting areas, and suitable materials for making nests so the birds will not have to carry materials far. The birds are very resourceful in finding material for their nest, but a few strings, rags, hair and feathers put out in the garden, always helps. Bird houses help invite some birds. Providing water is the third secret way of enticing birds into your garden. Water is most important for the birds, especially near nesting times, so the parents will not need to leave the eggs or the baby birds later in search of water. Have the water high enough for the safety of young birds when they are learning to fly.

Most birds love to splash in a small pool of water. A small natural-looking pool about 2 feet in diameter and an inch deep is excellent. It is a pleasure to watch the birds in the bird bath.

The fourth secret of attracting birds is to provide feeding supplements, especially during the cold weather. The best way to do this is to set up feeding tables near your house outside a window. Table scraps that do not contain an excessive amount of salt make good bird food, but most people supplement them with a cheap grade of chopped corn or sunflower seeds. The hummingbirds may be attracted into the garden by hanging red-lacquered vials filled with sweetened water. I use honey to sweeten the water. Certain ornamental trees, shrubs, and herbaceous plants bear fruits that are attractive to birds. Plant some of the berry producing shrubs and trees in your garden.

Dates — The Epps Garden Club will stage their second annual flower show, "Springtime on the Bayous," April 23, 1960, 3:00 p.m. until 6:00 p.m. in the Epps School cafeteria.

KIDS TO BRUSH UP

CAIRO (UPI) — The UAR government has decided to give each school pupil a toothbrush and a regular supply of toothpaste free of charge.

The education ministry already has earmarked $26,000 for the first round covering 100,000 primary school pupils throughout the Egyptian Region.

STAMP NEWS

TWO NEW embossed envelopes, authorized by the postal rate changes which go into effect July 1, will soon be issued by the U. S. Post Office Department.

The 2½-cent envelope, scheduled for release May 23 at Chicago, will feature a profile of George Washington (facing left with an oval). The envelope will be used for third class bulk mailing.

Since there is an additional charge for the envelope, collectors will have to enclose remittance for 6 cents per envelope. They should send their orders for first day cancellations to the Postmaster, Chicago 7, Ill., prior to May 23.

The 1¼-cent envelope, to go on sale at Birmingham, Ala., June 25, will feature a profile of Benjamin Franklin (facing left within an oval). These envelopes will be utilized by non-profit organizations for third class bulk mailings.

Collectors wishing to obtain first day cancellations will have to enclose remittances of 5 cents per envelope. They should send their orders to the Postmaster, Birmingham 3, Ala., prior to June 25.

The Israel Philatelic Agency in America reports a new series of Postal Savings Stamps have been issued superceding all former stamps of this type. The designs feature birds and animals.

Miss Humble Speaker For Ft. Miro DAR

The Fort Miro chapter Daughters of American Revolution held their monthly meeting at the Louis Locke room of the Ouachita Parish Public Library.

Mrs. B. A. Trousdale Jr., regent presided. The minutes were read by the secretary, Mrs. C. F. Buckly. Reports were given by Mrs. Duncan Cook on national defense and Mrs. A. E. Montgomery on Ft. Jessup.

A new flag was presented to the Ouachita Parish Public Library by the Ft. Miro chapter. Mrs. W. B. Matthews made the presentation to Miss Frances Flanders, librarian.

The topic of the talk given by Miss Sally Humble was the Life of Gen. Solomon Weathersby Downes.

It was announced that a junior group of Ft. Miro chapter is being organized with Mrs. R. D. Kellogg as organizer.

Members present were: Mrs. B. A. Trousdale Jr.; Mrs. C. F. Buckley; Mrs. J. S. Drew; Mrs. W. C. Oliver; Mrs. Roland Brown; Mrs. Travis Oliver; Mrs. S. W. McLean; Mrs. W. A. Town, Country Club Tours 3 Monroe Homes

An perhaps the most novel meeting of the year, the Town and Country Garden club was privileged to tour three distinctly different types of Monroe homes and gardens this past week. The group met at the almost completed new home of the Jamar Adcocks on Point Drive overlooking the beautiful bayou. The landscape had been completed, and was a perfect complement to the home.

From there they went on to the modern residence of Mrs. E. R. Whitaker, also on Point Drive. "Shangri-La" is ideally situated on an interestingly treated area, with boarded walkways over the deep ravine and with magnificent plantings of azaleas and other shrubs in full bloom.

The last home on the tour was the formal English gardens of Miss Fay Lou Biedenharn on Forsythe, another world from the moment one stepped through the carefully tended gardens reflected the personality of their designer, with gracious hospitality in evidence everywhere.

The hostesses for this meeting were Mrs. John Salisbury, Mrs. C. G. Pearce Jr. and Mrs. Charles Searcy. Members present were Mrs. Grant Boardman, Mrs. Lee Carbrey, Mrs. Robert Clay, Mrs. R. W. Dickenhorst, Mrs. David Garrett, Mrs. Tom Hayes Jr., Mrs. Lon Heuer, Mrs. Richard Kellogg, Mrs. N. Kiam, Mrs. James Moore, Mrs. John Mullens, Mrs. A. B. Myatt, Mrs. Amos Shelton, Mrs. W. E. Smith, Mrs. Harry Stone, Mrs. Leo Terzia Jr., Mrs. H. D. Touchstone and Mrs. R. L. Vandervool Jr. Guests were Mrs. John Clay and Mrs. Fancam Cannon.

State Meeting For Federated Clubs Planned

Fifth district delegates, three from each of the thirty-four clubs, will attend the annual convention of the Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs to be held at the Bentley Hotel, Alexandria, La. April 21 through 23.

Election of state officers and important resolutions will be discussed. Mrs. E. Lee Ozburn of Oklahoma City, Okla., first vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs will be the guest speaker.

In addition to regular delegates in attendance will be Mrs. Thomas Jett, district president of Monroe; Mrs. A. Dent Tisdale, past L. F. W. C. president of Monroe; Mrs. Annette Coolidge, past district president of Mangham; Mrs. Jefferson Davenport of Oak Grove; Mrs. J. B. Kendall Jr., state junior director; Mrs. W. I. Irby, Mrs. Paul Pennington and Mrs. B. C. Baugh, all of Ruston.

HEART CONDITION

Greek Child Asks For Help

ATHENS, Greece (AP)—A little Greek boy, his life in danger, appealed to a stranger in America for help.

He's going to get it.

Four-year-old Stellakis Parthenopoulos left here today on a flight to New York for a rare heart operation which holds hope for his future.

It all started with a pathetic question from little Stellakis: "Do you think that the heart of a child has to stop because his father has no money to pay for an operation?"

His plight was described in a letter handwritten in faltering English to John O. B. Wallace, an Associated Press writer in New York whose own health had been restored by delicate heart surgery.

"I write to you by the hand of my doctor, the hand that brought me into the world," the small boy said. "It is from my doctor that I have heard about your heart operation.

"I suffer from my heart too, that is why I write to you. You will understand me better. The specialists of Greece say that unless an operation would be done, one year later I shall die.

"There are only the American hospitals where my operation can be done. I have no money to pay. My father is a poor workman.

"Will you speak to Dr. Aaron N. Gorelik to operate me? Will you tell him that I have no money? The moment when you are reading my letter, my parents will be kneeling in prayer and I too."

Dr. Gorelik is the inrnationally known New York heart surgeon who operated on Wallace. The newsman's subsequent AP story about the procedure, during which he remained conscious, was widely printed throughout the world. The lad's physician, Dr. Jordanis Hadjianastaesiou, read the account in Reader's Digest.

The child's plea, resulting from the story, was one of several his doctor had made to various American institutions and individuals—without getting any answer. But he did get one from Wallace—that he'd do what he could.

"How could you ignore an appeal like that?" Wallace said. "It's that simple. I had faced the same thing this boy faced. I feel I owe somebody something for my own health. It's almost as if I feel responsible for this boy's life."

But long, complicated details had to be worked out to make the trip possible.

Leading specialists here examined the boy again, reported his condition grave, and sent findings to Dr. Gorelik, who agreed to perform the operation free.

American Missions to Greeks, Inc., an interdenominational agency headed by biblical scholar Spiros Zodhiates and which has a care program for the sick, aged and orphaned here, is providing travel aid and costs of special nurses, drugs and interpreters.

Parkchester General Hospital, in New York, is providing a large private room for the boy and his mother, who is accompanying him, as well as basic hospital facilities for the surgery.

Dr. Louis Suchoff, head of Allied Medical Laboratories in New York, has agreed to furnish all laboratory tests and X-rays without charge.

BOTTLE BUNGALOW

WASHINGTON COURT HOUSE, Ohio (AP) — Nearly 10,000 bottles of all sizes, shapes and colors are built into a one-room structure near here which now serves as a cabin at a motel.

The little house was built in 1935 by the late Addison McMurray, who collected bottles as a hobby. A fireplace mantel is decorated with a design of small medicine bottles implanted in concrete.

Indictment Given For Red China

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department, in a new indictment of the Red Chinese government, says Peiping flouts "standards of humanity and decency" in its imprisonment of an American Roman Catholic bishop.

Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn) made public Saturday night a letter from William B. Macomber Jr., assistant secretary of state, asserting the department will continue to seek "by every feasible means" the release of bishop James Edward Walsh and four other Americans held in Communist China.

Bishop Walsh, 68, a native of Cumberland, Md., was sentenced to 20 years in prison by a Communist court last month for alleged espionage. The State Department has called the charges against him false.

In a letter to Secretary of State Christian A. Herter March 23, Humphrey, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, declared

"The Peiping government has affronted all faiths in its sentencing of this courageous missionary leader, who for 45 years has served man's spiritual needs with great distinction, including 42 years serving China itself.

"If the Chinese government were deliberately seeking to reenforce a long-since powerful case against its admission to the United Nations, it could hardly have chosen another more persuasive argument against its recognition."

Replying for Herter on April 1, Macomber said he fully agreed with Humphrey's sentiments and added:

"The Chinese Communist sentencing of this distinguished Catholic prelate has made even clearer that regime's consistent policy of flouting the universally accepted standards of humanity and decency among civilized nations.

"It provides further evidence, if such be needed, that true freedom of religion is nonexistent in Communist China, and that the regime continues to relentlessly persecute believers of all faiths."

Macomber said the State Department has watched with concern over the past several years increasing restrictions imposed on Bishop Walsh by the Red Chinese.

Macomber said the imprisonment of the bishop and the four other Americans violated a Red Chinese pledge of Sept. 10, 1955 to allow all Americans to return home.

Hoffa Files Papers Of Accusation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamster's President James R. Hoffa, anxious to block his trial before federal Judge F. Dicksinson Letts on charges of misusing union funds, demanded Saturday that the 84-year-old jurist disqualify himself in the case.

Hoffa filed papers in district court accusing Letts of harboring a "personal bias and prejudice" against him in overseeing a clean-up of the teamsters by court-named monitors.

Hoffa contended in his affidavit that Letts already has decided to oust him from the $50,000-a-year presidency of the union before the trial starts.

The union leader's attorneys declared that the white-haired judge, now on a Caribbean cruise, cannot challenge the accurancy of Hoffa's statements and has no choice but to step aside.

The move was the latest in a series of legal maneuvers designed to block or cancel Hoffa's trial scheduled to begin April 27 with Letts presiding.

He is accused of depositing $500,000 of funds belonging to his home local in Detroit in an Orlando, Fla., bank to expedite a loan to a Florida real estate project in which he had an interest.

The monitors are seeking his removal from office on grounds that the transaction involved Hoffa in a conflict of interest and was misuse of the local's money. Hoffa claims the deposit was proper and says he never benefited from the transaction.

In his affidavi, the teamsters's boss also accused Letts of favoritism toward monitor Chairman Martin F. O'Donoghue, newly-named monitor Terence F. McShane and former monitor Godfrey P. Schmidt.

According to Hoffa, the judge told a reporter he was going to remove the tough-talking union leader.

Letts claimed he was insulted by the teamsters' nomination of William E. Bufalino, an attorney and head of a teamsters' local in Detroit, to be a member of the "watchdog" panel, Hoffa said. Bufaline has been under fire from the Senate Rackets Committee.

Hoffa also accused the judge, who approved establishment of the monitorship in January, 1958, to oversee union affairs, of deproving the teamsters of representation on the three-man board.

Drought

HONG KONG (AP) — The governor of this British crown colony, suffering its worst drought in 10 years, is negotiating with Red China for water. Talks started Friday about the possibility of piping water from Shumchun, the site [illegible] of a new Chinese reservoir 30 miles from this granite-based island. Less than four inches of rain have fallen since October, compared with the average of eight inches. Rationing is an effort to conserve supplies for the refugee-swollen population of three million.

Comedy Showing At Paramount

The producer - director who turned out a wacky, ribald jape on the army in the exceedingly popular "No Time for Sergeants" has obviously done it again! In fact, his picturization of Howard Singer's raucous, riotous, cock-eyed best selling novel, "Wake Me When It's Over," will register ticket-buyers even more lucratively and for longer periods of time than did "No Time for Sergeants."

The picture opens today at the Paramount Theatre.

Saturday Only: "Zarak" starring Victor Mature and Anita Ekberg, plus "Tarawa Beachhead" starring Kerwin Matthews and Julie Adams.

Friday and Saturday: "The Legend of Tom Dooley" with Michael Landon and Jo Morrow; also "Santa Fe Passage" with John Payne.

strictly for laughs. There is not a single serious moment in Richard Breen's entire adaptation. It spoofs Air Force "brass" and reveals an uproarious story that makes not only "No Time for Sergeants" but "Don't Go Near the Water" as well seem somber dramas. Certainly it is a substantially more elaborate production than either of those two service comedies. It has been produced on the same scale as was "South Pacific."

To insure every situation and line of dialogue are perfectly projected on the CinemaScope screens, for this lavish circus of laughs, in De Luxe color, Mervyn Le Roy, the director, assembled a group of comedians whose roles were seemingly written by novelist Singer with their talents in mind. Headlining the case is the immensely popular Ernie Kovacs as the captain of the small Pacific island base, "the wildest man in the Eighth Air Force." Others are: night - club comic Dick Shawn, making his screen debut as the World War II sergeant who, though officially listed by Washington as killed in action, is re-drafted and virtually shanghaied into service at a small Pacific island base, Shima, where he conceives and carries out a scheme to turn the native village into a health resort and establish a GI-owned plush hotel; Jack Warden as the base doctor; Robert Strauss as a top-rated non-com; Don Knotts Marvin Kaplan and others.

The distaff side of the cast includes two young actresses, Margo Moore as the flight nurse and Nubo McCarthy, who portrays the delicately beautiful Japanese girl who is Shawn's inspiration.

Divers Hunt For Missing Gold Statue

PORT SAID, United Arab Republic (UPI) — Divers are slipping into the waters of Port Said harbor every day with the hope of coming up with a gold statue of Christ.

It is a Russian statue, the divers say, and it is one foot seven inches high. It reportedly is worth half a million Egyptian pounds ($1,400,000).

Since World War I, it is said, the statue has been lying buried in a ship graveyard in Port Said harbor. It was on a Russian destroyer that was torpedoed by a German U-boat at Port Said in 1917.

The UAR government is hunting the seabed in Port Said and Alexandria for scrap iron. An Italian company is working on Napoleon's fleet sunk by Nelson at Aboukir, Alexandria. An Egyptian company is working in Port Said. Here the underwater graveyard includes wrecks of the Suez invasion.

Egyptian divers slip into the water, probe through a wreck, plant dynamite sticks and go up. The dynamite is exploded and the divers go down again. They wind a rope around a loose part and the upper crew haul it up.

Some day, they hope, the gold statue of Christ will rise from the waters.

Engineer Finds Way To Forecast Sea Tidal Waves

LA JOLLA, Calif. (UPI) — An engineer at Scripps Institution of Oceanography said he has devised an improved method of forcasting destructive tidal waves in the ocean.

The engineer, William G. Van Dorn, has received support from the Office of Naval Research for his new method.

Van Dorn said he found that eventually mountainous waves caused by underwater earthquakes and eruptions could be recorded when they were under one foot in height and passing Wake, Johnston and Canton Islands in the Pacific.

He said as the waves pass the islands, their length and their height are recorded on special instruments. He said the length of the waves sometimes is several miles.

According to Van Dorn, such waves, when they reach a larger island such as Oahu, Hawaii, which slopes up gently from the sea floor, may increase 20 to 30 times in height.

HILARIOUS COMEDY for the Easter season is "Wake Me When It's Over" which stars Ernie Kovacs, Margo Moore, Dick Shawn and Nobu McCarthy. The picture opens today at the Paramount Theatre.

Request Program Beamed To Tars

LONDON (UPI) — One of the world's most southerly radio request programs is on the air to bring messages from British families to men in whaling ships on the South Atlantic.

The Falkland Islands broadcasting station at Port Stanley went on the air recently with a half - hour program of music and messages for the 1,200 whalers and sealers currently operating in Antarctic waters.

Warning Is Issued To Negro Group

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—Negroes were warned by the government Saturday they may be banished to backwoods reserves if they obey the underground call for a work boycott next week.

The Department of Bantu — native—administration and development issued the warning in a statement that ignored the question of how the South African economy could operate if the huge Negro labor force refuses to work.

Against the background of a report Tuesday by Justice Minister Francois Erasmus that authorities already are "shipping many idle and superfluous bantu back to their homelands," it said "The bantu public are reminded that a considerable number of the recent stay-away-from-work campaign have since been unemployed. Unless they find work soon they will have to go back to their homelands.

"Bantu workers are therefore, in their own interests, warned not to pay any attention to pamphlets or other forms of encouragement for them to stay away from work."

The outlawed African National Congress is promoting the work boycott. It wants to revive the stay-at-home movement broken last week after police raids on African settlements netted sacks of arms and hundreds of men described by authorities as subversives, agitators and terrorists.

With most of its known leaders in jail, the Congress' emergency committee called for Negroes to stay at home throughout next week to enforce four demands on Prime Minister Hendrik F. Verwoerd's white supremacy regime.

These are elimination of the law requiring all Negroes to carry passes, release of the congress leaders, ending of the state of emergency by which the country is run under near martial law, and restoration of the Congress as a legal organization.

Raids were launched to nip the revival after ANC pamphlets showed up in Johannesburg's African settlements Thursday. And Police Commissioner Col. J. C. Lemmer announced police will be out in force next week to protect Negroes who ignore the call.

The strike's effectiveness will not be apparent before Tuesday. Easter Monday is a holiday for most of South Africa's three million whites and 10 million Negroes. A half-day was worked as usual Saturday after a quiet Good Friday.

LSU Profs Comment On Bonds

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — Two Louisiana State University professors said today Louisiana's system of financing non-highway bonds should be streamlined to obtain lower interest rates.

Dr. William D. Ross, dean of LSU's College of Business Administration, and Dr. Joseph M. Bonin, economics professor at the New Orleans branch of LSU, said the state could save millions of dollars in future interest charges by adopting their proposals.

In an article published this month by the Louisiana Business Review, they said bonding companies charged Louisiana a higher race of interest because state laws regulating borrowing are clumsy and unorganized.

The article was based on a two-year research project that was Bonin's Ph.D. dissertation.

The two economists said Louisiana's financial structure deserved the highest credit rating, which interest turn promotes lower interest charges.

Limiting their changes to future bond issues, they proposed:

—That all non-highway revenues be pledged as protection for retiring bonds;

—That the bonds be only first class obligations, backed by the full faith and credit of the state, and —Establishment of a state bond fund to channel revenues and retire bond issues on time.

The proposals are patterned after a bonding system adopted by the department of highways in 1956. The new system resulted in immediate higher credit ratings and lower interest charges.

The economists said Louisiana's constitution contained no systematic treatment of debt policy, and that provisions for borrowing for other state agencies were cumbersome and scattered.

The state's administrative machinery for debt management was outmoded, they said, criticizing periodic changes that worked as well as a model T Ford carburetor on a new Cadillac.

"Borrowing is done on an independent, or semi-independent basis by state departments and agencies," the report said. "It is still difficult to discover the exact relationship between the state treasurer, board of liquidations, highway commission, and the state bond and tax board."

The article suggested the changes should be made by both legislative act and by a constitutional amendment.

The new laws proposed would establish a single state bond commission to manage future issues of non-highway bonds, advise state agencies and the legislature regarding budget planning and bonds, and report Louisiana's debt structure and management to bond buyers and rating services.

Future bond issues would be retired from funds of the state bond fund, which would have a first claim on all state bonds excepting highway issues. This priority would apply only to revenues needed to pay the principal and interest, however.

The changes in effect would put the full weight of Louisiana's income up as collateral for loans, or pledge "full faith and credit" of the state, and result in a top credit rating for the state.

Tax Collection Hike Is Noted In Louisiana

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Tax collections increased 80 per cent in Louisiana during a 10-year period ending June 30, 1959, the Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) said Saturday.

The council said in a revision of its Louisiana state tax handbook the increase amounted to $190,600,000 and kept the state among the top 10 in the nation in collections.

The private research organization noted tax revenues actually furnished only about 55 per cent of the total funds spent by the state government. Federal funds and non-tax sources supply the remaining 45 per cent.

State taxes reached $428,800,000 in the fiscal year 1958-59. This made the state rank 10th highest among the states.

Federal grants and special funds totaled 232,000,000. Income from non-tax sources—primarily bonuses, rentals and royalties from leasing of state lands—amounted to almost $125,000,000.

The non-partisan council noted that since the relatively high level of state taxation was established before the fiscal 1949-50 the rate of increase has been below that of most states in the past 10 years.

PAR made these points:

State and local taxes in Louisiana are relatively high in relation to personal income. Combined state and local taxes amount to $10.57 per $100 of personal income, third highest for any state.

Louisiana is one of 36 levying a corporation income tax, but the impact is diffcult to compare because of varyng deduction allowances.

The seven cents a gallon gasoline tax levied by Louisiana and 12 other states is the highest.

Oil Completion In Area Told

One new oil well completion was reported in the Catahoula parish, California lake field about five miles south of Jonesville. The well is the property of E. C. Wentworth, Natchez, Miss. oilman.

The well has been tested and found to have about 18 feet of oil sand with 12 feet of producing sand. Some oil was found at 3,840 feet but the present production is between 3,849 and 3,857 ft.

Plans are for drilling to begin in about 60 days.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Three Monroe men will take cargo of the office of the Bank of St. Joseph & Trust Co. for a period of several weeks.

William W. Watson, cashier; Virgil Crawford, assistant vice president, and Robert Beasley, all of the Central Savings Bank and Trust Co., Monroe will take posts at the St. Joseph bank while on leave from their home institution.

WINNSBORO (Special) — Robert L. Southern has recently become a Certified Public Accountant. He is a graduate of Winnsboro High School and Louisiana Polytechnic Institute, and is now employed with Mobil Oil Turk in Instanbul, Turkey, where he, his wife, the former Miss June Varnado of Winnsboro, and their two children, Linda and David, are making their home.

A northeast Louisiana man was elected to the board of directors of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation at the annual meeting of the organization in Los Angeles last week.

P. T. Lagrone, a native of Ansley, was named to the position of vice president in charge of the company's southeastern region with headquarters in Atlanta, Ga. He will succeed Otis O. Rae who will retire May 1.

John Sherrouse Jr., of Monroe, president of Louisiana Oil Marketers Assn., will preside at the group's ninth annual convention in New Orleans May 6-8.

The three-day session will deal with the problem of improving retail operations in the oil industry.

Claude Gilliland, district manager for Mutual of Omaha has announced the company is reopening its statewide selective enrollment for Senior Security insurance which offers surgical and hospital insurance for the 65 and older group. Gilliland said the current enrollment period will end May 2, 1960.

DUBACH (Special) — Mayor R. M. Enloe and C. B. Colvin are justly proud of their modern up-to-date Dubach Finance Company which has just recently been completed. Having a capitol of $250,000 the company deals in small loans as well as large loans. The building has air conditioning and central heating.

Directors are: R. M. Enloe, president; O. C. Fuller, vice-president; C. B. Colvin secretary-treasurer, W. D. Smith, J. E. Fuller, J. P. Hamilton, Dr. J. L. Smith Jr., (Ruston) and John A. Mitchell, (Ruston). Open house will be held in the near future.

Lee Edwards, of Coleman-Edwards, has announced here that over 500,000 Volkswagens have been imported into the United States. The 500,000th Volkswagen will be presented to the owner of the oldest Volkswagen now in operation in the country.

Grain Futures Show Fairly Active Week

CHICAGO (AP)—A government report and weather were the major influences this week in a fairly active grain futures market. Interpretations were both bullish and bearish with prices reacting accordingly and ending in a mixed range.

Old crop wheat and soybeans met the stiffest pressure and posted losses running about 1½ cents. Most gains were fractional.

The first report of the year by the Department of Agriculture on probable winter wheat production was viewed generally as bearish, although a few brokers said the figure probably will be raised in later monthly estimates.

The outlook as of April 1 was for a yield of almost 977 million bushels, the department said. That was 51 million larger than the forecast of Dec. 1.

Arrival of more seasonable weather was believed to have conditioned much of the oats acreage for planting of that crop within the next several days. While planting will be late, it was thought more of that grain will be sown than was believed likely a week ago. If the normal oats acreage is seeded it will change the earlier prospects for larger corn and soybean plantings.

At the end of the week, wheat was 1⅝ cents a bushel lower to ⅝ higher, May $2.05⅞-06; corn ¾ higher to ⅜ lower, May $1.19⅛-19; oats ½ higher to ⅜ lower, May 74½; rye ⅛-1⅛ higher, May $1.22 ¼; soybeans ⅛-1½ lower, May $2.13⅞-14.

THIS WEEK

Easter Shopping, Cars Aid Business

NEW YORK (AP) — A record Easter shopping season, a continuing increase in automobile sales and a gain in home building combined to paint a brighter business picture this week.

On the darker side were higher unemployment and the steady decline of steel production.

After being discouraged by bad weather during the late winter and early spring, shoppers poured into the stores as Easter neared.

Dun & Bradstreet reported a survey of merchants in 66 cities in 41 states showed retail trade in the three weeks before Easter exceeded the similar pre-Easter period of last year by two to six per cent.

Biggest increases over last year were in women's apparel, men's suits and topcoats and children's merchandise.

The surge in car sales was especially encouraging to business as a whole, which has been watching the trend as a barometer of the economic climate.

Dealers sold 160,420 cars in the first 10 days of April, a gain of 11 per cent over a year ago.

"Prospects for continuation of the sales boom appear good and are backed by a public interest in the U.S. compacts as each manufacturer bows in this field," said Ward's Automotive Reports.

Output this week was estimated at 143,000, compared with 133,299 last week and 136,101 in the comparable week a year ago. The popular compacts accounted for 40,000 of the total, a new weekly high.

Stock sales on the New York Stock Exchange this week amounted to 10,451,000 shares compared with 14,633,070 the precious week and 17,326,640 a year ago. Bond sales amounted to $20,932,500 par value compared with $28,414,750 the previous week and $32,342,500 a year ago.

The Commerce Department reported home building made seasonal gains in March despite unusually poor weather. Builders started 97,000 new dwellings, about 20,000 more than in February.

"The decline of the first two months has been halted; this is very encouraging," said Federal Housing Administrator Norman P. Mason.

Secretary of the Treasury Anderson, reporting on the economic outlook, said, "1960 promises to be the most prosperous year in our history with total output of the nation exceeding a half trillion dollars for the first time."

"But perhaps een more significant," he added, "is the fact that the prospects are better today for a long period of healthy, rewarding and non-inflationary growth than they have been at any time in the past two decades."

The worst March storms in 20 years were reflected in a sharp increase in unemployment. The total spurted above four million, increasing by 275,000 over February.

Employment declined by 253,000 to 64,267,000. Employment usually climbs by about 450,000 between February and March.

Workers in construction, agriculture and trade were particularly hard hit.

The Labor Department predicted the situation would show good improvement in April.

Estimated steel production this week fell below 80 per cent of capacity in the sharpest drop since 1958 as orders from users continued to slow down. The output rate of 79.9 per cent compared with 84.3 per cent the previous week.

However, the industry had a record quarterly production to be happy about. In the first three months of 1960, 34,739,210 tons of steel were produced. This was 949,000 tons above the previous peak attained in the second quarter of 1959.

Briefly around the business scene: The $12,000-a-year-man of 1960 has the purchasing power of the $5,000-a-year-man of 1939 because of higher taxes and inflation, the National Industrial Conference Board reports. . . . American Telephone & Telegraph Co. added 750,000 phones to its lines in the first three months of this year. . . . Visits of U.S. sales executives have resulted in supermarkets springing up all over Yugoslavia. . . . Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. appropriated 120 million dollars for expansion. . . . Each major satellite launched by the United States costs between 10 and 11 million dollars. . . . Railroads asked Congress to require commercial carriers to pay for use of government-financed highways, airways and waterways.

Oil Firm Earnings Bounce Back

HOUSTON AP — Earnings of most major oil companies bounced back last year after the 1957-58 recession. But most oil executives say depressed prices continue to plague the industry.

Lagging prices drew considerable comment in financial report. A few executives were optimistic but a number said they feared the price lag will continue through most of 1960.

"The year 1959 was not a happy one and thus far the first quarter of 1960 reflects little if any improvement," said P. C. Spencer, chairman of Sinclair Oil Co. Sinclair this week cut crude prices in East Texas, the Rocky Mountain area, and Southwest Texas.

K. S. Adams, Phillips Petroleum Co. chairman, said 1959 prices averaged slightly lower than 1958.

"The big reason for our good showing last year was the job on trimming expenses," he said.

"Unit costs were lower all along the line."

Joseph Pew Jr., chairman, and Robert Dunlop, president of Sun Oil Co., agreed.

"Increased earnings reflected concentrated efforts to reduce unit costs of all operations," they said.

Two Standard Oil Co. Indiana executives said 1959 brought to a close a decade characterized by over capacity resulting from a postwar boom and imports pressure.

"Product price weakness, so evident in the first few months, may continue for most or even all of 1960," said F. O. Prior, chairman, and John Swearingen, president.

They said no automatic solutions are at hand.

Eugene Holman, chairman, and M. J. Rathbone, president of Standard Oil Co. New Jersey, said periods of imbalance of supply and demand have been experienced before and are to be expected in a dynamic industry.

"While we expect present conditions to be with us for some time, the anticipated steady growth of demand for oil is a highly encouraging factor," they said.

L. F. McCollum, president of Continental Oil Co., said excess refinery operations in a period of oversupply have prevented product prices from making little recovery from recession lows.

W. K. Whitford, president, said Gulf Oil Corp. cut operating, administrative and selling expenses last year over 39 million dollars.

Pure Oil Co. officials said imports quotas issued inland refiners have permitted such refiners to trade quotas at low prices and sell resulting products at cut prices

Stock Mart On Uneven Course

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market pursued an uneven course this week as it paused to consolidate the previous week's gains, the biggest of 1960.

The trading week was shortened to four days due to the closing of the exhcanges for Good Friday. This injected an element of caution, for traders dislike the uncertainty of a prolonged weekend.

Another somewhat depressing factor was the deadline for income tax payments, both federal and New York State. Brokers said this occasioned some selling although not a great amount.

The over-all statistics, showing 638 losers to 513 gainers, gave the market a slightly lower tone.

Enough of the actively traded stocks and of the pivotal blue chip advanced to give a lively appearance to selected portions of the market. Both investment demand and speculative buying were much in evidence, along with precautionary selling.

American Telephone, the most widely held stock, touched successive new highs and had a net gain of 3⅛ in response to consistent buying, prompted by higher earnings and Wall Street recommendations.

General Motors, the "biggest" stock, in terms of outstanding shares, lost ⅝ at 46. Encouraging reports made American Motors the volume leader with a gain of 1⅝ and Radio Corp. second most active with a rise of 4¼.

Volume for the holiday - shortened week was only 10,451,000 shares compared with the previous week's total of 14,633,070 shares for a full five-day week. Average daily turnover this week was 2,612,750 shares compared with 2,927,614 the week before.

Most active issue on the New York Stock Exchange was American Motors, up 1⅜ at 28⅞ on 276,900 shares. Most active on the American Stock Exchange was Dumont Laboratories, up ⅝ at 9⅝ on 113,400 shares.

U.S. government and corporate bonds declined this week in reaction to tighter money.

Short-term interest rates went up on a broad front early in the week, reversing an easier trend evident since January. Increases were posted for bankers acceptances and commercial paper marketed by dealers and the big sales finance companies.

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange declined to $20,962,500 par value from $28,414,750 the previous week. A year ago it was $32,342,500.

IN MISSISSIPPI

Wildcat Tests, Gas Field Are Highlights

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Two wildcat production tests in Amite County and a new deep gas field find in Walthall County highlighted this week's oil activity.

Larco Drilling Co. was testing the Dykes No. 1, sec. 21-4n-6w, located about six miles northwest of the McComb oil field. The test was in the lower Tuscaloosa zone at 11,284-94 feet.

C. F. and H. Oil Co. was testing a zone at 11,234-39 feet about six miles northeast of Liberty. Operators perforated the zone and recovered oil and salt water. Cement was used to shut off the salt water.

Sun Oil Co. brought in the new gas find with the McDonald No. 1, sec. 26-3n-11e, located about nine miles northeast of Tylertown.

The well flowed at 4,400,000 cubic feet of dry gas per day from perforations in the Paluxy sand at 12,944-46 feet. Flowing tubing pressure was 4,235 pounds.

In Marion County, Texaco - Seaboard, Inc., was below 13,260 feet in the Board of Supervisors wildcat, sec. 16-2n-12e

Operators were releasing little information on the well, but reports indicated that several gas sands of undetermined commercial worth were logged below 10,000 feet.

Texaco was drilling a surface hole in a second wildcat, the Padget et al No. 1, sec. 14-2n-11?e, a scheduled 14,000 foot test.

In Clarke County, Broadhead and Stack ecompleted the Longbell No. 1 wildcat, sec.710-2n-16e, which pumped 40 barrels daily from a sand at 3,624 feet. Gravity was 15 degrees.

Three wildcat tests in Pike County got underway. Justiss-Mears and D. C. Latimer were below 10,900 feet in the Thompson No. 1, sec. 33-1n-7e. The same operators were below 9,730 feet in the Buckhalter and Spiers No. 1, sec. 23-2n-8e.

Love Petroleum Co was below 8,340 feet in the Cothern No. 1, sec. 32-3n-9e.

In Rankin County, Gulf Coast Drilling and Exploration Co. was below 11,980 in the Allen No. 1 wildcat, sec. 13-3n-5e. The well has logged several gas shows of undetermined commercial worth. Contract depth is 12,500 feet.

In the new south Amory field of Monroe County, a second test was underway with A. G. Hill setting surface casing in the Roberts No. 1, sec. 31-13s-11?w.

In the Bryan field of Jones County, Humble Oil and Refining Co. completed a triple producer. The well is the McFarland No. 2, sec. 23-11?n-10w. It flows from three perforated zones.

The Hosston sand at 11,617-27 feet tested at 705 barrels daily. A Rodessa sand at 10,3366-46 feet tested 246 barrels and the Sligo sand at 10,792-800 flowed 322 barrels.

At McComb in Pike County, Loyle Cashion Co. completed the Schmidt No. 3, sec. 9-3n-7e, which flowed 189 barrels daily from a sand at 10,932-38 feet.

In the Dexter field of Marion County, Shallow Oil Co. completed the Weary No. 1, sec. 5-11n-13e, which flowed about 100 barrels daily from a sand at 9,602-13 feet.

New Location For Revenue Office Told

The Monroe office of the State Department of Revenue has moved to 611 North Third street, Robert Rowland, collector for the department, announced yesterday. The office has formerly been located at 138 South Grand street.

Reason for the move, Rowland pointed out, is to assure better service to the public. Rowland pointed out that crowded conditions, plus the very limited parking space available, hindered the availability of the office to the public. The present office, headquarters for the fifth district, has parking space adjacent to the building, plus out of the heavy traffic area.

The office will be closed Monday and Tuesday, but will reopen Wednesday morning at 8 a.m. The long week end was declared Gov. Earl K. Long because of the general election Tuesday.

C. R. Tidwell, manager of the Monroe office, said the additional space will allow better service to those persons using the facility. It is also located so as to give better service to the banks as well as the Louisville branch of the post office.

Tidwell said the new office has larger facilities for the bookkeeping division and general office, as well as a meeting room, storage space and rest rooms.

A convenient laundry accessory: an unbreakable polyethylene plastic clothespin basket which slides along the line on hanger - type hooks as you hang the clothes. Open - weave construction makes it easy to dip this slide - along basket into suds for washing.

Building Permits

A permit for a $289,400 educational building of the First Presbyterian Church topped the $310,783 total of building permit valuations, in pre-Easter construction activity in Monroe.

Dale B. Martha, who issued the permits in the office of Building Inspector William Hines, pointed out that the church building permit was the only major one out of 19 obtained last week.

Good Friday cut the "permit week" to four days, since none were issued April 15, a state holiday.

The one-story brick educational building will be located at 1291 Stubbs. It will contain 25,000 square feet, including 38 rooms and 11 baths. It will face on both Stubbs and Royal Avenues, and 260 feet on N. 14.

An auditorium is contemplated when the education building is completed. Harry Carpenter is the contractor. The permit was issued April 12.

Monday April 11:

Tension Up Over Dispute In Tennessee

GREENEVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) —A company threat of a $1,000,000 suit against the union countered by a union threat of further walkouts caused mounting tension Saturday in the week-long dispute in giant Magnavox plants here and at nearby Jefferson City.

The threats followed a day-long meeting Friday between Byron Sites, spokesman for the Magnavox Tennessee operations, and Al Hartnett, secretary-treasurer of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers.

The company announced after the unsuccessful meeting that it would file suits against the international union and locals here and at Jefferson City seeking damages which could total $1,000,000.

The company said that the damages would be sought on the ground that the union engaged in an unauthorized strike in violation of its contract.

Union officials said "special union meetings" would be held again Monday. Such all-day meetings last week slowed production at both plants and the company claims they constitute an illegal strike.

The walkouts started last Friday over the firing of a worker who violated a no-smoking rule in the plant. Since that time other grievances have cropped up such as a union claim that Magnavox should make more of its radio and television cabinets rather than buying them.

JUST LIKE PEOPLE

Animals Have Good, Bad Days

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Consider the plight of Terrible Tim, the Kansas City gorilla who turned out to be Timorous Tim on his wedding night.

Dr. Deets Pickett, a veterinarian, had captured Tim and two females, Jeannie and Katie, in Africa last June. The girls were sent to the Kansas City Zoo but Tim was only a 5-pound baby and the Picketts took him home with them.

By the time he was 13 months old he weighed more than 17 pounds, so the Picketts decided it was time he got himself a mate.

Katie greeted Tim with a hefty wallop. It wasn't long until an attendant was calling William T. A. Cully, zoo director, and pleading for help. Tim, he said, was crying and having all kinds of temper tantrums.

Cully tried to soothe Tim by taking him to the Cully home. That didn't help, either. "He wouldn't eat," Cully said. "He just ran all around the house, leaping over furniture and squalling."

There was nothing left to do but take him back home, still helping, to "Mama" Picket. Now he's happy again.

For a time Cinderella, a 5-year old Persian cat owned by T. W. Farthing of Brant, N.Y., brooded over the loss of her litter of kittens.

She's happy again, now, though. She's playing mother to a brood of baby chicks for consolation. Picks them up and carries them around with her mouth just as if they were kittens, too.

And Gigi, an 11-month-old chihuahua at the home of Renee Raymonds in Kankakee, Ill., used to cry every night at bedtime—until she was given a baby's pacifier.

New York's stray cats soon will have a fine new home provided by the Greenwich Village Humane League.

It's a three-story building, purchased at a cost of many thousands of dollars, to replace a present single room. The cats, many abandoned by people who move, are collected from the streets.

At Jacksonville, Fla., it was a city feller who showed the country boys a thing or two. A swarm of bees settled on a rural mail box and wouldn't get off.

The county officers finally called Police Sgt. W. F. Robertson of Jacksonville. He hustled right out and soon had the bees in a hive he keeps for emergencies. Seems the sergeant has been keeping bees as a hobby for 15 years.

In the bird news is the sad story of the big male partridge and the plate glass window.

Mrs. Walter Spencer lay ill in bed at her home at East Greenwich, R. I. She heard a terrific jumble of crashes in the living room and rushed there to find:

A shattered double plate glass bow window, two lamps knocked over, and the floor, couch and chairs strewn with glass.

On a living room chair the partridge, weighing about a pound and a half, lay dead.

Then there was the doe, about to have a baby, which was struck and fatally injured by a car at Uxbridge, Mass. Game Warden William H. Albin performed an operation in an effort to save the fawn and even gave it mouth-to-mouth respiration. After a long while the fawn seemed to be doing well. But 10 minutes later it died.

A dog at Des Moines was a lucky cur, indeed, but he brought bad luck to Mr. and Mrs. James B. Lafon. The unidentified pooch ran across the road in front of a car driven by Mrs. Lafon. She jammed on the brakes and her husband, following in another car, smashed into her. The damage—$400. The dog? He skedaddled, unhurt.

At Portage, Pa., firemen and neighbors searched frantically for Michaeline Miterko, 3, and couldn't find her anywhere—until someone spied her curled up asleep in the doghouse with her collie, Moge.

In Toronto, people began to get suspicious when they saw a poodle, named Felsen Fest Pisces, staggering on his daily walk. That wasn't all. He was wearing a dapper suit and a bow tie.

Humane Society inspectors checked his wealthy lady owner and found out the poodle had been enjoying champagne along with other luxuries, including daily Turkish baths.

They were still more astonished that the dog's wardrobe was an array of 15 suits, 6 sets of pajama's 4 sets of shoes with 4 in each set, a raincoat, numerous bow ties and a pair of tiara-like headpieces set with rhinestones.

He even had a maid, too. She snorted angrily over the charge that the poodle went staggering about because he was drunk on champagne.

AIR TRAFFIC RISES

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — The volume of commercial air traffic in West Germany continued to rise during 1959, the Institute for German Industry reported.

A total of 3,800,000 passengers, 62,100 metric tons of cargo and 13,900 tons of mail were carried on a total of 200,186 scheduled and charter flights during the year. Compared with 1952, the volume of passengers rose four times.

DO YOU OWN THE OLDEST VOLKSWAGEN?
WE'D LIKE TO TAKE A GOOD LOOK AT IT!
We're searching for the oldest Volkswagen still running in the United States. The car we're looking for will have its original body and chassis; the one with the lowest body and chassis serial numbers we find by April 19, 1960 is the one we want. (The engine doesn't count—it need not be the original.) The car we choose must have been registered in the United States as of January 1, 1960 by its present owner. Volkswagens belonging to automobile dealers, personnel of Volkswagen of America, members of Volkswagen distributor and dealer organizations and their immediate families cannot be considered. Remember: the search ends April 19, 1960. Just fill in the facts required below and return it to us at once—or come by and let us gather the facts for you.

MRS. DITHERS JUST PHONED--SOMETHING TERRIBLE HAS HAPPENED TO YOUR BOSS
WHAT HAPPENED, MRS. DITHERS?
HELP HELP
BE BRAVE, MRS. DITHERS. I'LL RESCUE YOUR HUSBAND! I OWE SO MUCH TO HIM
MY PRECIOUS JULIUS
WE ALL LOVE HIM
STOP JABBING ME WITH THAT CLOTHES POLE, YOU IDIOT
I'M JUST TRYING TO POKE YOU LOOSE, MR. DITHERS
TURN OFF THAT HOSE--YOU'RE DROWNING ME!
I'M JUST TRYING TO SQUIRT YOU LOOSE
I HOPE HE REALIZES I'M RISKING MY OWN LIFE TO SAVE HIM
DON'T WORRY, BOSS--CORA AND BLONDIE ARE HOLDING A BLANKET TO CATCH YOU WHEN YOU DROP CHOP CHOP THUD
MY DARLING--SPEAK TO ME--SAY SOMETHING--SPEAK, SPEAK
BUMSTEAD, YOU'RE FIRED!
IMAGINE! AFTER ALL I DID FOR HIM, THAT WAS THE ONLY THING HE HAD TO SAY

COFFEE COMMISSIONER CALLING. WHERE ARE YOU?
WE'RE PASSING THE WEST COAST OF LANAI. WE SHOULD BE THERE IN 30 MINUTES.
BUT WE HAVE SOME BAD NEWS. SEISMOGRAPHS AT THE WEATHER BUREAU REPORTED AN UNDERSEA EARTHQUAKE 2500 MILES TO THE WEST ABOUT FOUR HOURS AGO.
THAT COULD MEAN A TIDAL WAVE IN YOUR AREA WITHIN THE HOUR.
TIDAL WAVE? SO WHAT DO WE DO NOW?

TIM TYLER'S LUCK by Lyman Young and Tom Massey

LAWMANS COME TOO LATE WITH MAGIC MEDICINE FOR CHIEF OWEELO —
YOU MEAN THE SEALED BOX WE BROUGHT CONTAINS MEDICINE ?
I'LL BREAK IT OPEN !
TWO STONES AND A SCRIBBLED NOTE INSIDE ... READ IT, TIM....
IT READS — "ONE PEBBLE TO BE PLACED IN EACH HAND AND CLOSE FINGERS OVER...." AND IT'S SIGNED BY DOBY WATKINS !
One pebble to be placed in each hand and close fingers over— Doby Watkins
HE'S BEEN HOLDING THE TWO PEBBLES FOR TEN MINUTES, AND NOTHING'S HAPPENED —
TIM ! I'M SURE I JUST SAW HIS EYELIDS FLUTTER !
THE PEBBLES HAVE VANISHED FROM HIS HANDS ! APPARENTLY, IT WAS THEY THAT BROUGHT HIM BACK TO LIFE, SPUD !
BUT WHAT KIND OF MYSTERIOUS SUBSTANCE WAS IN THOSE TWO PEBBLES ?
HM— IT SAVED ONE LIFE... IT COULD SAVE OTHERS ! WE'VE GOT TO FIND DOBY WATKINS....

AW-- LET'S GO HOME.
HELLO, MR. MULLINS-- THE USUAL TO TAKE HOME?
YES, BUT PICK OUT SOME WITH NICE EXPRESSIONS-- I'D LIKE TO SEE A FEW CHEERFUL FACES FOR A CHANGE!

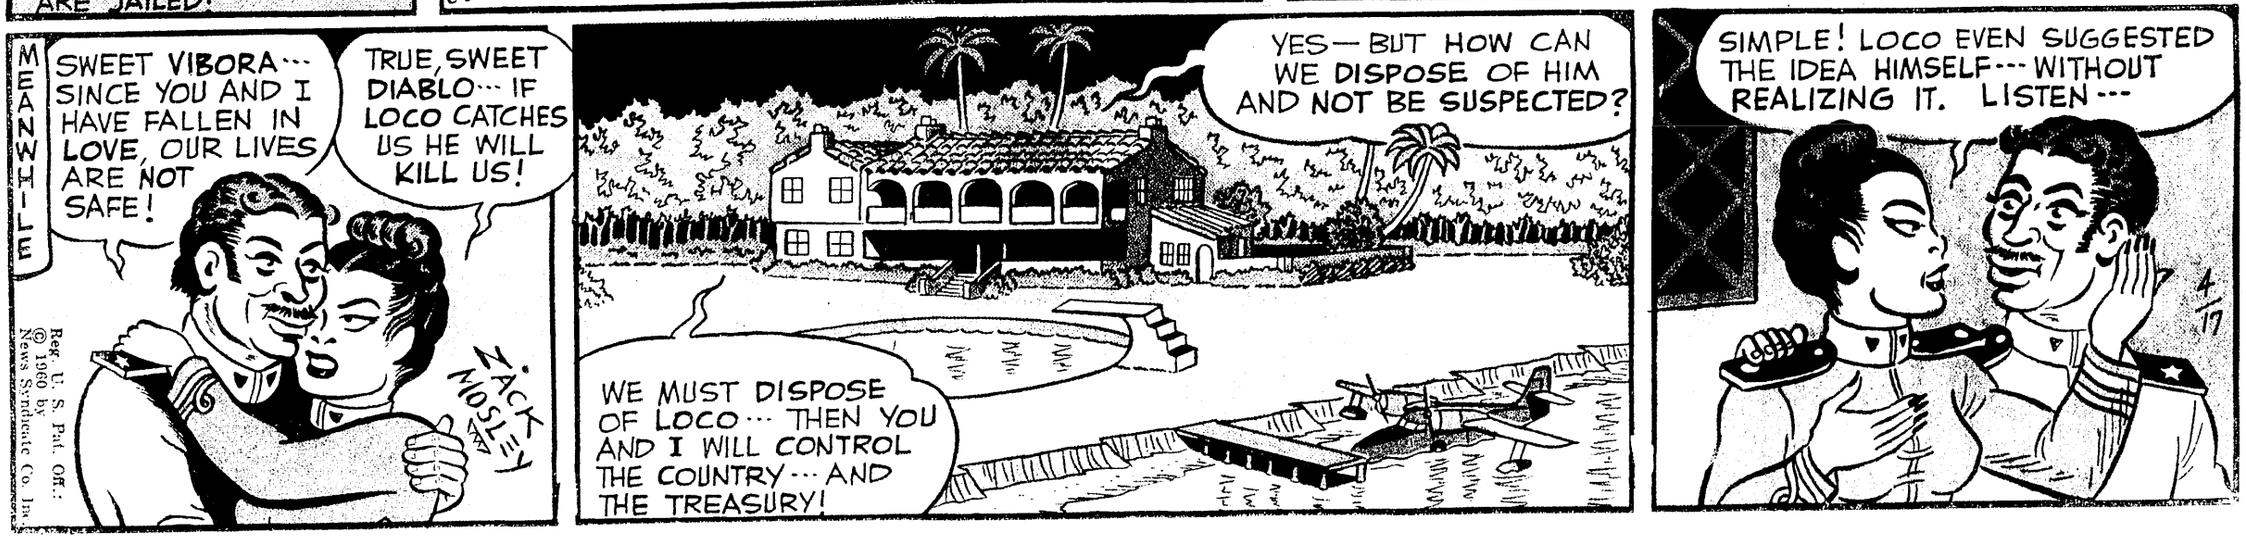
SMILIN' JACK

PRINCE PYRO AND HIS PASSENGER ARE TAKEN TO SUPREME RULER LOCO RATA!

THE PASSENGER IS RECOGNIZED AS AN ARCH ENEMY OF LOCO'S. BOTH HE AND PYRO ARE JAILED!

THAT MAD-RAT RULER WOULDN'T LET ME CALL THE EMBASSY OR ANYONE!
YES— HE, HIS FIANCEE VIBORA AND HIS COUSIN DIABLO HAVE TOTAL CONTROL OF MY COUNTRY!
THAT IS WHY I HAVE TRIED TO ORGANIZE INVASION FORCES TO OVERTHROW THESE COMMIES!
LOCO BELIEVES I WAS YOUR HELPER--WHAT WILL THEY DO TO US?
THEIR TRIALS ARE A FARCE --- EVEN SUSPECTED ENEMIES USUALLY GET THE DEATH SENTENCE!



MEANWHILE
SWEET VIBORA--- SINCE YOU AND I HAVE FALLEN IN LOVE, OUR LIVES ARE NOT SAFE!
TRUE, SWEET DIABLO--- IF LOCO CATCHES US HE WILL KILL US!

YES— BUT HOW CAN WE DISPOSE OF HIM AND NOT BE SUSPECTED?
WE MUST DISPOSE OF LOCO--- THEN YOU AND I WILL CONTROL THE COUNTRY--- AND THE TREASURY!
SIMPLE! LOCO EVEN SUGGESTED THE IDEA HIMSELF--- WITHOUT REALIZING IT. LISTEN---

I DON'T CARE IF PAPA JOE WAS IN PRISON! TH' GUY HE KILLED MUST HAVE HAD IT COMIN', OR HE WOULDN'T HAVE SHOT HIM!

I SAID YOU AND I ARE TWO OF A KIND, SIS! OUR FOLKS ARE OUR FOLKS!

I KNOW PAPA JOE WAS IN PRISON, AND I KNOW MAMA GERT KNOWS IT! THEY'VE NEVER TOLD ME! BUT A KID HEARS THINGS!

CLOCKS? YEAH, AN' LOCKS, MAYBE, TOO!

BUT THIS BIG LUG, LOOKIN' IN TH' WINDOW — WHO D'YOU FIGGER HE IS, AND WHAT'S HE GOT ON OUR PAPA JOE?

BIG SAM, TH' "SQUEEZE"! HE WAS IN PRISON WITH PAPA JOE!

BUT THERE'S A LOT I DON'T KNOW! AND Y'CAN'T ASK QUESTIONS 'BOUT THINGS LIKE THAT, EVEN FROM YOUR FOLKS!

NO! HM-M! BUT Y'CAN LISTEN AN' PAY 'TENTION! AN' 'FORE LONG Y'CAN LEARN A LOT!

ALL RIGHT, BIG SAM! YOU'RE TH' "SQUEEZE"! YOU GOT BRAINS! WE GO WIT' YOU!

YOU'D BETTER! YOU, HARRY, THE "ENFORCER"! BAH! WITHOUT MY BRAINS WHAT Y'GOT TO ENFORCE?

AND YOU, LEAKY LES, THE STOOLIE! WITHOUT ME WHAT Y'GOT TO LEAK? I'M TH' GUY WHO PAYS OFF FOR THOSE PHONY TIPS YOU PEDDLE, T'GOOF UP THE STUPID COPS!

YEAH, YEAH! YOU'RE TOPS, BIG SAM! YOU'RE TH' "SQUEEZE"! WE KNOW THAT!

SO! LAY OFF ANY ROUGH STUFF ON JOE GRIT, SEE? I'M GETTIN' A PLAN! ONE THAT'LL REALLY PAY OFF! TH' "SLINGER" HASN'T GOT TH' WORD YET, BUT HE WILL!

THAT WALL EYED JOKER, JOE GRIT? IS HE TH' "SLINGER"?

SO WHAT IF HE IS? I GOT ENOUGH ON HIM T'BURN HIM AND HE KNOWS IT!

SURE, SAM! SURE! BUT TH' "SLINGER"! WE HEARD O' HIM!

WELL, I HANDLED HIM IN TH' BIG HOUSE! I CAN HANDLE HIM ANY TIME, ANYWHERE! I GOT BRAINS!

SO, BIG SAM'S GOIN' OVER NOW T'MAKE HIS PLAY AT TH' SLINGER'S STORE! WELL, BIG SAM'S GOT BRAINS!

YEAH! LET'S HOPE HE STILL HAS 'EM, AFTER HE TRIES T'PUT TH' SQUEEZE ON TH' "SLINGER"!
